Boonville Methodist Missionary Society Meets

The Woman's Missionary society of Boonville Methodist church met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. T. L. Hayes. An interesting program centering around the "Life of Miss Belle Bennett," was presented.

The program opened with a hymn followed by devotionals by Mrs. F. E. Hurt. Miss Betty Hendricks gave the history of Miss Bennett's life and her accomplishments. She revealed that Miss Bennett was one of the foremost, if not the foremost leader of the woman's movement in the Methodist church. She did probably more than any other woman in establishing the various phases of the Methodist work among women. She established the first Methodist church ever founded in South America. She founded at least one college in the United States — Scarlett College in Memphis, Tenn., and one in South America. Miss Hendricks stated that Miss Bennett died at the age of 80.

After the program Mrs. T. L. Hayes, the hostess, served refreshments to those present.

Young Woman's Missionary Society Meets

The Young Woman's Missionary Society of Boonville Baptist church met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Hilton Jones.

After the program a short business session was held. The secretary, Mrs. George Williams, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. A report on the social service work done by the group was given by Mrs. J. R. Walker. One needy family was aided during the Christmas holidays.

Following the business session refreshments were served by the hostess.

Much Building In Boonville During 1939

There has been more building going on in the town of Boonville during the past year than at any other similar period of time in a great many years. Four new houses have gone up in this period, and two others are under construction at the present time. Those who have built homes during the past year are Charlie Williams, G. N. Dobbins, Paul Spear and R. A. Jessup. Roy Reece has completed most of the outside work on a new dwelling on the Elkin highway, while J. J. Coram is just starting a five-room structure on the Crutchfield Road.

There are several others that are contemplating building in the spring. Among these are Frank Woodhouse and Joe Fleming. R. M. Fletcher has also completed a new garage on the Woodhouse lot near the school building.

Besides the building activity that has been evident in Boonville during the past year, there have been several transfers of real estate. Harvey Gentry traded for and moved into the home that formerly belonged to Joe Fleming; Joe Fleming traded for lots belonging to Roy Reece and W. E. Frye, and plans to erect a dwelling on the lot between Mr. Frye's residence and Mock's Service Station. Albert Martin also purchased a lot belonging to Mrs. Claudia Moxley, and may build on it sometime in the near future.

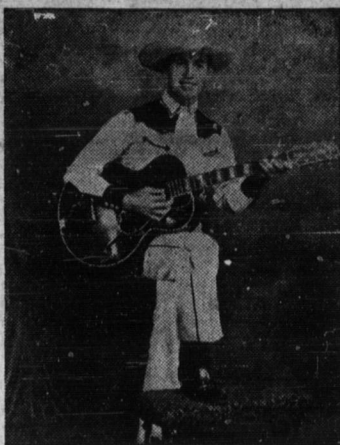

Boonville is favorably located eight miles east of Elkin, and 30 miles from Winston-Salem. There are hard surface roads connecting the town with towns in every direction. For several years there haven't been any empty houses in the town, and recently since the Chatham Manufacturing Company's contemplated removal of the finish department to Elkin, there has been a greater demand for houses than ever. The nearness of Boonville to Elkin has helped greatly to increase this demand for living quarters here. It will not be surprising to see many new dwellings go up here within the next year.

In February, the town of Boonville will vote on the public water and sewer system. Should this vote carry, it will greatly increase the desirability of the town as a residential section.

PUSH SEARCH FOR TEACHER

Drowning Victim at Key West May Be A. J. Pardue of Roaring River

Hamlet, Jan. 24—The search for A. J. Pardue, Laurel Hill school teacher, who has been missing since he left December 19 for his home in Roaring River to spend the Christmas holidays with his family, turned southward to Key West, Fla., when members of the Pardue family learned that the body of a man had been found in a pool there, bound hand and foot, and swollen almost beyond recognition.

Pardue's plan when he left Laurel Hill was to stop over with friends in Greensboro for a few days and proceed to Roaring River. When he failed to show up at the home on Christmas Day, a search was made in the vicinity of Hamlet, Laurinburg, and Laurel Hill in an effort to secure some clue. However, these efforts produced nothing. The family still refused to give up hope and expressed the opinion that he possibly changed his plans and went elsewhere for his mid-year vacation, and would return to his classes on January 1. He failed to do this and a brother, Eugene Pardue, instructor at the University of North Carolina, spent some time around Laurel Hill trying to get a line on the whereabouts of the missing man but could not find trace of him or his automobile, a 1937 Dodge sedan.

Hamlet police officials received a message from authorities at Key West last Thursday that Henry Hatch, former man who was working in Florida, had been found drowned in a pool there. However, it was later discovered that this was a case of mistaken identity as Hatch was found to have enlisted in the army on January 7.

Members of the Pardue family called at the Hatch residence and admitted that there was a striking resemblance around the forehead. They expressed fear that the drowned man found in the Florida pool might be their son.

Federal and State authorities were notified and are working on the case.

WAR

The war has not yet appreciably stimulated United States export trade, and as a result, export figures for last year show a decrease, while imports increased.
