1940 AUTO TAGS WILL REVERSE COLOR SCHEME

Hardly has the memory of the hard-earned folding money paid by motorists for their 1939 license tags faded than the state announces the color scheme of the tags for 1940.

Nineteen-forty's tag will be the 1939 tag in reverse, as far as color goes. This year the plates sport aluminum figures on a maroon background. Next year, motor vehicle officials have announced, the tags will have maroon numbers on an aluminum background.

Nobody likes anybody who has achieved complete economic independence.

WAKE UP AND LIVE

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

If you are the possessor of a very vivid imagination, you probably can practice with no more than the clue in the sentence: Act as if it were impossible to fail. If you are not, or if you have been badly hurt by failure, there may be some difficulty in beginning to act effectively, but there need not be very much.

To get at it more slowly, the idea is just this: Instead of starting wherever you are, take time first to "make up" your state of mind, the mental condition in which you are going to work.

You first give yourself a model. Everyone has had a taste of success in some line, perhaps in a very minor matter. Think back to it. What you want to recapture is the state of mind in which you once succeeded.

Be careful, now; you do not want to overshoot the mark. Don't jump ahead into the elation which followed the success itself. Just recapture the steady, confident feeling that was yours when you knew the fact that was demanded of you, when you realized that you could do the thing that was necessary, that what you were about to do was well within your powers.

Now transfer in imagination that success-sequence to the work in hand. If you were absolutely certain that everything about the present work would go as smoothly as everything went when you succeeded in the past, if you knew that what you are beginning would certainly go well, from the moment you begin till the moment of the work's ultimate reception, how would you feel? What is the state of mind you would be in as you launch out into it?

Fix your attention on that, for that is to be your working frame of mind. Until you can reach it, refuse to begin; but insist to yourself on reaching it as soon as possible.

When you have found the mood hold it steadily for a while, as if waiting for a word of command. All at once you will feel a release of energy. You have received from yourself your working-orders, and you can begin. You will see that you no longer have to push yourself to do the work; all your energy is free to push the work alone.

Next, work till you feel the unmistakable onset of true fatigue. True fatigue. The early flagging of attention will be only the old state of mind trying to creep in once more when your attention is elsewhere. If that happens, stop a second and say to yourself, "No. That is the way I will not think!" Clear out the impulse entirely, and go on working.

When your muscles and your mind honestly protest that they have done all they should do for the time, stop and find some relaxation.

When the time for relaxation comes you will find that you get the full joy of playing at last.

There are some persons who have been so badly bruised that, although any unwarrantable indulgence towards oneself should be guarded against, it may be necessary to begin this system by practicing it only for a short time each day, and in some secondary desire.

GRAND OLE OPRY GROUP AT LYRIC HERE TODAY

Bringing all of the fun, flavor and appeal of the famous Saturday night broadcast of the WSM Grand Ole Opry, Roy Acuff and His Smoky Mountain Boys with Tiny will appear in person at the Lyric theatre here today (Thursday).

Right from the picturesque Smoky Mountains of Tennessee this popular group joined the Grand Ole Opry over a year ago and immediately won the hearts of thousands of radio listeners from coast to coast. Roy Acuff is known as radio's fastest fiddler and he acts as master of ceremonies of the show. Rachel is the little girl with the big banjo. She sings and plays much to the delight of every audience. Red Jones, the bass fiddler, furnishes the comedy as he cuts capers with his bull fiddle. Clell and Jess are featured on standard and Hawaiian guitar numbers.
