

900 FAMILIES TO BE SERVED

New REA Lines Will Be in Operation Within Next 60 to 90 Days

TO SERVE 4 COUNTIES

More than 900 farm families in Surry, Yadkin, Forsyth and Stokes counties will have electric lights and power and the conveniences that go with them within the next sixty to ninety days, according to plans of the Surry-Yadkin Electric Membership Corporation, which perfected its organization at a meeting held at Dobson.

The electric power will be carried to the more than 900 farm families in the four counties along 229 miles of main power lines, which are to be constructed at once with funds provided for the corporation in a $250,000 loan made possible by the Rural Electrification Administration.

The Surry-Yadkin Electric Membership Corporation was formed, and the outlets for power have been signed up, through the efforts of a group of farm leaders from the four Northwest Carolina counties. Officers of the group include John Austin Tilley, of Pilot Mountain, Route 2, president; G. T. Dorse, of Lewisville, Route 1, vice-president; N. P. Bryant, of Yadkinville, secretary; and S. A. Holder, of Mount Airy, Route 1, treasurer. The board of directors includes these officers and five other leaders. The other directors are J. S. Key, of Mount Airy, Route 4; W. L. Smith, of Mount Airy, Route 2; Joe Pendry, of Boonville; H. W. Doub, of East Bend; and W. L. White, of Elkin, Route 1.

The lower end of the long power line will start in the West Bend section of Forsyth county, crossing the river from there into Yadkin county to serve residents of the East Bend, Donaha, Richmond Hill, Deep Creek Friends Church, Randolph, Swain's Baptist Church and Ireland Town communities, finally leaving Yadkin county at the Limerock near Rockford. The new REA line will serve widely-scattered communities in Surry county, serving part of the Copeland section and then extending near the New Home Christian Church, where it branches into two lines. One line will extend past Dobson into the Salem Fork, Union Cross, Dobbin's Mill and Mulberry sections, while the other extends into the Little Mountain section above Union Church, where it branches once more.

The upper end of the line in Surry county will stretch across the Mount Airy-Dobson highway near White Plains, then through the Pine Ridge section into the Beamer territory on the old Lowgap Road, on to the Virginia line, back down to Oak Grove and then from the old Booker School over to the Piper's Gap and Hopper's Ridge roads.

The main line from the Little Mountain section will extend through Ararat to Long Hill, crossing the Mount Airy-Pilot Mountain highway at the home of A. S. Thomas, and extending through the Cooke's School section and the old Hill and Love School community. From the Hill and Love section the line will extend across the Mount Airy-Westfield highway near the home of P. H. Jessup and on through the Albion community, crossing over into Stokes county into the Asbury community and extending from there past the Union Mill into the Collinstown and Overy sections.

The officers and directors of the new corporation have employed Attorney Frank Freeman, of Dobson, as legal advisor, and Robert Burrus, of Rockford, as superintendent of operations. The attorney will be on a part-time basis, while the only full-time employees will be the superintendent, an office assistant, a head linesman and assistant linesman. Main offices will be located at Dobson.

Each consumer on the line is to rate as a stockholder, with the net profits from the business to retire the REA loan of $250,000. The power for the lines will be purchased wholesale by the corporation from the Duke Power Company, which will install a special sub-station at Long Hill between Mount Airy and Pilot Mountain. Power rates to consumers are planned to conform as nearly as possible to existing power rates.

The actual construction of the lines is to get under way with the staking of poles within the next two weeks, and the officers and directors stated this week that they hoped to have the lines complete and the power going into the more than 900 homes within sixty to ninety days. Approximately 350 other homes are expected to be added by the time the lines are ready.
