YADKIN RIVER CLAIMS YOUTH

15-Year-Old Lee Church Drowns Near Crutchfield Thursday Afternoon

BODY IS RECOVERED

The body of Lee Church, 15, son of G. H. Church, of Rural Hall Road, Winston-Salem, was fished from the muddy Yadkin river last Thursday evening about 7 o'clock, six hours after he had entered the river at Crutchfield to recover a workman's tool, dropped from the bridge under construction there, and was carried down stream by the swift current.

The boy's body was recovered by Prather Stanley, of Surry, following a continuous search all afternoon by numerous men and boys, who used both rowboats and motorboats. It was found about 400 yards down river from where he went in.

Young Church was residing near Crutchfield with Clarence Webb, a farmer, having made his home there for several months. It was while he and the Webb children were resting following dinner, that the boy waded into the stream.

Caught by the swift surge of water, he was rapidly carried down stream. Not a strong swimmer, he was unable to cope with the swift current, and drowned almost before his plight became known.

The youngster attended Boonville school as a seventh grade student and prior to last year attended Rural Hall school.

Surviving are the father, three sisters and one brother.
