SITTING ON THE FENCE

Are you a fence sitting Kiwanian? On January the first a new set of officers, board members and committees will take office in your club. These are the active, hustling members of the organization who will, if necessary, carry the club on their shoulders the coming year.

Whether or not they must, depends on whether you are simply going to sit on the fence as an interested spectator of what they do, what the program committee produces for your entertainment, and how well the officers and board function.

Are you merely a spectator sitting on the fence watching the Kiwanian procession go by? The success of a Kiwanian club depends on the sense of personal responsibility of the individual members. The joy of being a Kiwanian is tied up in this same sense of responsibility. It is not your God given right to sit on the fence in critical judgment of what your fellow Kiwanians are doing. There is no office as observer in Kiwanis. It is an organization in which every man has a part.

The only right you have in Kiwanis is the right to work. If you have been left off the committees, if you have not had your job assigned to you, go right to the president or appear before the board and demand in the name of right and justice that you be given a chance to do your part.

If you do, you will get the surprise of your life! They will welcome you as the father did the prodigal son. They will kill the fatted calf and feed you veal cutlets served with Kiwanis work sauce.

If they neglected to give you a job they insulted you. They thought you were a fence sitter. If you lose interest and drop out through inactivity, they will be sure of it. The only thing for you to do is walk right up to the captain's office and demand your Kiwanis rights!

UNDER-PRIVILEGED CHILD

It says in Ecclesiasticus, "He that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith." This is a good rule which works both ways, for he who fondles a honeysuckle will be perfumed thereby.

Kiwanis has come in for much glory and much praise for its work in the under-privileged child field. Much of our reputation has been built on the great appeal this activity has for the world. While this praise is well deserved, perhaps it would not be amiss to look at the reverse side of the picture and realize what the under-privileged child work has done for Kiwanis as an organization, and for those of us who have become deeply interested in it.

The First Lady of the United States bestowed her charming presence on one of our clubs recently and made a fine address to it because of this work. Recognition in high places has come to us through this activity. Two Presidents of the United States and many of the high officials of Canada have honored themselves and us by being members.

The other and larger benefit this activity has been to Kiwanis is the appeal this work has to thousands of men who have come into Kiwanis and stayed enthusiastically in Kiwanis because of it. These men have added lustre to Kiwanis and have done much for it.

The Under-Privileged Child Objective has accomplished every bit as much for the organization as the organization has done for the under-privileged children.
