

REVIVAL TO BEGIN AT BETHEL SUNDAY

Rev. Isom Vestal Will Assist Pastor; Other News Notes

Ronda, Route 2, July 5.—The annual revival will begin here at Bethel Baptist church next Sunday evening. Rev. Isom Vestal, of the Fall Creek community, will assist the pastor, Rev. R. J. Pardue. Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock service communion will be held. Many visitors are expected and those who have gone to other places to reside, but their membership is still with this church. We are always glad to have them return and worship with us.

Several have donated to the fund that is being obtained to purchase new lamps for the church here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Melton and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morrison attended the home-coming at Friendship church, near Elkin, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stroud and son, Ray, stopped here a short while Sunday afternoon. They were en route to their home at Wilkesboro from Winston-Salem, where they had been to visit Mr. Stroud's brother, C. F. Stroud, who is receiving treatment at the Baptist hospital there. He is reported to be improving satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones Vanhoy and sons, Graham and Gaither, of near State Road, spent two days last week with Mrs. Vanhoy's mother, Mrs. W. A. Pardue, and family here.

Mrs. Fred Eldson and little son, Fred, Jr., of Yadkinville, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Green, for a few days. This is little Fred's first visit to his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ferlazzo, of Winston-Salem accompanied little Misses Pauline and Lola Morrison to their home here last Sunday. They have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ferlazzo for the past two weeks at their home on South Main street.

Gayle Graham and Bobbie Harris of Elkin, spent last Friday night here with Kenneth Stroud. It is always a delightful trip for these boys to come to the farm with their grandfather, R. L. Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pardue and family had as their guests last week her granddaughter, Little Miss Mary Woodruff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Woodruff, of near Boonville.

The Story of the Constitution

by CALER JOHNSON

THE SEED FROM WHICH GREW THE CONSTITUTION

Somehow the states struggled through the first five years of the Revolution under their loose and ineffective alliance, centering in the Continental Congress. In the meantime, plans for a permanent government were being debated. Such a plan had been drawn up in 1776, immediately after the signing of the Declaration of Independence. This plan was embodied in the Articles of Confederation.

The Articles of Confederation were ratified by the thirteen states in 1781. The smaller states, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware, had held back, fearing that the other states, all of whom claimed territorial rights extending westward to the Mississippi River, would dominate by their mere size. Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, both of the Carolinas and Georgia, at last agreed to let their westward lands be carved up into new states. The others then ratified the Articles of Confederation.

Under this new form of government each State remained completely independent. Congress could act only on:

1. Declaring war or peace, and superintending the conduct of war.
2. Building a navy.
3. Controlling diplomatic relations.
4. Coining money and emitting bills of credit.
5. Establishing Post Offices.
6. Regulating trade with the Indians.
7. Adjusting boundary disputes between the States.

There was no executive authority, no Federal judicial system. The Congress could, if it desired to, set up a court of appeal. No vote could be carried in the Congress without the assent of a majority of state delegations. On all important measures the votes of nine states were required.

This plan did not bring about national unity. When the War of the Revolution ended, in 1783, the State of Great Britain signed a treaty recognizing each of her former American Colonies as an independent State, but gave no recognition to the United States as a nation.

In 1784 the states claiming Western lands, ceded 430,000 square miles, lying north of the Ohio River, to the Congress. (This Northwest Territory later became the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.) In the meantime, however, the government under the Article of Confederation had practically collapsed. The Congress in 1786 reported the Federation "broke," with a debt of $42,000,000 and no credit.

The States had to work out their own problems. Since there was no Federal regulation of commerce between the States, each began to set up protective restrictions against goods coming in from other states. This confused inter-state commerce situation was the seed from which grew the Constitution and our Federal Government.

In 1785 the States of Maryland and Virginia appointed delegates to work out a plan of regulating commerce on Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac River. The delegates met at the home of General George Washington at Mount Vernon, Virginia. They came to a satisfactory agreement, and proposed a meeting of commissioners from all the States to work out a system of regulating commerce between all of them.

A convention was called to meet in 1786 at Annapolis. Only five states sent commissioners. The Annapolis convention asked the Congress to send commissioners to a convention in Philadelphia the following Spring, "for the sole and express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation."

The call was made, and on May 25, 1787, fifty-five delegates, representing all the thirteen States, met in the hall, under the shadow of the Liberty Bell, in which the Declaration of Independence had been signed eleven years earlier, and drew up the document upon which our Federal Government rests and from which it derives its powers, the Constitution of the United States of America.
