NEW BUILDING IS NOW READY

Modern Apartment House on Church Street Will House 12 Families

ALL UNITS ARE RENTED

The Lewis Apartments, newly constructed apartment building on Church street, are now ready for occupancy, several families having already moved in.

This modern new building is of brick construction and contains three floors and basement. Four apartments are located on each floor, each apartment being made up of living room, bedroom, kitchen, dinette and bath. The bathrooms are equipped with both tub and shower.

The building has been constructed in compliance with the state building code, and in many respects exceeds specifications of the code, Bruce Lewis, one of the owners, stated. It is modern in every respect, he said.

Kitchens in all apartments are equipped with Philco refrigerators and Quality electric ranges, purchased here through Hayes & Speas, local distributors. A majority of the building material used in the structure was also supplied by a local firm, the Elkin Lumber and Manufacturing Company.

All apartments have been rented, and the occupants are as follows: First floor—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Poore, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Long and Mr. and Mrs. Grady Anderson.

Second floor—Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Jolley, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Shamel, and Mr. and Mrs. Cooper.

Third floor—Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Redmond, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harris, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Van Dillon, Jr.

One apartment on the second floor and one on the third have been rented, but occupants have not been announced.

Crying Works

The young married couple had been quarrelling, and the wife had retreated to her room, slamming the door behind her and maintaining an audible snuffle. After a quarter of an hour she summoned the maid and inquired: "Is my husband still in his room?"

Maid—Yes, ma'am.
Wife—Then sit here and cry for a few minutes. I'm so tired I must take a little rest.

Never Get Caught

Boogy—You know, of course, that girls may be divided into two classes—the goods and the bads?
Woogy—Certainly, but what of it?
Boogy—Oh, nothing; only some fellows never seem to get caught with the goods.

Jobs Were Scarce Then, Too

A few years ago a young man was going to do what thousands upon thousands of boys and girls will do this spring. Graduate from college! And he wanted a job when he got out. This is how he went about getting it.

His name was George H. Bucher. He was born in Sunbury, Pa.

He wanted to be an electrical engineer, and after graduating from the high school in Sunbury, went to Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. It is the custom of engineering companies to go to such technical schools and select the best men in the class to work for them after graduation. Three of the big electrical companies came to this school and made their selections. But George H. Bucher was not among those selected. He was desperately disappointed, but he was going to be an electrical engineer and nothing under high heaven could stop him.

The students who had been selected hung their diplomas on their parlor walls and went off to their jobs. Young George Bucher started out to get a job. He selected the electrical company he wanted to work for. He knew no one connected with the company.

The only way was to write to them. He worked out a letter telling them the kind of work he was fitted to do and how he could help them. Then he added his telephone number, put it into the mail, and sat down to wait for the call. A week passed. No call.

He wrote another letter, adding more facts, enclosed a carbon copy of the first letter, and again sat down to wait. No call. He wrote a third letter, enclosed a carbon copy of letter number 2. No answer.

Meantime, he kept on studying and learning about the electrical business. He wrote another letter telling them this. No answer.

During the summer he wrote eight letters.

Finally an answer did come. "Come for an interview," it said; and the young college graduate galloped in as fast as he could.

"Well, we've got a job for you," said the employment manager. Young Bucher's face beamed. At last! "It's winding coils. Pays 18 cents an hour."

His face fell. A college graduate. Eighteen cents an hour. Then he perked up. "I'll take it." He worked hard, devoting his time to learning the business. Finally he was taken out of overalls and given a clerk's job in the export department. Meantime he studied the business; not merely his department but all departments, and especially the ones above him.

Of course a man like that is bound to succeed. He did. The former coil-winder is now president of one of the largest electrical manufacturing companies on earth: Westinghouse.

If you have a hard time getting a job, remember that George H. Bucher had similar difficulties. Why not do as he did; study and persist and take any job you can get, no matter how small the pay. Take it and prepare yourself for something better.
