Babysitters, mothers should know about children's stages

Whether you are a parent or a babysitter, you need to know a lot about children and the stages they go through.

There are a lot of things you need to know before babysitting:

- How children grow and change as they get older.
- Some tips for helping children with eating, bathing, dressing, going to bed.
- Fun things to do that help children grow.
- How to prevent accidents and misbehavior.
- What to do in emergencies.
- Babysitting as a business.
- Understanding yourself by working with children.

One way to learn how children grow and change is to look at what they like and what they can do at each age. For instance, babies up to one year of age:

Babies usually like:

- To be held close to you.
- To hear you talk and sing to them.
- To see your face and other things around them.
- To taste the things they hold in their hands.

- To explore the world around them and
- To be with people they know.

What an average 1-year old can do:

- Crawl (so watch him carefully);
- Stand (both feet);
- Walk with help (your hand or furniture);
- Drink from a cup (but may drop it);
- Wave, hug, laugh (cries, too);
- Imitate sounds (not talking much);
- Understand some words (no, give, bye, go);
- Pick up tiny pieces of things (to keep the floor clean).

New 4-H officers sworn in

By Leslie Ashburn
At the last County Council Meeting, 4-Hers from all over the county came to see the officers sworn in that they had elected in January.

As the new officers were sworn in, their predecessors informed them of their duties.

Each new officer lit a candle to show that they accepted the responsibilities of their new office. After this ceremony, refreshments were served.

Everyone enjoyed it and had a great time.

Pork products change names

Consumers may notice a change in the label on some cured pork products beginning this week.

This is the effective date for a new U.S.D.A. Food Safety and Inspection Service regulation.

Products affected are cured cooked or uncured pork products: ham, Canadian bacon, shoulder, Boston butt, picnic, ham patties, chopped ham, pressed ham, and spiced ham.

Products not affected are bacon and related products, dry sausages and dry cured hams - such as country ham.

The government currently requires that finished bacon products will not exceed their raw, uncured weight after curing and smoking. Dry sausages and air dried cured hams, such as country ham, are excluded from the new rule since they already must meet certain analytical chemical standards and weight losses.

History - The U.S.D.A. always had inspection procedures to assure that the consumer received correctly labeled products. These regulations were written so that the finished product would contain the products listed in the ingredients statement and they were produced in an acceptable manner for human consumption.

This new regulation was put forth to recognize new technology incorporated into the processing and compliance-testing systems.

It also meets the consumers' desire for more information regarding the nutrient content of foods. Cured pork processors must begin labeling their products based on the chemically analyzed muscle protein content beginning April 15, 1985.

County Extension Chairman

The products must still meet the same processing regulations. Now they will be labeled according to the protein content of the finished product. The previous regulations required inspectors to manually weigh cured pork products during different steps in the process and collect samples for chemical tests.

The new regulation is referred to as Protein Fat Free. It states that processed cured pork products must have a minimum protein content, when the fat content is mathematically held constant. By using this more modern approach, the intent is to minimize human errors and assure the consumer a variety of cured pork products segregated by the amount of protein.

Cured Pork Product Names

Some of the product names based on the protein fat free content will not change. For example, a cooked boneless ham must have a minimum protein content of 20.5%.

This does not indicate a name change, because the minimum

20.5% protein fat free is in the range for cured pork. In the past, "water added" was included on any cured pork product that weighed more than its fresh weight.

The new regulation will allow a product to be called Cooked Boneless Ham with Natural Juices if the minimum protein content (fat free) is 18.5%. A minimum protein content of 17.0% in a ham must have a label showing "water added."

Cooked hams and Canadian bacon containing less than 17% protein content (fat free) must be labeled with their common name and "water product -X% of weight is added ingredients." An example could be Cooked Ham and Water Product - 20% of Weight is Added Ingredients.

Effect on Type of Current Products

There will be no measurable change in the type of products that consumers have been purchasing from any given cured pork processor. As indicated above, the regulation is to give more variety of cured pork products with a known protein content.

An economic advantage will be in the manner in which the Food Safety and Inspection Service will monitor the production of these various products. In the past, it has been common for an inspector to be present at all times. This was regardless of how tightly the cured pork processor maintained his product standards.

ADVERTISEMENT OF TAX LIENS ON REAL PROPERTY

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 105-369 of the North Carolina General Statutes and pursuant to an order of the City Council of City of Raeford, dated April 1, 1985, I am hereby advertising tax liens for the year 1984 upon the real estate described below. The amount advertised will be increased by interest and costs, and the omission of interest and costs from the amount advertised will not constitute a waiver of the taxing unit's claim for those items. The real estate that is subject to the lien, the name of the person to whom the property is listed for taxes, and the principal amount of the taxes are set out below. If the taxes remain unpaid, the lien will be foreclosed by the taxing unit and the property sold to satisfy the taxing unit's claim for taxes.

This the 11th day of April, 1985.

City Tax Collector
