Enough to Go Around

Now, for the first time in years, both farmers and manufacturers can work for the biggest possible yield without thinking about the market. This year they can sell all they can produce.

As things look now, this condition is due to keep up for some time, but we can't count on its lasting forever. Certainly nobody wants a prosperity built on war! So it's high time that everybody concerned—and that is everybody—gave some thought to keeping things running after the war.

You're busy, we know. So are we. The important thing right now is seeing that there's enough of everything to go around. But we've been devoting a little attention to the problems of the future, too. We feel that the people who have the producing job to do can contribute a lot to the solution of those problems.

And we hope that you, too, busy as you are with growing more food than this country's ever produced, will be turning these problems over in your mind. For if America's farmers and manufacturers, working together, can't find a way to keep the richest country on earth producing enough for everybody, and let the producers make a living in the process—if they can't, why then, who can? *General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. CAROLINA PERFORMANCE

THE War record of Industry in the Piedmont Carolinas speaks for itself and gives convincing assurance of continued performance ahead. Plants both large and small have responded to a tremendous production challenge.

Converting from peacetime products to war materials, meeting the exacting requirements of military specifications, and attaining new production levels have been accomplished efficiently and enthusiastically.

We are proud to share in this accomplishment. With over 800 men in the Services, we, too, are short-handed these days. But those who remain at their posts in the plant and in the office, on the line crew and on the buses which daily serve thousands of war workers are the more determined to aid the common effort against the enemy by maintaining necessary services to industrial, agricultural, and civilian life.
