CLASSICAL FIGURE FOR GREAT EXPOSITION COURT, PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, 1915.

THE vast west court, the Court of the Four Seasons, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915 will be adorned with a number of the finest productions of the world's greatest sculptors. Not only will free standing groups and independent pieces of statuary be set throughout the court, but its walls, its lofty colonnades, the picturesque recesses, will be embellished by much sculpture of a decorative type. The classical piece above will be used to decorate the arcade of the court and is by August Jaegers, the famous sculptor.

THE NEW CAPTAIN

By M. QUAD

In the many company and regimental changes which occurred after McClellan's peninsular campaign Company H of the Tenth volunteers got a new captain by transfer. He was a fair haired, blue eyed man, who lacked ruggedness and sternness. The rough and rugged men looked the new captain over and said to each other:

"Bah! He's no fighter. They've sent us a man who hasn't the heart to kill a sheep."

Later on, when Company H had been out on the picket lines and had a sharp skirmish with the enemy, there was strange talk among the men.

"Do you know," whispered the orderly sergeant to the first corporal, "that they gave us a cussed coward for a captain?"

"Hush, hush!" replied the corporal. "I won't hush. I was watching him in that little scrimmage, and he was as white as a sheet and trembling like a leaf."

Next day the captain sent for the orderly sergeant, and the latter had a strong suspicion, but he was greeted quietly and pleasantly, and the captain asked a few questions before saying:

"So, sergeant, you think I'm a coward and should be forced to resign?"

Sergeant Clay was a bluff, blunt man. The captain had asked him a direct question, and, throwing military etiquette to the dogs, he answered:

"You didn't make no record to be proud of out there the other day!"

"I was very nervous," slowly admitted the captain after a long pause. "It was my first time under fire. I wasn't afraid of being killed, that I can remember, but the excitement upset me. Suppose you and the boys wait a bit before you send me a request to resign. I don't know myself yet, and you can't fairly call me a failure until we have another turn at it. If my nerves fail me in the next crisis you won't have to demand my resignation. Are you willing to wait?"

"Captain," the sergeant whispered as a feeling of awe came to him, "it ain't for you to ask this or that of us. It's for me to say that there'll be no more talk among the boys and that in our next fight you'll make a record to be proud of."

It had been man to man instead of captain to sergeant, and it was still so when their hands were extended and clasped.

"Well?" queried half a dozen sergeants and corporals as the orderly returned to his quarters.

"Well, you hear me now!" replied the man as he looked from one to the other. "We've done a lot of talking with our mouths. From this time on till we've seen our captain prance about in another scrimmage we are going to shet right up. The chap as does any blowing won't be no friend of mine."

A week later began the campaign which ended in the battle of Antietam. "Fighting Joe" Hooker was leading the division to which the Third brigade and the Tenth volunteers belonged, and as Company H pressed forward the second sergeant muttered to the orderly:

"How's—how's things goin' to be at the head of the company?"

"Now, don't you worry the shirt off your back before it's time, Joe Hope! I'm going to wait and see, and the rest of you have got to do the same. Durn a man who won't give another man a fair show!"

As the Tenth regiment got the word the captain of Company H passed swiftly before his line. In the ghostly light he seemed taller by a foot. The men who peered at him saw that his jaws were firm and set and his eyes blazing. "He means fight!" whispered the first corporal.

"Say, he'll lead us into hades and back!" muttered the second sergeant.

Forward, guide left, moved the Tenth, and the front line had scarcely brushed the wet off the cornstalks when they met with a volley. It was so close and deadly that there was confusion. The center broke back, the flanks halted, and order and discipline were lost.

"Attention, Company H! By the right flank—march! On the left into line! Forward—double quick—charge bayonets!"

It was the voice of the new captain, and, like clockwork, the men who were stumbling over each other fell into line and plowed their way out of the burly bari. As they cleared the mob their muskets came down to the charge, and, with shouts and cheers, they drove through a line of battle and sent a thousand men scurrying away through the mists. As they stood panting, with dead and wounded under their feet, the other companies came marching up to join them and to hold the position. Then the sun blazed up over the hills and devoured the mist at a gulp, and every living man in Company H turned to look at his captain. His face was as white as a dead man's, but there was a grim smile of triumph over it, and the exultation of battle was making his blue eyes shine like stars.

"Well, I'll be cussed!" whispered the second sergeant.

"Blast my eyes, if he ain't a fighter!" gasped the first corporal.

The orderly sergeant caught the captain's eye and nodded and brought up his hand in salute. He received a nod and a salute in reply.

"We jest didn't understand how he was made," muttered the orderly as he removed his cap to inspect a bullet hole. "He's done us all proud today!"

Grimesland, N. C., Feb. 13, 1914.
Messrs. Hart & Hadley,
Greenville, N. C.,
Gentlemen:

In regard to the J. I. Case Tobacco Transplanter will say; that I am well pleased with it. I couldn't ask for one to work any better and it was just as you represented it to be. It worked to perfection and I am satisfied it save me several hundred dollars.

I set my entire crop of seven acres with it and it was dry weather when I set it. I used six barrels of water first setting. I set some parts of per acre and got a perfect stand the rows all through my patch by hand just to try it and I found that that which I set with the Transplanter grew better the season through. I also set some for several of my neighbors and they say that theirs grew better than that they set by hand, and they are begging me to set theirs for them the coming season. I also have friends at a distance of fifteen miles from me who want me to set their crop for them.

I can't say too much for your machine and wouldn't be without one for Five Hundred Dollars and as to your services, I couldn't ask for better.

Yours truly,
JESSE. H. SMITH.
