

THE DAILY WORKMAN.

J. S. MICHAUX, Local Editor

A paper for all people, but especially to meet the desire which many are known to entertain for a non-political sheet, the WORKMAN will strive to go into every house, leaving to other papers the so-called politics, giving the news in brief and holding itself responsible to the moral sense of the community for its utterances.

Capt. Green's circular to the officials of the R. & D. Railroad Company requires that no employees shall be accepted as a rule, unless they be 21 years of age, and stand 5 feet 6 inches high.

It would be curious could we know the reason of the fact stated in one of our exchanges, that there was not a single car coupler invented in North Carolina last week. Can anybody give the reason for an occurrence so unusual?

Judge Bond, of the United States Circuit court has opened the special tax bond cases at Raleigh. The questions at issue are quite intricate, and but few ordinary mortals will undertake to study them out. The lawyers are now in demand and are indispensable.

At an election for members of the town council at South Boston, Va., on Tuesday last, the issue being "Wet or Dry," the latter carried the day by a very handsome majority. The hindermost candidate among the "Wets" received 31 votes, while the hindermost of the "Drys" 145; 41 was the highest on the "Wet" ticket, and 174 on the "Dry."

C. H. F. Deuring, an ex policeman and now a private detective of Richmond, is in prison under a charge of attempting to bribe Joel, the jeweler of watch key fame, to swear falsely in the appeal of Cluverius before Governor Lee. Joel pocketed the money and carried it to the Governor with his complaint against Deuring, and the latter was arrested for conspiracy to impede the administration of justice. Bail was refused him.

C., on the evening of the 17th of Dec., 1886, at 8 o'clock. The public invited.

THE CLUVERIUS MATTER STILL ON DOCKET.

We make no apology to the reader for advertising so frequently to the very interesting case of Cluverius, the murderer of the poor, almost friendless, wronged and deserted Fannie Lillian Madison, for if we have seemed to bear down on him, it has been in consequence of the horrible nature of his crime and the clearness of the proof against him, together with the brutish indifference with which he has borne himself all through the trial. Some few of our exchanges have seemed to question his guilt according to law and evidence: this is their business, while we have considered it our business to have an independent opinion of the law and the testimony as it appeared to us. Within the past few days some interesting points have come to the surface. Governor Lee gave patient attention to the appeal made in behalf of the prisoner, and after his investigation declared solemnly that he saw no reason either to extend pardon or commutation, but granted a reprieve until January 14th. The Richmond Dispatch of yesterday gives the substance of conversations with the Governor and others on the subject of the watch key, which counsel for the prisoner refused to allow to be opened in court. Police Justice Richardson was not at liberty to disclose, he said, whether the key had been opened before the Governor, as suspected. In answer to the same question the Governor said—"I can't tell you anything about it to-day."

Mr. Meredith was silent about the key. When Joel, who was claimed to have mended a key for Cluverius, was asked if it had been opened, he answered, "You will have to ask the Governor." It seems that the Governor has the key, and the analysis of the various answers makes it almost sure that Joel opened the key before the Governor and fully identified it as the one he mended for the prisoner. The fact is, there could have been no reason for the Governor to have the key unless for the purpose of having it opened, and his refusal to interfere with the course of the law in the case is pretty strong proof that the key was the identical one that Joel had mended. So far the Dispatch.

The Danville Register of yesterday, containing the press dispatches, announces that the key was opened by Joel in the presence of the Governor and fully identified as the key fixed by Joel for Cluverius, and further, that the interior of the key tallied exactly with the description which Joel had previously given of it. We were in no doubt that Governor Lee would discharge his full duty in this matter, and he did it by having Joel describe the inside of the key before it was opened, that then the key when opened would be its own witness. This should allay all doubt about the ownership of the key, even with those who could not see it plain enough in the refusal of prisoner's counsel to allow the key to be opened on the trial. But there is another incident: Some one writing anonymously from New York, through the Superintendent of that city declares that Cluverius is the wrong man, and that the anonymous correspondent himself is the murderer, and will come forth on the day of execution ready to be tried for the murder. Quite probably if the fellow could be caught a little hanging would do him good, but his writing anonymously shows his aversion to the rope. He is pronounced a crank.

Farmers and Horsemen should read this!—I find Salvation Oil a most excellent liniment among horses, and I take pleasure in endorsing it as a certain remedy for scratches.

The Charlotte Observer of this morning says:

In view of the talk now going on about Mr. James W. Reid, we will mention that his name is printed in the Washington Star as one of the recent arrivals in that city.

TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT.

The Ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Greensboro, have the privilege of this column every Saturday for any matter which they may choose to publish in relation to their organization and cause.—EDITOR WORKMAN.

The time has fully come when the Christian people every where should petition for a more reformatory method of treating youthful criminals. The following pathetic lines are the expression of many a mother's heart who has been unable to exert an influence sufficient to baffle the effort to allure her boy into ways of evil, but the poor heart can only find relief in the following outburst:

AT THE PRISON GATE.
"They buried my boy today
In a stone vault broad and high,
They shut the bright look away
From his mother's yearning eye.
A pitiless iron door,
Bulld a wall of despair
Between the two hearts so sore,
Between gray and golden hair.

It would not be hard to say
"Thy will, O, Father be done!"
Had I laid my boy away
In a bed by the grasses spun,
I could make it bright with flowers
And the sunbeam's light would play
Where the kisses of soft showers
Caressed each quivering spray.

But alas! for living death,
Alas for the prison grave!
Alas for the wasted breath
Of him I would die to save!
The feet I had held and kissed,
Have run the swift ways of sin.
Ah, Lord wherein have I missed
That he should not enter in."

LOCAL OPTION IN ALABAMA.—The following news is important:
The House of Representatives of the General Assembly, in session December 8th, at Montgomery, Ala., passed a bill making the retail liquor license $250, which is equivalent to more than doubling it. The proposition to make it $500 was voted down by a small majority. The Assembly has passed prohibition bills outright for two of the largest black counties upon petitions from nearly all of the white inhabitants. Local prohibition bills are passed almost without objection from any member. The Senate has passed a general local-option law for all of the counties.

JAPANESE VOLCANOES.—Japan is considered by Professor Milne to have at least 100 undoubted volcanoes, of which about 48 are still active, or have been so during the historical period. About 232 eruptions have been recorded. The intensity of volcanic action seems to have been as great as in any part of the world. A period of unusual activity was between 1780 and 1800, during which time part of Mount Unseen was blown up with a loss of from 27,000 to 53,000 lives, many islands were formed in that Satsumi sea, Sakurajima threw out so much pumice that it was possible to walk a distance of 23 miles upon the floating debris in the sea, and Asama ejected many blocks of stone—one of them 42 feet in diameter—and a lava stream 40 miles in length. The eruptions have exerted a powerful influence on the minds of the people, causing divine interference to specially sought, while mountain-deity worship continues not uncommon.
