ers who are not members of the club, but who attended with their sons and by boys who were present as guests of club members who have no sons of their own. Dr. Jenkins urged the fathers to make pals of their boys; to take time to interest themselves in the activities and outdoor sports craved by every normal youth, and to encourage them in the pursuit of the phases of scout craft which develops the native talents of youth as does no other diversion.

During the course of his talk the speaker mentioned the three years he spent in Elkin as the three happiest of his life. He stated he was glad he became interested in boys' work and expressed his belief that Boy Scout work will bring a larger return than any other investment.

He quoted Theodore Roosevelt to tell the boys, "If you want to be good citizens, first of all be good boys." Not the goody, goody type, but real boys.

Earl James, president of the Kiwanis Club, presided over the meeting. J. Mark McAdams acted as program chairman. Rufus Walters, past president of the Mt. Airy Kiwanis Club, was an out-of-town guest.
