Fall nap

This Hoke County cat takes a brief snooze in the last remaining days of fall warm weather last Sunday. Cooler temperatures are predicted for the end of the week, and rain on Monday and Tuesday was expected to end by Wednesday. Although temperatures might drop, the cat will probably find somewhere for its afternoon rest.

(Continued from page 1A) maybe it will show the commission that Raeford and Hoke County wants to move forward. We have lost many things in Hoke County, because we don't have numbers. So let's have numbers next Tues-

The annual Halloween Carnival sponsored by the Raeford Kiwanis Club and the TMH classes of the schools will be held Saturday, October 26 at the J.W. Turlington School. The fun will start at 5 p.m. Now this is the way that Halloween should be celebrated by the young folks of our community. There will be all types of entertainment for the young folks and when you get to a carnival, most of us old folks become kids again. The Raeford Jaycees will have a haunted house in the gym and that will be worth the time to attend the

The proceeds will go to the TMH classes and this is a project that is worth supporting.

Last week I rode out to Oakdale Gin to see Julian Johnson about some church business. After getting the business completed, we started talking about the ginning of cotton. He stated that the entire crop of cotton should almost be ginned by the end of October. Julian said he couldn't remember the crop being finished this early in years past. Benny McLeod of Hoke Cotton Warehouse said the same thing Sunday when I was talking to him.

I can remember back in the 1930s that we had a special section each year during the cotton gin-ning season. Each gin would run a large ad in the section and the theme was "King Cotton."

To the best of my knowledge the gins were Oakdale, Hoke Oil and Fertilizer Co., Raeford Gin, Rockfish Gin, Duffie Gin and maybe one more I can't recall.

Maybe it was in the Stonewall section of the county.

In those days there were a few trucks, but most of the cotton was hauled to the gins in wagons. I can remember going to school in the late 1920s and wagons would be backed up on the Laurinburg Highway, down past Magnolia

I don't know how many bales they could gin at that time, but Julian said the modern gin at Oakdale ginned 10 bales an hour.

Yes, it is good to see cotton still around. I still like cotton products, and buy them every chance I get.

Don't forget to set your clock back Saturday night. Daylight Sav-ings Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday morning. It would be bad to get to church an hour early.

The Hoke High Bucks finally came through with a victory last week. They will gain experience and be ready for next year.

LREMC directors re-elected

Electric Membership Corporation kept their seats during elections held at the cooperative's annual

One incumbent director was defeated in the voting at Pembroke State University's Performing Arts Center.

Challenger Ward Clark Jr., a former board member, outpolled Bill James Brewington 413-280 to claim the District 1 seat, representing the townships of Maxton, Alfordsville, Thompson, Union and Rowland in Robeson County.

Clark is from the Maxton area and Brewington is from the Pembroke area

Ronald Hammonds retained his District 5 seat by defeating challenger James Hester Hammonds, 382-309. District 5 consists of the Robeson County townships of Lumber Bridge, Parkton, St. Pauls, East and West Howellsville, and Saddletree.

Lacy Cummings, an at-large representative on the LREMC board, defeated two challengers. Cummings got 526 votes; Steve Strickland, who was nominated during the annual meeting, got 119; and petition candidate Carl Branch got 49.

Alton V. Dudley of District 6, the eastern half of Hoke Couonty, was unopposed. He got 689 votes. Lumbee River EMC, a rural electric cooperative, provides electricity to nearly 24,000 homes and businesses in Robeson, Scotland, Hoke and Cumberland counties. One way its members (customers) exercise their ownership of the business is at the annual meeting. Registered members vote for candidates to the 12-member LREMC board, which formulates policies and procedures for the co-op. Four seats are up for election each year.

More than 1,100 people attended this year's annual meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 15. There were 845 registered members.

Reports were given by board chairman Gus Bullard and General Manager Ronnie Hunt, who noted that Lumbee River EMC cut its costs this past year to absorb an 11.13 percent increase in the price of wholesale electric power from Carolina Power and Light Company.

The meeting also included a question-and-answer session for members, entertainment by cloggers, a singer, a gospel group and a ventriloquist, and a drawing for

DIET FACTS & FALLACIES

GIVE YOUR CHILD THE GIFT OF GOOD HEALTH

Are you using nutri-tionally sound judgment in helping your child develop good eating habits? Current research indicates that you, as a parent, may have the greatest influence over whether your child becomes overweight. Those eating preferences and habits, which your child learns from you, will carry into his adulthood, Realize that what your child may eat will depend upon his size and his tendency to gain weight. You can help control between-meal snacks by providing milk, juices and fresh fruits instead of sweets. Make meals a special time where the whole family can sit down, relax and share the day's events. Allow eating only at the table, not in front of the televisions
