

SURRENDERS OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.—Let us think, then, for a moment of the surrenders of the Christian life, even though we hardly like to think of them, for the richness, the blessing, the privilege of Christian living is so great that it hardly seems that there can be anything that can in comparison be called a surrender; and yet I think we must distinctly see that there are things that at the very outset a Christian must determine to give up. Many Christians would be unwilling to use the word surrenders for these, when so much privilege is given in exchange; but I think we may continue to use the word when we have thus explained it. What, then, are the things that we must renounce if we are to declare ourselves Christians? Certainly nothing that should not be given up by all who are trying to live righteous and manly lives, even if they do not call themselves Christians. I long to make you see clearly that the Christian life is the natural, the normal, the perfectly human life. I am accustomed in speaking of these surrenders to divide them into three classes, and I will so speak of them. First, as a Christian I will do nothing that is essentially wrong; secondly, I will do nothing that, although right in itself, will be wrong for me, because it will keep me from drawing closer to God; and, lastly, I will do nothing that could put a bar in the way of any of his other children whom I so long to help, and will not hinder.—Rev. Phillips Brooks, D. D.

KEEP OIL IN THE LAMP.—In the lamp of the tabernacle was to be put pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamp to burn always. This constant burning, this continuous light was to be maintained by pure and beaten oil. So, now, if we would bear a constant, uniform, and acceptable light in the temple of our God; if we would shed a pure and heavenly ray upon all around us, if we would maintain an acceptable testimony to the full redemption that is in Christ; if we would be living illustrations of the saving truth as it is in Jesus; if we would be overcoming witnesses to Christ as the truth; if we would let our light so shine, that others may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven; then we must first see well to it that we are supplied not only with pure but also with beaten oil. O, for this calm and constant burning and shining for God! Imagine the quiet and continuous radiance of that tabernacle lamp! Through the day and through the night, through the dark and through the light, its sole and simple duty was to shine on. Yet the discharge of every other service within the tabernacle depended upon its shining. Ah, these meek, and quiet, and beautiful, and radiant characters, and lives, and testimony, flaming out always from the pure and beaten oil that is within the holy place of the saintly soul! Cleansing and chastening are two essentials of the oil of the sanctuary. Garments washed white in the blood of the Lamb, and coming up through great tribulation, fit us best for the temple below and the temple above. Have you—have I—the pure and beaten oil within? Are we burning and shining for Jesus?—The Christian Standard and Home Journal.

A Gift for All.

In order to give all a chance to test it, and thus be convinced of its wonderful curative powers, Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will be, for a limited time, given away. This offer is not only liberal, but shows unbounded faith in the merits of this great remedy. All who suffer from Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of Throat, Chest or Lungs, are especially requested to call at Hunter & Michaux's Drug Store, and get a trial bottle free, large bottles $1.

Now are you right down sure that you are saved from covetousness—"from the world, and all covetous desires of the same?" Can you point to anything you have lately done or sacrificed for humanity of God's cause? How about hospitality—do you grudge the pittance it costs you?—Harvester.

THE DEER RANGE OF MAINE.—The deer range, covered by the almost unsettled forest stretching miles into the interior of the State from the eastern portion of the coast line embraces an area of about 500 square miles. The track has been heretofore the greater part of its valuable timber by lumbermen, and the forest is now in the state of reproduction. Through this region deer wander in such numbers that in the opinion of Major Boyd there is no other deer range in the country equal to it. Housed away from the coast are found only at rare intervals, there being whole townships with not even a road running through them. To this attractive hunting ground every year a great number of sportsmen come from outside the State to hunt the deer in a lawful manner. The law-abiding citizens in that section of the State extend a ready welcome to the sportsmen, knowing that their visits are a material advantage, it being estimated that at least $50 is left in the State for every deer the sportsmen kill. They pay liberally for the services of the guides who accompany them to the best spots, as well as the boys who go to tend the camp. The teams which transport the camp equipage are hired of the livery stables in Maine towns, and the supplies are bought in Maine stores, while the sportsmen in going and coming to the range stop at Maine hotels. The citizens of the State enjoy the same privileges in their right to hunt deer as do these visitors from away, so there is no just complaint against the law. To prevent the extinction of the deer the State law provides that they shall not be hunted with hounds. "Still hunting," said Major C. H. Boyd, of the United States Coast Survey, who has just returned from a three months' sojourn in the vicinity of Machias and the hunting grounds, "never will drive the deer from the State while the forests last, but the cry of the dogs will frighten the deer from the ranges and they will not return for a long time when once frightened off." The game wardens in the execution of their duty, whenever they have been informed that a party of hunters have gone into the woods with hounds give chase and cruise until the camp is discovered, and then woe to the dogs if they be kept for killing deer, for the wardens make short work of them.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Removes Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley Patterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 78 years old and have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years, could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all diseases and pain."
