Lee receives honor for idea

Curtis Leroy Lee, Supervisor in the Cloth Department of Burlington Industries Raeford Plant, has been presented an Innovation Award for his role in the development of a "Cloth Take-Up Mandrel" better known as a cloth pole.

Lee received the award through Burlington Industries recently announced program to recognize and honor employees who develop patentable inventions or trade secret innovations.

Called the Burlington Innovation Award Plan, the new program is designed to reward employees with cash payments and special recognition for innovations that are unique and potentially valuable to the company.

The Patent review Committee of Burlington administers the new award program.

Lee stated that he was "not expecting any kind of reward and was taken by surprise" when he was presented a check for $300 by Plant Management. "I don't deserve all the credit. Ralph White (Production Manager) and Shuford Pennell (Cloth Department Manager) should get a lot of the credit too."
