Five draw jail for DWI's

Five people were given jail terms in Hoke County District court last week after being convicted of driving while impaired (DWI).

A Lilesville man, Lawrence B. Easterling, was sentenced to no less than 12 months and no more than 18 months after being convicted of DWI for the fifth time since 1969, according to Department of Transportation records. Easterling was arrested on the last charge on February 2 and was also charged with driving without a license, according to citations against him.

Work release was recommended for the 49-year-old man, according to court records.

Lawrence Campbell, a Fayetteville resident, was sentenced to one year in prison suspended for two years special supervised probation and fined $200 after getting his second DWI conviction, according to records.

Campbell, 54, was arrested on February 22.

He was also sentenced to seven days in the Hoke County Jail, records say.

Rogers Drake, a Red Springs man, was sentenced to one year suspended for two years special supervised probation.

Drake was also ordered to serve seven days in jail as part of his sentence, according to records.

The 30-year-old man was fined $200.

Drake was arrested on March 10, according to records.

Nellie Wright McBride, a Raeford resident, was also sentenced to two years special supervised probation and seven days in jail after being convicted of a second offense of DWI, records say.

McBride was arrested on January 2, according to records.

The 49-year-old McBride was also fined $200, records say.

Perry Dean Stewart, a Raeford resident, will spend seven days in the Hoke County Jail after being convicted of DWI on March 9, records say.

The 35-year-old Stewart was also sentenced to two years special supervised probation and fined $200, records say.

The conviction was Stewart's second.

Roy Carlon Utley, a Fayetteville man, was placed on supervised probation for two years and fined $500 after being convicted of driving with his license revoked for the third time, according to records.

Utley, 26, was arrested on April 19, records say.

Archie Levern McLean, of Raeford, has appealed a one year sentence given him after he was convicted of failing to stop for a blue light and siren, driving 15 miles per hour over the speed limit, speeding 71 in a 35 mile per hour zone, a stop sign violation, and driving without a license.

McLean was also given the sentence for failing to pay $72 in fines owed to the clerk of courts office.

Larry Chavis, a Red Springs man, was sentenced to one year in prison after being convicted of forceable trespassing.

Chavis' original charge was for first degree burglary, but the charge was changed.

According to a warrant for the man's arrest, Chavis broke into the home of Robert McPhaul.

The 26-year-old man was also convicted of trespassing on the property of Mary Ann Tyler, records say.

The convictions were consolidated for sentencing.

John Edward McLaughlin, of Raeford, was sentenced to 18 months in prison for breaking probation.

According to records, the 48-year-old man was arrested and convicted of driving with his license revoked.

McLaughlin did not keep appointments with his probation officer.

Lewis Edwin Fulmer, a Shannon resident, has appealed an 18 month sentence given him after he was convicted of communicating threats and assaulting a woman.

According to warrants, the 26-year-old man threatened to kill Deborah Sue Fulmer and hit her in the mouth on March 20.

Fulmer's appeal bond was set at $2,000.
