FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1914.

Straw hats have begun to look like back numbers.

It looks as if the cotton crop, this year, is to big for the market.

There are several places around town that the officials might look after and improve.

The Oyster is waking up from his summer nap, and will soon be in the soup.

If murder is a crime what is need less war?

American neutrality means also impartiality.

Here is a rift in the cloud. Potatoes are cheap.

The book agent with the story of the war will soon be around.

Some men are satisfied with half a loaf, and some loaf all the time.

Every man who isn't prominent imagines he will be some day.

For the Greenlanders, Icelanders, and North Polemen have not joined in the war.

If Russia is going to depend on its Grand Duke it might as well give up the fight at once.

Summer is officially over but the warm weather is likely to linger a while longer.

From the censored war news it is hard to tell which side is getting the best of the fight.

Great Britain may rule the world but Germany seems to be determined to know who the bosses are.

The Russians seem to have decided to have Germany move her seat of government from Berlin to Paris. Good idea.

Greenville has a cotton storage house already. That's good, and the farmers should take advantage of it to hold their cotton.

The farmers here will, tobacco Tuesday found out that buyers on the Greenville market are ready to pay for it.

Cowan says the war news sent out about lightning striking his house was overdrawn. The censor must have been asleep that time.

Mexico is finding it impossible to create any excitement in the news columns on account of European war is ready for peace plans to be applied.

By the humor of circumstances the German liner Krenprinzessin Cecilie too refuge in Frenchman's Bay.

Wonder what effect the New York women thought their parade in protest of the European war should have.

We Americans in our fixed determination to be neutral should be careful in hotels to stifle preferences for "French fried" or "German fried" potatoes and order them served plain.

When President Wilson speaks the people listen.

After some men start they are too lazy to stop.

Blaise did not know what was coming to him, but he ought to.

Some women just have to kiss each other or remain unloved.

The sick man of Europe seems to be getting better than any of the rest of them.

We might line up the Kaisers, Czars and Kings and Counts "cento centeno me" to see who started it.

It hurts our national pride to have the news for American papers censored by a foreigner.

If the Russian bear ever learns that he has been attacked there may be a rum-pus.

One trouble about a mountain fuel war is that there aren't enough survivors to hold a reunion afterwards.

This is going to be a serious war all right. Word comes from Missouri that the demand for mules has almost doubled up in prices.

When Kings begin to make flattering speeches, it's high time for their subjects to take out more life insurance.

If all her foreign citizens should conclude to go back and fight they wouldn't be much left to little old New York.

This is a time when the news editor for once thinks he is a bigger man than the sporting editor.

What would have happened at Liege if Belgium had been devoted to militarism all these years instead of to neutrality and peace?

Almost any sensible woman would prefer being the wife of a lively and affectionate wage earner than the widow of a war hero.

Another horror of war is discovered in fact that American bonvivants will now have to drink their American wines without imported labels.

Mr. Carnegie's plans seem to have worked out backward. He should have given Europe the libraries and America the peace Palace.

We did not know until the other day that Cowan was getting so uppish. Fighting was after him. Glad he escaped without harm.

There are some others who are eligible to membership in the Annanias Club.

We can hardly imagine anything that would be more welcome than the end of the European war.

The farmers with wads of tobacco money in their pockets will be welcome fellows from now on.

Why not fall in line and have a cotton storage warehouse in Greenville?

Summer absentees are turning their faces homeward. Those who did not go to Europe find it easier to get back.

Everybody make up his mind that Greenville is the best tobacco market in the trade and work accordingly.

Sometimes there is love at first sight, and then again love is blind.

Occasionally we see a war extra that has some real war news in it.

All efforts to wipe Belgium off the map have been unavailing.

A gentleman remarked yesterday that he gets better information as to the European war situation from the condensed telegraph reports in The Reflector than he does from the big papers. The Reflector gives the real news without padding, and in such form as to be read quickly.

With eight million Russian soldiers moving to the front to engage the German army, a fearful human slaughter may be expected when the forces meet.

Notwithstanding the war has cut off importations for the time being, there will likely be the usual number of Parisian hats worn in America this fall.

It has been suggested that the war in Europe will stop pretty quick if the United States puts an embargo on the export of food stuffs. For goodness sake stop the exports and let the war end.

The worst of the war news is yet to come.

Nations fighting to make peace is a very strange idea.

Tar River is running right by us as usual, but freight boats are not running on it.

The people of the United States have abundant cause to feel grateful that we have Woodrow Wilson in the presidential chair in such a trying time.

There is nothing to keep those Texas prohibitionists from going on a thirst strike.

It will soon be time for the new tail styles in aeroplanes.

The Mouse too, seems to be a River of doubt just now.

Belgium must be getting tired of being used as a battle field by the rest of Europe.

Russia's press agent is sending out some amazing stories about the patriotic fever of the Russian people.

We wonder what Gen. Sherman would have called it if he had lived until today.

We hope the candidates will not try to make it a war in print.

Luck is to be found in pluck, and in mighty few other places.

The wheat growers think there is a golden lining to the war cloud.

That is a comforting statement of Secretary McAdoo that the government will provide ample money to move the crops.

Nevertheless the exigencies of the times are not such as to make the American people regret that they haven't a military hero like Colonel.

Just to think if Columbus had not discovered America, we would now be over on the other side in this mix-up.

