LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

For additional Local News, see 2d page. Be sure to report at this office any and every failure to receive the DAILY WORKMAN. The Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railway jumped across Little Yadkin beyond Dalton's yesterday, in its march to Mount Airy. Mr. R. P. Pell, son of the late Wm. E. Pell, was ordained to the ministry at the session of Orange Presbytery held at Cross-Roads church last week. There will be preaching in the Presbyterian church to-night and tomorrow night, and on Sabbath there will be, in addition to the regular preaching service, the communion. Prof. J. F. McCulloch, a native of this county, but for some time a professor in Adrian College, has commenced his year of special study in the Michigan University at Ann Arbor. The public sale of the lands of Mr. W. A. Caldwell, advertised in this paper to occur to-day at 10 o'clock, was withdrawn by the disposal of the whole tract to one person at private sale. Personal. Mr. J. S. Hunter has returned to his business in Baltimore. Judge Wilson, of Winston, Rev. Dr. J. B. Bobbitt, of Goldsboro, and Rev. J. B. Whitaker, of Raleigh, were at the railroad station this morning. Maj. Atkinson returned yesterday from a visit to the Little Yadkin advance post of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad.

VISIT TO CEDAR FALLS CIRCUIT. The editor spent last Sabbath and the day following with Rev. T. F. McCulloch at Randleman, on the Cedar Falls circuit. It was our first visit to the place since about 1868, and we found very marked changes, especially in the increase of population and the enlargement of manufacturing facilities. Since the completion of the Factory Branch railroad, whose terminus is at Millboro, four miles from Randleman, it is a comparatively easy matter to make the trip. We went down on Saturday evening, and on the arrival of the train at Millboro found Bro. McCulloch in waiting. Taking a hack we were soon at Worthville and safely lodged with Rev. W. C. Hammer, whose home is there. Rev. J. L. Giles also lives in the village. An appointment was made for preaching at night, and we had a very fair congregation to listen to a discourse of half an hour. On Sabbath morning we had a pleasant conveyance to Randleman with Mr. T. C. Worth, whose home is at Worthville, and enjoyed the ride through the fine September morning, whose skies were soft and placid and whose breezes were bracing and health-giving. Here at Mount Lebanon church, whose foundation as a Society dates back nearly half a century, we found but few familiar faces, but a number of others who had more recently come in to form the rank and file of the christian army. Bro. McCulloch is famous for his courtesy to visiting brethren, and in the one particular of pressing them to occupy the pulpit as frequently as possible he is almost phenomenal. We had started from home with an understanding with self that we would make one discourse, and then decline in favor of some other official, but we were put in for the fifth effort from Saturday night to Monday night. Early Tuesday morning the sprightly son of Mr. A. L. Lamb, a lad of some twelve years, came by with a horse and buggy, and by this courtesy we reached Millboro in good time for the morning train to Greensboro. The visit to Randleman was too short to afford the opportunity we desired in making observations and taking notes, but our engagements at home permitted no more. We saw Bros. Z. C. Lineberry and J. F. Kennett and their families, of the "original panel," and besides these Bros. W. J. Glass, R. W. Lineberry, Julian, Hanner, Ross, and the families of Mr. Parsons and his son, who live on the north side. On Monday afternoon we met our friend, Dr. J. E. Woollen, who came over to attend preaching, and who got his information that the editor was present from the Daily Workman of the Saturday before—otherwise he would not have known it. Of what we saw in these flourishing manufacturing towns the reader is referred to another article in this issue. Our friend, Rev. R. R. Moore, sent in this morning, in the articles of beets, roasting ears and potatoes—and very fine specimens they are—tangible proof of how he manages to feed the numbers of persons who daily call for entertainment at his boarding house. The beets are very fine, and so are the potatoes.

We are having another pleasant day. Two reputed highway robbers from North Carolina have been arrested in Norfolk. The Wilmington Star calls the dance house of that city a "den," and says it has been ordered closed. Mr. Buchanan has, at his store near the depot, a small white rooster of the Bantam stock, which he has petted until it will crow vociferously at his bidding. The strutting of the little rooster reminds us of some little short-legged and pretentious youngsters we have seen who spend the most of the time in stretching out their necks and crowing for the amusement of the public. Money Lost. A five-dollar bill in, or in front of, G. Will Armfield's store was lost Tuesday. The finder will be rewarded if it is returned to Mrs. E. P. Wootter's, or left at this office. For Sale.
