the book on by the Dike Book Company. As the excursion train from Durham to Danville reached Reidsville last night on the return home some person hurled a stone in at one of the windows, striking and severely injuring Sarah Bidden, of Greensboro, who was brought home with a very ugly wound on one side of her head. The evil doer is not known.

WANTED.—A hen that knows how to lay fresh eggs. None other need apply. MANY CITIZENS. The above is expressive, and tells its own story. It has been said that you may buy a dozen eggs and find thirteen of them spoilt.

An old Spanish coin of the value of 12 1-2 cents is in possession of one of the employees of this office, bearing the date 1740. "Hispan. et Ind. Rex," with other marks of its source, is found plainly visible on the face of the piece, which seems to be but little worn. This coin is 147 years old.

We insert to-day an article in defence of the proposition to bury Webster's Blue Back Spelling Book, and do so with pleasure, because it is not only fair to the writer who sincerely thinks that Noah ought to be "buried," but will give an opportunity to make an argument in favor of the more than grand old map to whom this country is indebted more than to any other one man, or five men, in a literary sense, since the discovery of America by Columbus. A reply to the defence would be prepared to accompany it, but owing to the space that would be required for the two in one issue, the reply is deferred until to-morrow.

PRETTY EVENLY BALANCED.—No close observer of the times could fail to see that immense numbers of water-melons find their way to this market every day. They come by railroad and by wagons and carts, and from the way the melons lie scattered in some places they would seem to have just rained down from the sky. We would certainly become a prey to the malaria engendered of decayed melons but for one thing, and that is the capacity of our people to consume as many melons as the lands produce. Just how the thing is done, however, we cannot explain.—It's a little on the order of the small snake swallowing the large one.

THE ADDRESS LAST NIGHT.—The address of Prof. W. A. Blair in the Court house last night attracted quite a number of interested listeners, who manifested in the closeness of the attention given, as well as in their frequent and hearty applause, that he had struck the key note. His subject was, "Thorough, Practical Education." The drift of the address was to encourage determined and persistent effort in the pursuit of education under difficulties, and to press home the fact that all difficulties must yield to the supremacy of the indomitable power of the will. The illustrations were appropriate and well handled, and the address made a fine impression, and we are mistaken if a number of the more aspiring young people present were not braced up by it for the battle in which they are engaged.

Greensboro contains a number of very clever merchants, with the most of whom we have had very satisfactory dealings as advertisers and as purchasers of their wares. This is so general that what we could say of one and of another might savor of unfairness were we to indulge the pen in noting the excellencies which appear to us. We are compelled, therefore, to be more sparing of commendation than would seem to some actually just and appropriate, and repress often the desire to be more personal in our allusions. We cannot, in our position as editor of a daily paper, even show the appearance of unfairness.

Mrs. A. M. Rankin returned from Mount Vernon Springs some days ago, and is at Capt. White's on Asheboro street. We were ordered this morning by the city authorities to remove our bill-boards from the trees where they had been standing for two weeks, and as the disappearance of the bills might give rise to the impression that our GRAND EXCURSION TO ASHEVILLE has been abandoned, we hereby reaffirm that the excursion will RUN ALL THE SAME, and a big crowd is expected to take advantage of it. Bear well in mind our original notice in the Daily Workman. aug 3 St.

Ho, For Asheville. We were ordered this morning by the city authorities to remove our bill-boards from the trees where they had been standing for two weeks, and as the disappearance of the bills might give rise to the impression that our GRAND EXCURSION TO ASHEVILLE has been abandoned, we hereby reaffirm that the excursion will RUN ALL THE SAME, and a big crowd is expected to take advantage of it. Bear well in mind our original notice in the Daily Workman. aug 3 St.

Another Angel Gone. was the remark made by one of Greensboro's popular young men, yesterday morning, when the Fayetteville train pulled out from the depot with his best girl on board, but she returned to return in time to get a copy of the Speech of the "Battle of Guilford Court House," (for her library) which will be issued, in pamphlet form, from the presses of Messrs. Thomas, Beece & Co., about the first of September. The undersigned will call on our business men within the next ten days for their advertisements for the above work, and if you want to make advertising pay you now is your chance, as the pamphlet will have a good circulation, particularly throughout the Piedmont section of this State, and will be preserved as a matter of history, thereby making it a perpetual advertisement for those patronizing its pages. I guarantee satisfaction in every instance, and if you insert an advertisement in the pamphlet and are not satisfied with it after you see the book, no charge will be made. That's fair, ain't it? Then hold your orders until I call on you, and plant your advs. in good soil, that they may bring forth an abundance of good fruit. Hoping to merit and receive a share of the advertising patronage of the business men of Greensboro, I am, very respectfully, Aug 2 1 w H. J. ELAM.
