Prison Art show to be held at Cross Creek Mall Oct. 17

The Ninth Annual Prison Art Show will be held at Cross Creek Mall, Fayetteville, October 17, 18 and 19.

The show is sponsored by the North Carolina Department of Correction to enable the public to view the creative abilities of the individuals incarcerated in the state's 87 correctional facilities.

This year's show is hosted by McCain Hospital and Cross Creek Mall.

The show will be open during the regular business hours of the mall.

The 1985 Art Show will consist of 220 works from individuals housed in correctional facilities throughout the state.

These art works will come from individuals housed in maximum custody, the most secure, to those housed in minimum custody, the least restrictive; from facilities such as Central Prison, Sandhills Youth Center, and McCain Hospital.

There will be cash prizes and ribbons awarded for the Best of Show and three categories of Drawings, Paintings and Mixed Media.

These awards will be for first, second, third and honorable mention in each category.

A People's Choice award will be given on Saturday, October 19, for the art work which is most admired by the public.

Judges are for the Prison Art Show have been chosen from the Sandhills area. Stewart Fulghum, Associate Director of the Arts Council of Moore County, has consented to be a judge.

Fulgham has a degree in Arts Management from East Carolina University. He has spent a lifetime in the arts and has been with the Arts Council of Moore County for the past five months.

Joan Wicker owns and operates the Classic Art Gallery in Pinehurst.

Wicker is best known for her portraits and has studied under various impressionist painters.

Jill Shuford will also be helping to judge the show. She is the visiting professional artist at Sandhills Community College for the second year.

Shuford will be serving the Moore County area as a community artist within the public school system and doing presentations for the public. She has a Master of Fine Arts Degree from UNC-G. Judy Leslie will also be a judge for the show. She teaches tone and decorative painting classes thru Sandhills Community College.
