"Your telegram has been referred to the attorney-general and I suggest that you place before him whatever definitely provable facts substantiate your statement."

It was signed "M. H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to the President."

TOBACCO FARMERS PROTEST PRICES AS MARKET OPENS

Granville Growers Ask Governor To Close Markets

AVERAGE PRICE $18

When opening prices on middle belt tobacco markets proved unsatisfactory Tuesday farmers gathered at noon in the Granville county courthouse at Oxford and registered a formal protest.

Prices throughout the state meanwhile remained at their approximate levels for the current season.

T. G. Currin, a member of the state board of agriculture, presided over the Oxford meeting. The growers in attendance voted unanimously to request Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus to close markets until prices are adjusted.

The group urged that a mass meeting be called at Raleigh Thursday. It was decided to ask Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and J. B. Hutson, tobacco director of the agricultural adjustment administration, to attend the meeting.

The Governor Tuesday visited several Eastern North Carolina markets and participated in a radio broadcast from a Kinston warehouse. Representative J. H. Kerr, W. A. Graham, state commissioner of agriculture, and I. O. Schaub, head of the North Carolina State College agriculture extension department, also were at the Kinston meeting.

At Oxford, Tuesday's prices ranged from 5 to 42 cents per pound, averaging an estimated $18 per hundred. Approximately 600,000 of the 1,000,000 pounds on warehouse floors were sold. Last year's opening day price average at the market was $27.39.

The largest break in the market's history was registered at Carthage, where two warehouses sold approximately 250,000 pounds. Prices averaged "between $14 and $19 per hundred."

Growers who carried their weed to Durham sold approximately 600,000 pounds of the 1,500,000 on hand. The price average was estimated unofficially at $20. Henderson reported nearly a million pounds averaging $14 to $15. A similar price was reported at Warrenton where 300,000 pounds of leaf was on warehouse floors.
