

BOONVILLE FAIR IS BIG SUCCESS

Annual Event Comes to Close Saturday Night with Presentation of Play

IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN

Boonville, Oct. 16—The 14th annual Boonville Agricultural Fair came to a close Saturday night with the presentation of a three-act comedy, "Lena Rivers," in the high school auditorium. The cast for this play, which many said was the best local talent play ever given at the school, was taken from both the school and community.

With the exception of the farm display exhibits, which were not up to past standards, practically all departments showed an improvement over past years. Especially in the culinary department, the needlework department, and in the individual farm products exhibits, there were fine displays.

Saturday proved the big day of the three-day event, as is usually the case. Saturday morning the draft horses, cattle, hogs, and dogs were entered and judged. This proved for many to be the finest feature of the fair since most of the people attending are rural folk, and therefore interested in farm life, primarily. There were approximately 125 head of cattle and horses shown. The draft animals proved greatly superior to the entries of past years. There were several draft teams of both horses and mules that would have made a fine showing at any stock show. Jim Brown had what was probably the finest team of animals exhibited. His team earlier in the fall took first prize at the Elkin fair over entries from Yadkin, Surry, Wilkes and Alleghany counties. They are iron grays, and are four years old.

In the afternoon, Saturday, the saddle horse show was held. This show proved highly entertaining, and attracted the largest crowd of any feature of the fair. There were ten classes, and competition in every class was keen, with some of the best horses in North Carolina and Southwestern Virginia competing. Some of the winners were Oscar Fowler in the fine harness class; E. L. Anderson, in the jumping class; D. C. Caudle, in the open plantation class; Drucilla Darr, in the ladies' horsemanship class; Arnie Shore, in the open plantation class for Yadkin county; O. T. Fowler, in the three-gaited class; Phil Horton, in the five-gaited class; and Miss Camille Brown, in the three-gaited "natural tall" class.

Thursday afternoon the annual Yadkin county track meet was run off, with Boonville emerging winner over other teams of the county. East Bend and Yadkinville tied for second place. Friday afternoon Boonville and county people were treated to the first football game in Yadkin county in ten years as Boonville and Copeland won a six-man game. Copeland won 26 to 18.
