

Lucy Hanes Chatham Club Began With But One Member; Now 153

(By JOHN SAGAR)

Inasmuch as such an institution as the Lucy Hanes Chatham Club should be a matter of great pride to every member of this community, whether they are directly connected with it or not, it is with considerable satisfaction that a short history of the club, its aims and what it has already achieved, is brought to readers of this newspaper.

In 1929 Miss Claudia Austin and Miss Lorena Kelly, both members of the Century church, of Winston-Salem, were discussing church welfare work in which both had had considerable experience. Miss Kelly told Miss Austin that she intended to start a welfare club among the girls at the Chatham Manufacturing Co. and asked Miss Austin if she would like to take charge of it. Miss Austin readily assented, so the matter was discussed with Thurmond Chatham, who offered to do everything in his power to further the idea. As a result, Miss Austin accepted a position in the Winston office where she could come in contact with the girls. The result was that after a few months the first meeting of the club was called and one member, Miss Betty Gentry, was enrolled. At the next meeting five more members enrolled and since that time the club has grown until now the Winston club alone numbers 60 members who meet every week in their club room at the Centenary church.

Mrs. Lucy Hanes Chatham took such a profound interest in the club and did so much to further its aims that it was decided with her permission that the club should be named after her, and probably only its members can fully realize how much her kind and sincere interest and help have meant to them.

Every week classes are conducted in cooking, sewing, art, interior decorating, English and music. Each class is in charge of an experienced teacher. Sports such as tennis, soft ball, volley ball and basket ball are encouraged, and the club even boasts of a riding school.

In 1932 the Lucy Hanes Chatham club was organized by Miss Austin in the Elkin mill, and has a membership of 93 girls. The club is run on the same lines as the Winston club and meets at the Methodist church each week. It selects a program committee each year; its meetings are conducted according to parliamentary law, and along educational and spiritual lines. Once a month lectures are given on various subjects by competent authorities, and camping trips and hikes are organized whenever the girls feel so inclined.

Miss Austin and the Lucy Hanes Chatham club are responsible for the starting of that excellent mill paper—The Chatham Blanketeer, and every reporter on its staff is a member of the club.

The purpose of the club as written into its by-laws are worthy of such an institution. They are: "To create a more friendly feeling among the girls working for Chatham Manufacturing Co., and to promote physical, mental and spiritual and social development among its members." With such aims as ably carried out as they have been and are being, it is no wonder that Mr. and Mrs. Chatham and all those connected with the Chatham Manufacturing Co., are intensely fond of the Lucy Hanes Chatham club, as it does much to develop the personality and character of young women, who, after all, form an important part of the foundation of the community and nation.

Miss Austin has worked hard on behalf of the club, but she insists that she is amply repaid by the fine spirit the girls have shown in availing themselves of the opportunities for their mental, spiritual, physical and social betterment.

BATTLESNAKE BITTEN PREACHER BETTER

A mountain preacher, of Sylva, twisted in agony but refusing medical aid, Friday night continued to pit his faith in God against a rattlesnake's venom and apparently he was winning. Although Albert Teesler still was seriously ill from the effects of letting the reptile strike him twice Sunday night as a demonstration to his congregation of the power of faith, the swelling of his body had diminished somewhat and he seemed definitely on the road to recovery.

MAY HAVE MESSAGE ON GAS SLASH

Without any word from his excellency on the subject, there is a "word of mouth" story going about the state capital that when Governor Ehringhaus gets back to Raleigh he will have something of great importance to tell the state relating to a reduction in gasoline prices.
