Downtown occupation
Tanks from Gen. George Patton's armored division roll on Main Street in Raeford during World War II. Patton's troops were training on the Vass Road, and the general was said to be a frequent visitor in town. The photograph was taken by Art Gore Jr. from the top of Mack's 5&10 (now Jack's) with the assistance of Luke McNeill and a Brownie camera. Luke furnished The News-Journal with the photo.

I asked him why he wanted to go off the street to talk. He replied that he didn't want any of his culture to rub off on me. I told him I didn't want any of his culture, but what was he talking about? It seems that at the convention the City of Charleston had given tickets to different events that were taking place in the city during the weekend. Clayton and Janet had two tickets to the ballet. It was a good thing Janet was along because I don't believe my cultural friend would have known a single movement by the dancers. Maybe we should send him to more conventions and instead of coming back with culture, he will return with the truth in him.

The comments that came from most class members as they were called upon were, how long they had been married, number of children, grandchildren, and yes, great-grandchildren. I believe we had six couples who had been married 50 years or more. I couldn't say about the number of children and grandchildren. As I walked through the crowd before the banquet started these were some of the comments:
Let me see your nametag? Yes, I knew it was you all the time.
Where do you live now? Have you retired yet? You look better now than when you graduated! Yes, these were a few of the words passed.
Now for a few of my observations:
Carrie Hall Duke still has black hair and I don't believe a grey hair will make it into her head.
It was good to see George Bethune and James Veasey talking about old times. They married girls from the classes having the reunion. George played centerfield and James left field when Raeford played Shelby for the baseball state championship in 1929.
Margaret Dalton Simpson, Lucy Biggs Cousin, Joyce Lee Townsend Faw and Deane Matheson Huggins attended for the first time. They were sorry they couldn't have been at the others. Walter McPhaul said he didn't know what he had been missing, Jeannie Bethune was at her first.

Clyde Upchurch, Jaybird McLeod, Nig Epstein, Robert Whitley and Johnny Womble talked football.
Irma Jordan Randall said that she could see the looks of parents in most of the people present. Her hair is still (expensive) silver.
I could go on and on, but space does not permit. The classes did vote to have the next reunion in 1988. Time it seems, may be running out.

The 1934-1935 graduation classes of Raeford High School held their 51st and 50th reunion at the Sheraton Inn in Southern Pines last Saturday night. There were 66 in attendance and they all were in high spirits and didn't look bad after 50 years. The Class of 1934 had 13 members present and the Class of 1935 had 27 members present. Some were there for the first time. Reunions had been held in 1975 and 1980.

Fairfield graduates as med. specialists
Airman Tammy L. Fairfield, daughter of Suzanne R. Fairfield of Raeford Road, Aberdeen, and Alan F. Fairfield of Pinehurst, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force medical laboratory specialist course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

During the course, students were taught to analyze biological fluids and other substances to aid the physician in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of disease. They also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of Air Force.
Fairfield is scheduled to serve in Fairfield, Calif., with the David Grant Air Force Medical Center. She is a 1983 graduate of Pinecrest High School, Southern Pines.