If that yacht race is pulled off over here it had better be kept within the three mile limit.

The best day's work South Carolina has done was in defeating Colonel Blaise for the Senate.

It looks very much as if our own George Fred Williams had fallen into the censor's toils.

A wave of sadness went over North Carolina in the announcement of the death of Mr. Henry Blount, which occurred Thursday, at the Soldiers' Home in Raleigh. As a soldier he was brave, as a lecturer he was thrilling and eloquent, as a writer he was brilliant. It was his mission to spread sunshine and happiness in the pathway of others, and now he has gone to reap a hundred fold reward.

Next Tuesday is the day for the Democratic primary in Pitt County and every democrat should go to the polls and help to select the best men for the nominees of the party. The men nominated in this primary are the ones who will be elected at the election in November, and no one should stay away from the primary thinking it is alright for anybody to be nominated. Above all things be careful about who is to represent the county in the legislature.

The Raleigh Times suddenly dropped the box head chuckling over the way it faked the item about sinking the American ships, when it saw what other papers of the State thought of it. The first explanations that the papers gave for the benefit of their readers were gleefully copied in the Times, but so far it has not reproduced the editorial condemnations of the disreputable act that stamped it as having a very low journalistic ideal.

It is passing strange that protectionists are not happy these days. For years they have fought to build and maintain a high tariff wall around the country. The condition they sought to obtain is established in a twinkling by the European war. There is no longer any competition with the pauper products of Europe. Foreign manufacturers are all excluded from our markets. We are "protected" to the limit and having no means of shipping, as a result of protecting our merchant marine to death, the beloved "home market" is our only recourse. And still protectionists are not happy.

The attitude of the Administration on the question of war loans to European belligerents is eminently sound and sensible. This is a neutral nation. While American sympathies may be largely on one side of the great conflict, the American people are well content to maintain the policy of "hands off". Lending money to one or more of the nations involved in the struggle may not be a technical violation of neutrality, but unquestionably from a moral standpoint it is rendering assistance to a belligerent. Furthermore, as money provides the sinews of war, the best way to insure an early end to the conflict is to withhold the sinews. And peace is the one thing above all others that the United States earnestly wishes for as the speedy outcome of the war.

CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING.

Nearly every passing day gives our people additional cause for thankfulness that Woodrow Wilson and not Theodore Roosevelt, is President of the United States. The great mass of this country's citizens are peaceful and peace-loving. They are grateful that in the midst of wars and alarms of war, the United States is at peace with all the world, and likely to continue to remain so. They cannot be unmindful of the fact that such a happy condition would be jeopardized were the Warrior of Oyster Bay at the head of the nation. Colonel Roosevelt's friend Kaiser has often been termed the Roosevelt of Europe and Colonel Roosevelt doubtless would like to be the Kaiser of America if he could get the opportunity.

The warlike trend of his label is well revealed in his recent utterances denunciatory of the peace treaties just signed between the United States and a score of other governments. Any thing that smacks of peace is anathema to the man who boasted that his spear knows no brother. But it would seem that with the whole world aghast at the horror of the European conflict, the doughty Colonel chose an inopportune time to reaffirm his contempt of peace. There are no doubt some thoughtless and heedless folks and some ultra-lingoes who will applaud his war chatter just as there are uncannily constituted people who enjoy witnessing or inflicting cruelty and suffering upon others. But the great majority of sober, sensible people of this fortunate country will not fail to give thanks that Roosevelt's power for harm is confined to his utterances.

Annual Feast at Ingletaire.

On Friday, at Ingletaire his beautiful country home two miles from town Mr. O. L. Joyner, kept up his annual custom of serving a barbecue dinner to the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade and some of his friends. There were just fifty seated around the long table arranged under the large oaks on the front lawn, and it was a feast indeed of which they partook. The barbecue was prepared "to the queen's taste" with side dishes for relish, and a dessert course of ice cream and cake followed, with cigars as a finishing touch.

The occasion also afforded a reunion of the old tobaccoists who had come to this market for another season, and an opportunity for the new comers to get acquainted. Mr. and Mrs. Joyner entertain most delightfully, and their hospitality on Friday lacked none of their accustomed cordiality. Their friends always find pleasure in being with them.

Mr. Hugh Smith and Miss Pink Manning directed the guests across the hall to the dining room door where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. James. Ice cream, cakes, mints and salted almonds were served by Misses Lizzie Whitehurst, Lucy Whitehurst, Lill Wilson, Clara Jones, Mary J. Smith and Lizzie Higgs.

From an alcove back of the gift room the Washington orchestra rendered music throughout the evening. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Munford wish for them many more happy years together.

UNFORTUNATE PREACHER DIES. Graduate of Davidson College Dies in Poverty in New York.

New York, Sept. 1.—After barely eking out a miserable existence for several years, the Rev. John S. Brockinton, a native of North Carolina graduate of Davidson College, and at one time a brilliant preacher, died today in a little attic room in a house at 1115 Sixty-eighth street, Brooklyn, at the age of 65. Mr. Brockinton's life had been composed of a series of misfortunes. At one time he was assistant pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, and has occupied other well known pulpits. After he had lost out in all of his ministerial work through dispersions in his congregations and other misfortunes, he finally was reduced to selling tea and coffee, from which he earned scarcely 25 cents a day.
