RINGLING BROTHERS IS ALMOST HERE

Big Circus Bound This Way On Five Great Trains Loaded With Wonders.

Children are now on their best behavior in anticipation of a real holiday treat on Tuesday, September 29, when Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows will exhibit in Rocky Mount.

It is expected that this city will send more than its usual number of "sawdust fans" to welcome this popular circus.

Ringling Brothers promise many novelties and innovations and a bigger and better everything is the slogan. Proceeding the regular circus performance the new spectacle of "Solomon and the Queen of Sheba" will be enacted on the largest stage in the world. This mammoth 1,250 character pageant cost $1,000,000 and the costumes, scenery and stage properties are said to be a revelation in gorgeousness. Among the 385 arena acts are scores of equestrians including the Lloyds, famous English riders; the Balkanis, whirlwind riders from the Balkan mountains; the five highest perch acts ever presented; boxing and wrestling kangaroos; five herds of trick elephants; 50 clowns; 20 families of acrobats; and a magnificent horse show and speed tournament. The managerie is larger and more complete than ever and features many animals never before exhibited in this city.

To Celebrate University Day.

Chapel Hill, Sept. 23—Alumni of the University are planning for a great celebration on University Day, October 12. The celebration here will be featured by an address by Hon. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education. University chapters, thickly grouped over North Carolina and scattered throughout the United States, will determine on a program; dedicatory to the passing of another birthday of the institution. A game of football between the University of South Carolina and North Carolina will afford fun for the sport-loving.

Meeting of Indiana Physicians.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 23—A large attendance marked the opening here today of the annual convention of the Indiana State Medical Association. Fifty women physicians are included among the delegates. The sessions will continue through the remainder of the week. Many eminent physicians and surgeons will take part in the programme, which provides for numerous lectures, demonstrations and clinics.

How To Give Quinine To Children.

FEBRILINE is the trade-mark name given to an improved Quinine. It is Tasteless Syrup, pleasant to take and does not disturb the stomach. Children take it and never know it is Quinine. Also especially adapted to adults who cannot take ordinary Quinine. Does not nauseate nor cause nervousness nor ringing in the head. Try it the next time you need Quinine for any purpose. Ask for 2 ounce original package. The name FEBRILINE is blown in bottle. 25 cents.

NORTH CAROLINIAN IN BIG LAW FIRM

The record made by North Carolinians in other States is a cause of pride to those who are at home. Mr. James Horner Winston, son of Judge R. W. Winston, of Raleigh, is one of those North Carolinians whose career makes glad all who know him.

Mr. Winston, his many friends will be pleased to know, has just been admitted into the old and established legal firm of Winston, Payne, Strawn and Shaw, of Chicago, being the junior member. Mr. Frederick Winston, who was the head of the great firm, is deceased. Mr. James Horner Winston began with the firm three years ago at the bottom and has made good.

Judge Philip Barton Payne, the head of the firm, is from Warrenton, Va. He defended the packers last year, and secured the acquittal of his clients, his fees, so the report goes, being in six figures. There are ten members of the firm, and there are fifteen other lawyers in the office; those in the greatest bank building in the world.

That Mr. Winston has been made a member of this big firm is a recognition of his ability. His success adds to the certainty that North Carolina boys may be depended upon to win out in these later days, just as their forebears have done. Young Winston is well known in and out of North Carolina. He is recognized as one of the ten best tennis players in America, having this year won the championship of Illinois. He graduated A. B. at the University, and also A. B. at Oxford University, England. Before moving to Chicago he practiced law in Norfolk, Va. He married a charming and cultured young woman of Chicago, Miss Laura Flanagan. His friends have confidence that he will add strength to the firm of which he now becomes a member.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Turnage and Mrs. S. C. Sutton, of Ayden, were in Greenville yesterday.

HENRY HAD COURAGE

By JANE PHAR.

"He said," Carlike admitted defiantly, after being pressed to helplessness "that I'd better have it out. Said it wasn't possible to save it."

"That's too bad," sympathized Mrs. Carlike. "I'd have it done right away—today."

"Yes," said Carlike, casually. "No use putting it off."

When he returned home that evening Mrs. Carlike met him tenderly. "Did it hurt you much?" she inquired. "Huh?" asked Carlike, blankly.

"Why, your tooth—you had it extracted, didn't you?"

"Oh," murmured Carlike, as though recalled from a long distance. "No—I didn't. I have been too busy, Emily, to think of myself. I didn't have any time. I'll go tomorrow."

"Well?" inquired Mrs. Carlike, the following evening. "How do you feel, Henry? Was it painful?"

Carlike paused in the act of removing his overcoat and gazed at her reproachfully. "I wish, Emily," he said, "that you would recollect that I am a business man and not free to follow my own whims and inclinations. You may be able to consult your own pleasure, but you needn't think I can drop a $20,000 deal for the sake of a mere tooth! I—"

"But the dentist said for you to have it out!" persisted his wife inexorably. "It wouldn't take half an hour! You're just trying to put it off, Henry Carlike, and I must say that I am surprised at you!"

"No such thing!" cried Mr. Carlike, with immense indignation. "A baby wouldn't mind having a tooth out nowadays with their modern methods! If you think I am afraid of a trifling unpleasantness—pooh! I'm as hungry as a bear!"

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlike, the following morning as he left for the city. She spoke very distinctly. "Remember, you are to go today and have that tooth out!"

"They Were Telling Him to Wake Up."

That afternoon Carlike phoned he had to stay down town to dinner with a client and that Mrs. Carlike was not to sit up for him. She had got as far as asking, "Did you have—" when the receiver at his end hung up with a click.

At the breakfast table the next morning he got in ahead of her. "No, don't start telling me about that tooth!" he said, with infinite and weighty sarcasm. "I am quite aware, my dear, that I possess a molar which has to be extracted, according to the dentist, in whom, by the way, I haven't any too much faith! I intend, however, to abide by his decision—I can't afford not to when a man is such a pirate in his charges as Jenkins—and I shall have it done today."

"You are a coward," stated Mrs. Carlike, distinctly and unpleasantly. "I never thought my husband would be a—"

The front door banged heavily after Carlike. Twice that morning Mrs. Carlike got him on the telephone to make inquiries. The second time he was so violent that she did not wait for him to finish, but hung up the receiver. She gathered that he was engaged in settling the fate of LaSalle street, Wall street and possibly Europe, and if she thought—

Immediately before noon Carlike's office door opened abruptly and looking up he beheld on the threshold his wife, Carlike was alone, feet on his desk, cigar in mouth, magazine in hand, an aura of immense leisure surrounding him. He turned pale.

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlike, "at great inconvenience to myself, I have come down here to accompany you to the tooth extracting bee. If you can leave Wall street and your numerous clients for a short time, I should like you to come with me—at once!"

Carlike got on his feet hurriedly and before he knew it was in the fatal chair.

They were telling him to wake up before he was sure that anything was happening to him. Everybody was quite cheerful and casual and acted as though nothing had occurred. In the outer office he met his wife, a little anxious and pale.

"Well?" she asked.

Carlike smiled at her in a superior way and shrugged into his overcoat. "Why, Emily," he said, "you really act as though you were nervous!"—Chicago Daily News.
