Displaying material
Turlington students and teachers involved with the In-school Scouting m display a bolt of material donated by Burlington Industries. The material will be used for uniforms.

Scouting program gets bolt from Burlington

Burlington Industries donated 50 yards of material to the In-School Scouting Program at J.W. Turlington School.

The material is to be used to make uniforms for the girls. In-School Girl Scouting and Boy

Scouting programs have been established specifically for students who are handicapped.

The goals for In-School Scouting are similar to those for educational programs - to strengthen character, to provide citizenship training and to improve physical, mental and moral fitness. Through In-School Scouting, these goals can be obtained via exciting, activity-oriented programs and materials. These programs offered in the schools provided reinforcement for the school curriculum, and have the added advantage of providing immediate practical application in a supervised, enjoyable environment

The Turlington Scouting program received the bolt of material from Burlington Industries through Harry Williamson, Public Relations Director.

In addition to the Turlington program, In-School Scouting has been established for the Exceptional Children's Program at Up-church and McLauchlin Schools.

The North Carolina In-School Girl and Boy Scouting program is sponsored by the Division for Exceptional Children, State Department of Public Instruction in

The program is dependent upon community leaders and resources as well as professional personnel for its success

E. White, P. Cob, D. McIlraith and S. Horne head the program at Turlington School.

PTA gives Turlington a donation of $5,000

The J.W. Turlington PTA presented the school with a check for $5000 last week to help buy instructional materials. The money is the result of a calendar sale project sponsored by the PTA.

According to Emma Mims, Principal of the school, the money will be used to upgrade the Math, Science, Language Arts and Social Studies Departments. The faculty at Turlington has been taking a look at the essential parts of education that include reading, writing, mathematics and skills and knowledge in Social Studies and

Each teacher has pledged to do his/her best to help students increase skills needed to increase their CAT scores.

Mims further states that many aspects of Turlington curriculum are being reviewed. It is not enough simply to say to teachers and students "work harder." "If we are to have the kind of success in education that we want, teachers will have to have certain necessities. They must have improved teaching materials, up-to-o-date text books, modern equipment, and pupil-teacher ratios low enough to permit individual attention to student learning problems," Mim's said.

The PTA has also undertaken a beautification project to help improve the appearance of the grounds.

Turlington will hold its next PTA meeting February 11 at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium.

St. Andrews is offering night study

St. Andrews Presbyterian College will offer six continuing education courses in its spring term evening schedule, which begins

Five of the courses are included in the St. Andrews Certificate in Business Management (CBM) program, which is designed to improve business and management skills. The CBM courses to be offered are Managerial Accounting, Cost Accounting, Macro-economics, Business Law and Labor and Managment Relations. The other course offering, Imaginative Writing, is associated with the St. Andrews Communications for Adult Needs (SCAN). SCAN is a certificate program designed to improve communications skills.

Managerial Accounting is an introductory study of internal ac-counting with emphasis on interpretation and application of accounting data. The course stresses the "attention-directing" and pro-blem solving function of accounting in relation to planning and control, evaluation of perfor-mance and analysis of decisionmaking. Financial accounting is a prerequisite. Managerial Accounting will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to Cost Accounting deals with cost analysis for decision-making and control. Other subjects include accounting information for capital budgeting, inventory management, manufacturing cost systems and cost-volume-profit analysis. The course will meet Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30.

Imaginative Writing will be taught by St. Andrews' Writer-inresidence and noted poet, Ron Bayes. The course involves short story writing, the writing of verse and the critical essay. Bayes' writing course will meet on Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30.

For further information concerning St. Andrews' evening course offerings or enrollment pro-cedures, please call Dr. John Daughtrey, Director of Continuing Education (919 276-3652, ext. 340) or Dr. Robert Hopkins, Business and Economics Program (919 276-3652, ext. 214), St. Andrews Presbyterian College.

Clarification

In last week's edition of The News-Journal it was noted that Valinda Jean Brown, who had been substitute teaching in the Hoke County schools, returned to college at Fayetteville State University. Brown actually transferred from the University of North Carolina to Fayetteville
