J. Lee Campbell, Richard Campbell, Winona Fleming, Eugene Crissman, Curtis Hobson, Harold Stinson, Irene Gwyn, Frances Anne Fleming, Thurmond Brown, C. K. Hurt, Dorothy Moxley, Ruth Johnson, Lola Mae Campbell and Fred Coram.

Boonville Methodist Women Meet With Mrs. Johnson

The Young Ladies Missionary society of Boonville Methodist church met with Mrs. George Williams Wednesday evening. Mrs. Foster Matthews was in charge of the program, the topic for discussion being "Living Creatively." The program was opened with a hymn by the entire group.

Call to worship was given and prayer was rendered. Mrs. Matthews gave a few remarks regarding the program. Others on the program were: Mrs. Ralph Fletcher, who gave the poem, "Creation of Man"; Misses Grace Hayes and Frances Thomas, who gave the "Life of Miss Thoburn, Our First Methodist Woman Missionary"; Mrs. Hilton Jones, who rendered the poem, "Because of Thy Great Beauty." The program closed with a song and prayer.

A short business session was held. One new member was welcomed into the society, Miss Baker. The roll call was heard, items of interest were discussed.

After the business session the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Howard Woodruff, served refreshments carrying out the Easter motif to the following: Misses Grace Hayes and Frances Thomas, Mrs. Ralph Fletcher, Mrs. Fred Key, Mrs. Foster Matthews, Mrs. Hilton Jones and Mrs. Baker.

Womanless Wedding to Be Given at Fall Creek School

A "Womanless Wedding" will be presented by the teachers and patrons of Fall Creek school Saturday night, March 30. The program will begin at 8 o'clock. This is the first such play to be given by this school, and indications are that a large crowd will be in attendance. The cast includes about forty people, most of whom are patrons of the school.

One of the outstanding features of the program will be the costuming of the entire cast. The bride and groom will be Paul Fleming and Ralph McCollum. Mr. Fleming will make a bride of generous proportions, since he weighs close to 250 pounds. Mr. McCollum, on the other hand, will weigh a mere 110 pounds, and is hardly more than five feet tall. The bride will be dressed in full wedding costume, with long train and twin trainbearers carrying her train. D. W. Hobson will give the bride away.

Much comic action and many wisecracks will go along with the farce wedding.

James Watt for whom the watt of electricity was named, invented the steam engine fully fifty years before the electrical age was well begun.
