FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1914

Now, Mr. Big Business, will you be good?

What wonderful autumn we have in the middle of June.

About the laziest person we know of this season is Jupiter Pluvius.

Favorite Washington pastime—halting the anti-trust legislation labors.

A fisherman is not without honor for his fish garnis save in his own land.

They cry patronage, patronage, patronage, when there is no patronage.

Is Argentine corn proving to be as much a myth as that "cheap Argentine beef?"

There is the silhouette gown for women and then there is the Palm Beach suit for men.

"Inspect food supply" is a headline that has little interest for those who have not enough food to inspect.

How about an ordinance for the all-arms-and-legs to blow their horns when approaching corners?

If our business men don't get busy on that hospital question the screws of progress will become rusty.

When things get dull in Germany Count Zeppelin takes out his airship and breaks it up some more.

It is rumored that government officials are hatching up a scheme to dissolve the poultry trust in New York.

Roosevelt's doctor has advised him to take a rest. The country hopes he will take the advice, as the people also want a rest.

While the Hon. J. Hamilton Lewis was carting his name away didn't he make it plain "Ham"? He's from Chicago.

We should worry. When there's such a fine lot of young men and women just coming along with those diplomas to keep the world running right for us.

Congress is going right to work on the trust bills, and the sooner they are disposed of the better it will be for the country.

Conduct yourself today that tomorrow you won't regret it.

Wonder if it is going to be necessary for Uncle Sam to chastise those Mexicans again.

If you want to see majority of the automobile owners smile just say you would like to buy their car.

With a little more co-operation on the part of our business men there is no telling where we would stop.

If our friends didn't remind us so often that it was a hot day probably we could squeeze a smile and forget it.

Let the Reflector follow you on that vacation.

The President needs the best vacation possible.

We are still very glad to give to the ice fund.

Col. Roosevelt's main platform seems to consist of knocking Mr. Wilson.

Lots of us are color blind when it comes to telling a white lie from a black one.

We don't blame a hog for being a hog, but we do blame a man for trying to be one.

It pays to patronize folks at home. Mail order bonds generally gets the worst end of the bargain if there be such.

East Carolina farmers have no kick coming about their crop conditions. Just think of the hundreds of farmers in Virginia that have not planted a sprig of anything on account of the long dry spell they are experiencing.

Opportunity knocks at every man's door, she must have a cute little hammer or her knuckles must be pretty sore by this time.

The ice man is a welcome visitor, and most especially if he comes around about ten minutes after you have started your dinner.

If the average man could sell the advice he gives away he would soon be so busy he would not have time for anything but count his coin.

Virgil says "Be happy, ye whose fortunes are already completed." Show us the contented man with all his millions at this out-throat age.

Now that Washington's premier twirler, Walter Johnson, has taken unto himself a bride probably his luck will change and he will pull the Nationals back to first place.

Look around your premises and see if you have everything in a sanitary condition. Remember if you fail to do this by next Wednesday you are likely to have to tell Mayor James why you neglected this.

The best doesn't help a disposition.

Be sure you are wrong before you back up.

Woman's idea of saving money is to have things charged.

No wonder Solomon was a wise man, with 1000 wives to coach him.

Its a lonely country that can't boast of a revolution of some kind.

Don't waste your time arguing with people who don't care.

Teats are more effective than eloquent words.

Men laugh at the folly of women, they get fooled just the same.

Do you suppose the water in Col. Roosevelt's river is fit to drink?

Another thing that heat expands is the oratory of the U. S. Senate.

What does that eminent traveling man Col. Roosevelt carry as a side line?

Some people will do more for a cheap cigar than they would for a perfectly good dollar.

With one exception Pancho Villa is the most spectacular person born on this continent.

After the colonel's lecture in London it will be the British empire's own fault if it goes wrong.

"Wild Cats becoming Scarce" is a recent headline. But it does not apply to wild cat schemes.

The town looks better, at any rate, since so many of the people have been cleaning up their premises.

The Mexican crisis has been a bad thing in many ways, and especially on the Chautauqua season.

Today West Virginia joins the van of prohibition states. One by one they come over, and we expect Virginia to be the next to fall in line.

Wonder how Perk, (the Bull Moose financial backer) is going to contribute to Pincus's senatorial campaign fund in Pa.

Huerta drank grape juice for a few days and ever since he has been trying to make up for lost time.

It is almost the 4th of July, but Greenville will take no notice of the national day when it comes.

The first half of the year has shown much for Greenville's progress. Now all together to make the last half go as well, if not better.

While Greenville is progressive in many respects she neglects her best asset, the boy, and seems to care to make no provision for his pleasure or safety.

