

LOANS DESIGNED TO AID FARMERS

Should Begin Next Year's Farm Plans Now, County Supervisor Says

IS PART OF FSA PLAN

"In a great many cases farmers in Surry and Yadkin counties eligible for the credit and farming advice which the Farm Security Administration has to offer will want to start a farming program which gradually will build up the land, so that the farm may become a profitable enterprise," C. O. Pickle, of Dobson, county FSA supervisor, said Tuesday.

The soil improvement and farm improvement phase of FSA's rehabilitation program will be emphasized during the balance of this year, according to Mr. Pickle.

"A sound farm plan should be worked out for each individual farm, and it is not too soon for farmers planning to take advantage of this service for next year to begin making their applications."

Eligible farmers should consult with Mr. Pickle, who may be able to furnish credit and to assist in working out farm plans for gradual improvement of their farms.

Loans can be made for purchase of lime, phosphate, seed for cover crops, workstock, livestock, farm implements, fencing for pastures, minor repairs to farm buildings and other items necessary in a sound farming program.

"When the farmer is a renter, a satisfactory lease is necessary for both tenant and landlord to get the fullest benefit from this program," Mr. Pickle said. "A rental agreement covering a period of years, or one with renewal clauses is preferable."

"The credit and advice offered by the Farm Security Administration is not for the purpose of promoting a highly specialized type of cash farming, but rather for the purpose of enabling the farmer to work out and follow a long range, live-at-home farm plan, embracing the production of food for the family, feed for the livestock, adequate cash for farm and family necessities and repaying the loan," he pointed out.

"Loans for non-recoverable goods, as seed and fertilizer, must be repaid in one year, but a longer term is allowed for that part of the loan which goes to purchase lime, phosphate, livestock and farming equipment, also for repairs of a permanent nature," he said.

STORE OFFERS NEW SERVICE

Hinshaw Cash Hardware Co. Adds Laundry Home Service Dept.

FREE TO HOUSEWIVES

The Hinshaw Cash Hardware company, of this city, has just announced the addition to their business of a laundry home service department, and Charles H. Williams, of the store personnel, has just returned from Charlotte where he took an extensive training course on laundry problems of the home under the direction of Miss Faith Richards, of Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., of South Bend, Indiana.

Mr. Williams was instructed very thoroughly in the different methods of soil removable, stain removable, laundering of different types of clothing, such as cottons, silks and woolsens and particularly the laundering of such things as blankets, baby clothing and other articles about which there has been very little information given to the home maker.

Mr. Hinshaw, of the Hinshaw Cash Hardware company, says that he is very much pleased to be able to offer to his customers and friends a service of this nature, which he has felt in his experience has been necessary and which has never been available to the appliance dealer in the past.

This service will be free and no obligation will be attached, and Mr. Hinshaw invites all housewives of this territory to get in touch with their store, and they shall be glad to give them any assistance in their laundry problems which they need.
