Plans Mapped For Assisting Flood Victims

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—A conference of agricultural and welfare agency representatives today laid plans to rehabilitate flood-stricken families in western North Carolina.

Arrangements were made to offer assistance immediately to the mountain section, with the understanding that seed and feed loans, WPA projects, and replacement of livestock and equipment will be extended to eastern North Carolina when families are able to return to their farms and the full extent of the damage is known.

Dean I. O. Schaub, director of North Carolina State College Extension service, called the conference and presented reports from county agents in 20 western and northwestern counties, indicating that more than 5,000 farm families in that area will need help.

County Agents and AAA committeemen are to be enlisted to certify families needing assistance in rural areas. Emergency cases will be referred to county welfare departments, which will provide food and clothing from the Surplus Commodities corporation and register farmers for WPA employment.

The Farm Security Administration and the emergency corps and feed loan division will offer financial assistance in long-time rehabilitation.

Most of the counties said the most urgent needs are seed, forage, and grain, or the chance to earn money to obtain these farm commodities. Corn and hay losses were the heaviest throughout the western region.

In addition to the pledges of assistance from agencies represented at the meeting, the conference delegated Dean Schaub to investigate the possibilities of securing aid from the Disaster Loan corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Schaub has also appealed to the WPA and the Highway department for immediate works projects, so that farm families may earn money with which to buy seed and feed.

Counties reporting the most losses, and the number of families needing assistance in each are: Caldwell, 500; Henderson, 500; Burke, 400; Watauga, 550; Yancey, 50; Yadkin, 300; Surry, 200; Jackson, 100; McDowell, 15; Rutherford, 20 to 40; Polk, 25; Davie, 100; Avery, 400; Alexander, 100; Alleghany, 50. Reports from Ashe, Wilkes, Stokes and possibly other counties were expected to swell the list of needy families to 5,000.

Fred Shannon, Jr., of Pineville, W. Va., are visiting here this week.

Dots—What's the matter with you?
Eleanor—I'm terribly worried. I wrote Jack in my last letter to forget that I had told him I didn't mean to reconsider my decision about not changing my mind, and he seems to have misunderstood me.