King George's benignity toward George Dike, the Buckingham palace invader, may have been because he was also George, or again, merely a piker.

The announcement has come that the West has all the labor needed to harvest the big wheat crop. The South will soon be needing labor to gather the cotton crop, and there will be employment for all who come this way.

The president of Bar Association, in session at Wrightsville Beach, in his address advocated jury reform. He is after something that is certainly needed, and perhaps if the lawyers themselves line up for it, the reform will come.

As Secretary of the Navy Daniels' order abolishing the who mess goes into effect today, the naval officers will soon be learning how to get along without it.

At any rate General Huerta qualifies as the greatest about-face-doer of history.

However, if England had carried off the baseball championship that would have been different.

Possibly political finagling became affected by the unusual heat of early June.

Portugal's republican government must be getting along all right. It never gets into print.

It is an ungrateful progressive who feels no thrill of sentiment at sight of George W. Perkins battle scarred check book.

Colombia doubtless realizes that $25,000,000.00 is more than it ever would have got out of Panama by its own efforts.

John Bull might learn something to his advantage by studying the way the suffrage question is handled over here.

Forgetting politics for awhile the citizens of this country would do well to read the president's tribute to the flag and then sing that glorious Anthem "America."

John Bull's badly injured sensibilities regarding his prowess as a sportsman have been given skillful treatment and he is reported as feeling greatly improved today.

Every woman shows bravery when she has a mouse in a trap.

The only policy that is worth anything is the one that is paid up.

Sometimes a poor excuse is better than a dozen good ones.

It's easier for the landlord to raise the rent than it is for the tenant.

Bad roads, sorry automobiles and hot weather will try your patience.

The public trusts many a man with an office whom the grocer wouldn't trust with a cake of soap.

The Colonel's throat may be out of shape so he can't speak but just watch the "look out."

New Bern now comes out at the top with a $3000.00 fire motor with a speed of 60 miles or more per hour.

Greenville's first week of city mail delivery has already put the people to wondering how they previously got along without it.

As might have been expected, Morehead City has profited by the recent criticism of health conditions there and is taking steps to install a sewerage system.

About the time the average man learns how to live he quits the game.

Bradstreet says for Richmond and vicinity, that building operations are not up to the average. They didn't get the information from Greenville, because there is only one thing that holds her down and that is the lack of material.

"God tempers the wind to the shorn lam," says Laurence Sterne. But the man who is silly enough to go on wearing a heavy coat in summer need expect no tempered sun.

At the rate lodging houses are charging for rooms it is safe to say in a few years Greenville will be able to boast of more millionaires than any town in the Southland. In many instances it is unfair, because it makes it hard living for a man that is forced to work for small wages. We all know that house rent is high for a town the size of Greenville, but that is no reason the renter should try to double their money at the expense of the poor working man. The rates being charged for rooms in many homes are all out of reason and on this account some are living in luxury while others suffer.

Everybody at the convention of the North Carolina Press Association at Wrightsville Beach expresses disappointment that the flamboyant top-knot of Dave Whichard of the Greenville Reflector, is conspicuous by its absence.—Wilmington Star.

The disappointment down there was not near so keen as by the person himself in having to forego the pleasure of being with the brethren in their annual convention. But "Uncle Sam" had him so busy just at the time installing mail delivery for Greenville that he could not well get away. His heart was with them however.

We have read nothing finer in a long time than the address of President Clarence H. Poe before the North Carolina Press Association in session at Wrightsville Beach. His subject was "The Editor must be a crusader." He showed that an editor must be a fighter for the common good. He must not only record what is but he must hold up the vision of what ought to be and help achieve that vision. Editorial work is a profession, and his paper is not to be regarded simply as a commercial venture. The editor should be a crusader in that he should have an ideal for his community, and that in battling constructively for this ideal he should not turn back from battling destructively against whatever evil opposes the progress of the good. The address was full of suggestions as to things an editor should work for in his community.

Although Mr. has quarreled with Mr. Perkins, the progressive party refuses to take part, realizing the folly of any party's quarreling with its meal ticket.

Tomorrow is supposed to be the last clean-up day as chosen by the mayor. We advise you to get busy or the sanitary officer will likely call on you, and if he does woe unto you.

The best guarantee of lower freight rates for Greenville would be a boat line on Tar River. Through the influence of Congressman Small, the government has done its part in widening and deepening the channel of the river so boats could get here at all seasons of the year, but the business people have yet done nothing toward establishing a boat line.

The thirty million dollar failure of the Claffin stores in New York, was about the largest on record. Banks are the principal creditors and it has put several of them in the straits.

Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's Weekly, in an address to the North Carolina Press Association at Wrightsville Beach, predicted that the next big industrial expansion will be in the South.

The government spent several thousand dollars last year deepening and widening the channel of Tar River as far up as Greenville, and as yet Greenville has done nothing toward taking advantage of the opportunity to establish a boat line on the river. Every day of delay in this matter means that much more cost in freight rates.

The article on the first page of today's issue from Mr. E. G. Flanagan to the Mayor and his board relative to the condition of Cherry Hill Cemetery are words well spoken, but at the same time it should arouse the interest of those that own lots there, because there is plenty of room for improvement on the part of these as well. We hope that all concerned will act now and make what necessary improvements that there may be needed to make the cemetery the most beautiful spot that surrounds us.

The Greenville Gazette, with Mr. Charles E. Carroll, editor and owner, entered the newspaper field in Greenville on the 6th of the past February. With its issue of today it suspends publication for the present at least. Mr. Carroll has served the Gazette patrons well, and though he has been forced to withdraw from newspaperdom he is to be congratulated on his efforts.

Judge Ben Lindsay, of the Denver, Col. juvenile court, was one of the Chautauqua speakers in Washington last week, and said many wonderfully good things in regards to the welfare of the boy. Judge Lindsay believes in saving the boys, and he said that many of them go wrong because they have no opportunity or encouragement to do better. He declared he had no patience with the town that did not have a Young Men's Christian Association, a patrol of Boy Scouts, a supervised swimming hole, and a public play ground. It is cheaper and a better investment to put money into these than in building jails. It is better to provide against boys being criminals than to make preparations for punishing them when through neglect they become such.

Farmers to Succeed Must Keep Books

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside E. C. Whitmyre writes an article entitled "How a Friend of Mine Figured the Profit," in which he tells the story of a farmer who failed and later succeeded because of the radical change in his methods. This farmer invested $2,500 in the dairy business on a small farm near a town of 3000 population. He worked hard but in three years found that he was practically a failure. His failure was due largely to the fact that he had neglected to figure his costs and expenses and to adjust his business, and particularly his purchases, collections and prices, to the exact conditions of his undertaking. He took the advice given to him, and Mr. Whitmyre continues:

"In three years he has revolutionized his business. He knows at the end of every day just where he stands. If he has made a profit of $100 he knows it. He knows himself, and he knows his business. It's just a case of building on a scientific basis.

"Today we are hammering away at the farmer for the lack of conducting his farming in a way to get the most out of it. Yet the development of the farmer has been wonderful. The farmer who conducts his place on a scientific basis is the man who rides to town in his automobile. He has learned what to plant, when to plant it, and how to plant it. He has machinery that saves him time and money. But has he learned the value of a strict watch on the financial end of his business? If he has he need not worry."

Little Miss Rose Hadley Entertained Several Friends

On Wednesday evening, at the home of her parents, little Rose Hadley entertained a party of her little friends at a "Book Party," in honor of her house-guests, Margaret Wooten, Olivette Wilkerson, Beatrice K. Hadley of LaGrange and Marianna and Louise LaRouge of Kingston.

Clara Louise Moye was the successful winner of a beautiful set of gold pins, and each visiting guest was given the same.

An ice course was served by Jane Hadley, Mary Forbes, Eva Hodges and Rosamond Flanagan. The little folks after playing rook for sometime, retired to the lawn, where fruit punch was served and there indulged in many interesting games. Too soon, the parents came to take them home, for reluctantly they departed, declaring they had had a grand time.

GIRL DIVES HEADLONG FROM A TENEMENT ROOF

Was Well Attired and Pretty, But Nobody in the Neighborhood Knew Her.

New York, June 28.—An unidentified girl leaped to death from the roof of a six-story tenement at 91 Jackson street yesterday. She was about 22 years old and apparently had been pretty. Her clothing was of excellent quality.

Henry Miller, janitor, saw the girl on the steps some time before she made the leap. She looked worried and did not reply when he accosted her.

Early yesterday Mrs. Miller saw a form fall past her fifth-story window. Looking out she saw the girl lying in a heap on the sidewalk.

Police had difficulty in extricating the dead girl from the grating on which she had fallen. It was bent and crushed. The girl's head had broken two bars. Evidently she had dived head first.

The girl was about five feet five inches in height and weighed about 150 pounds. She had dark hair and a fair complexion. She wore a blue skirt and a white waist. On the roof was a Balmaucan coat, in which was a thumb and a pair of scissors.

No one in the tenement knew the girl.
