Energy efficiency essential for new appliance purchases

If you are remodeling your kitchen, or just need to replace a kitchen appliance, you may want to consider choosing an energy efficient appliance.

Major kitchen appliances account for roughly 15% of your home's total energy use.

An Energy Shopping Guide - While energy-conserving features on appliances may increase the initial cost, long-term savings usually make the extra investment worthwhile. The Federal Trade Commission's "Energy Guide" labels on appliances estimate operating costs and will help you compare the efficiency of similarly sized models. The following figures on energy use and savings are averages; your amounts may vary depending upon use, upkeep, and local utility rates.

Refrigerator/Freezer - Match

the size of a new refrigerator or freezer to your needs. Eight cubic feet of refrigerator space is recommended for two people; add a cubic foot for each additional family member, and 2 extra cubic feet if you entertain frequently. Two cubic feet per person is the suggested figure for a freezer compartment, 6 cubic feet for a separate freezer. To save up to 16% on refrigeration energy costs, look for a power-saver or humidity switch that enables you to turn off the anti-sweat heaters (used to (See FRONT, page 5B)

Gardening should be recorded

What varieties of pansies or tomatoes did you plant last year? When did your peonies start blooming? How often did you have to water your summer vegetable garden? What fertilizer did you use on your azaleas?

If you have trouble remembering the details of last year's garden and your gardening activities, consider keeping a garden journal or diary. It could help you become a better gardener.

A garden journal can be a record of what is happening in your garden - what's blooming, onset of insect attacks, what and when you plant, crop failures and outstanding successes.

In your journal you can record the dates and first blossoms of a plant in your garden opened and the duration of the plant's blooming period. This can help you plan your garden for continuous flowering.

plants later in the season and see if you have better results.

A garden journal can be more descriptive and detailed. In it you can answer such questions as, does the new corn variety taste as good as the one you planted last year? Are the petunia colors as vibrant as the catalogue described? What birds visit your garden? Which flowers attract the most butterflies?

Include the data you feel will be useful later. Did that cantaloupe really weigh 10 pounds or has it grown in your mind over the winter? Weighing garden prizes and recording the results will keep the facts straight.

Not all information has to be useful. You may want to record things you will find interesting later, such as the name of the person who shared some iris rhizomes with you, or your garden club's reaction to your arrangement of wildflowers at the club's monthly meeting.

A picture is worth a thousand words.

Photographs will help you remember your garden as it actually was.

Children will proudly pose with a sample harvest from the vegetable garden, or beside the zinnia and marigold bed, especially if they got to lend a hand in helping plant, tend or water.

Photographs of trees and shrubs around your home will be helpful for insurance purposes if they are damaged by lightning or some other casualty.

Perhaps the most important benefit derived from keeping a garden journal is that keeping a journal can make you a better gardener as you become a keener observer and more aware of what is happening in your garden.

Making a pillow

Extension Homemaker Nell Schell works on a shadow trapunto pillow during the recent Family Fun Frolic. Schell will be conducting a workshop to teach others how to sew pillows, handicrafts and clothing during the session which will be held April 19 and 22 from 10 a.m. to noon in the Lester Building. Those interested in the workshop should call 875-2126 for additional information.

4-H group heads to camp

The Hoke County 4-H Program will be taking a group of young people to camp the week of July 7-12.

4-H Camp is open to youth ages 9-13, whether they are 4-H members or not.

This year we will be going to Betsy-Jeff Penn 4-H Camp which is located near Reidsville.

This is a week of fun as well as educational activities. Participants will take classes in electricity, handicrafts, archery, swimming, canoeing, and recreation.

The cost of this year's camp is $75. This includes transportation, camp rental, food, craft materials and insurance. Horsemanship will be offered at an additional cost of $15 per camper.

Betsy-Jeff Penn has a well-trained director, lifeguards, instructors and counselors. Also, 4-H agents and adult volunteer leaders accompany the group to camp.

Hoke County has spaces for 60 campers. In order to reserve a spot for camp, a $20 non-refundable deposit is due now and the remainder due by June. Because spaces are limited, they will be filled on a first come basis. If you are interested, stop by the Agricultural Extension Office at 314 South Magnolia Street to pick up an application.

If you have questions about camp, please call Sandra Ross at 875-2162.

Low humidity can cause wooden furniture to dry and crack. If you do not have a humidifier, put a saturated sponge in a bowl and place them inside a cupboard or check to protect it.

ADVERTISEMENT OF TAX LIENS ON REAL PROPERTY

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 105-369 of the North Carolina General Statutes and pursuant to an order of the City Council of City of Raeford, dated April 1, 1985, I am hereby advertising tax liens for the year 1984 upon the real estate described below. The amount advertised will be increased by interest and costs, and the omission of interest and costs from the amount advertised will not constitute a waiver of the taxing unit's claim for those items. The real estate that is subject to the lien, the name of the person to whom the property is listed for taxes, and the principal amount of the taxes are set out below. If the taxes remain unpaid, the lien will be foreclosed by the taxing unit and the property sold to satisfy the taxing unit's claim for taxes.

This the 11th day of April, 1985.

Betty Smith
City Tax Collector
