

Snake handler delights students

By Elizabeth Burgess
 Dr. Floyd Waddle from Fayetteville State University entertained some of our pre-school children with a program about snakes.
 Dr. Waddle brought with him several different kinds of snakes to show the children. They were told many interesting facts about snakes and how to handle them.
 Those children wanting to handle the snakes had an opportunity to do so.
 Dr. Waddle was certainly an interesting and entertaining gentleman. Luke McNeill video taped the program for the library. We thank McNeill for doing this for the library. He is always so gracious to tape our programs for us and we do appreciate his giving the library his time and talent.
 Jane Witherspoon, Letitia Conolly, and Julie Conolly have had displays in the library for the last two weeks. We thank Jane for sharing some heirlooms handed down through family ties. We thank Letitia and Julie for sharing their ceramic work with the community. Anyone interested in having a display in the library, please call 875-2502. We will be happy to arrange a time for you.

 The Dial-a-Story is a marvelous success. We average 95 calls a day (and night) and that is wonderful. The stories change daily - the magic number to call is 875-2039.
 The Hoke County High School Quiz Bowl Team has been practicing each Sunday afternoon in preparation for the District Competition on March 16, 1985 at the Durham County Public Library.
 Mrs. Sarah Baucom and Mrs. Sue Davis, instructors at Hoke County High School, and I meet with the students each Sunday afternoon to discuss current events, history, art, literature, music, and science topics to help prepare them for the district competition. We hope to win the district competition and go on to the State competition. Wish us luck.
