

Woodhouse Puts Another Yadkin Bill In Hopper

Raleigh, March 6.—Democrat Frank Woodhouse tonight introduced a bill at the request of his Republican predecessor, Jeter L. Haynes.

The bill would repeal the application to Yadkin of a Hyde county law designed to stop chicken thefts.

Application to Yadkin was obtained in a bill introduced by Republican Representative Haynes in 1937 when an epidemic of chicken thefts was said to be sweeping Yadkin.

The Hyde county law forbids buying poultry for resale between sundown and sunup and also requires the buyers to keep records of all purchases made, with descriptions of the fowl purchased and the seller.

Woodhouse's repealer, house bill No. 601, was referred to house agriculture committee.

THURMOND

Miss Pauline Moody has returned home from a short visit with her brother in Winston-Salem.

Mr. Raymond Woodruff of Winston-Salem visited his grandparents here last week-end.

We are glad to note of the improvement of Mrs. Paul Norman who returned home last week from the Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Key and little son, Frankie, of State Road visited Lavaude Simmons here Sunday.

This community as a whole is saddened and grieved at the death of DeWitt Royall of State Road. Before moving to State Road Mr. Royall was a neighbor and resident of here. Many friends from here attended his funeral services which were held at Mountain Park Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cockerham visited Mr. and Mrs. Phoy Simmons and family here Sunday.

Miss Sallie Norman of Danville, Va., is spending some time here with her mother.

Due to the beautiful weather last Sunday we are glad to note of such a good crowd out for Sunday school. Everybody come back next Sunday and bring your friends.

We are sorry to note of so much sickness about through this community. But we hope for all those on the sick list a very speedy recovery.

COOL SPRINGS

We were glad for the number of 126 that was present Sunday. A census of the Cool Springs district is being made to determine our exact number and I fear we can't feel proud of our work here when that is finished, but at least we'll know how we stand.

Prayer service was held at the home of Paul Newman the past Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Harris returned home Sunday from a week's visit with their daughter, Mrs. Leonard Hanes, of State Road.

Misses Lillie Adams and Carlie Simmons and Messrs. Maynard Harris, Junior Eudy and Todd Cress of Salisbury, spent the week-end visiting relatives here and near Independence, Va.

The measles and mumps epidemic is slowing some here now. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pettyjohn visited "Aunt Prudie" Pettyjohn Sunday afternoon.

Misses Dessere Newman and Ruby Raye Holbrook visited with Miss Edna Couch Sunday evening, she having just returned home from the hospital. We are hoping for her a speedy recovery.

Pleasant Ridge

We had an attendance of 107 at Sunday school Sunday morning. A number of visitors were present. Those who do not attend Sunday school at another church are cordially invited to come to our church.

There are quite a number in our community confined to their homes by illness. Thurmond Carter is quite sick with flu.

Wesley Carter underwent an operation at Hugh Chatham hospital, Elkin, Wednesday. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Ivan Luffman is improving from a serious illness, we are glad to note.

Reason

A farmer was visiting a Mexican settlement after some years' absence.

Talking to an old friend on a ranch, he said, "So old Buff's gone. Did you miss him?" "No," replied the other, "that's why he's gone, I never miss."

VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON

The Man Who Ate Shoestrings—And Liked Them

I once talked for three hours with a man who had spent eleven years up beyond the Arctic Circle; and during six years of that time, he had lived on nothing but meat and water. The man is Stefansson—a splendid, blonde Norseman, with the blood of the old Vikings coursing through his veins.

Stefansson was the first explorer who ever dared to venture out on the desolate ice of the Arctic Ocean, without food or fuel, and try to live on the game that he shot.

When he first suggested such a thing, the experts told him he was crazy, and the Eskimos warned him that he would starve to death. But would he? He wasn't so sure. He was a scientist and he wanted the facts. So he and two of his companions took guns and ammunition and went out and lived for months on cakes of ice, floating around in the Arctic Ocean.

During the first forty days on the ice, they ate all the food they had brought with them. From that time on, they ate nothing except the seals and polar bears that they shot.

How did they get their drinking water? Well, they made a fire out of blubber, which is the fat on seals; and with this fire, they melted sea ice and got fresh water.

And here is the astonishing part of the story: Stefansson and his men traveled seven hundred miles over the shifting ice, and instead of dying from starvation, as the experts had said they would, they gained several pounds and didn't miss a single meal in ninety-seven days!

Stefansson said they would have died if they had eaten nothing but lean meat, but they were all right so long as they ate all the fat meat they wanted, along with the lean.

Sometimes they ate their meat raw, but they usually cooked it, using blubber for fuel. Sometimes they cut the hair off a bear-hide and used the hair for fuel.

Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf? Well, Stefansson isn't. He says he has eaten dozens of big, bad wolves. He said he would rather have a nice piece of roast wolf than roast veal.

Stefansson told me that his men tried eating wild ducks, wild geese, partridges and owls. Then they took a vote on which one they liked best, and most of them said they would rather have owl than wild ducks or partridges.

He himself has even eaten the rawhide strings on his snow shoes. He believes that a piece of boiled, fresh rawhide isn't bad; it tastes something like pigs' feet. He says it is a good idea to wear skin clothing in the Far North instead of woolen clothes; because if you get too hungry, you can eat your rawhide clothes.

SHADY GROVE

There was a good attendance at church Sunday, with 111 present.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winters had as their Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Odell Winters.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wagoner spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mostella.

Misses Corene and Marie Mostella had as their Sunday guest Miss Mary Winters.

Mr. Odell Winters and Harvey went to Winston-Salem Tuesday on business.

The cow tree grows in Venezuela. From a slit in bark the "milk" flows out freely and has a sweet and pleasant taste.
