Miller Club Meets

Members of the Miller Home Demonstration Club enjoyed a demonstration given by Mrs. Brit Miller on "Strawberry Delights" when the club met November 21st. With Mrs. Andrew Miller. The ideas presented different ways to use frozen strawberries, which will be useful during the winter months.

Mrs. Flave Mercer told how to make an attractive Christmas decoration from coat hangers.

The house furnishing leaders reported given by Mrs. Otis J. Miller gave advice on painting inside the house. She mentioned the colors and which are most popular at this time.

Mrs. Frank Rhodes, clothing leader, stressed the importance of foundation garments. She pointed out that a person should be fitted with the garment not just pick up any that she finds when shopping.

Plans were made for the club to have a Christmas Decorating Contest, for the community. Not only club members but any housewife in the community is eligible to enter. Homes will be toured Dec 21st, and prizes will be awarded the winners.

Plans were made to visit Whaley Nursing Home in Kenansville again this year. On December 23rd at 5 p. m., gifts of fruit and candles and also Christmas presents will be presented to the patients, also a short program.

Mrs. Andrew Miller served refreshments to the 14 members present. Everyone then went into her kitchen to see the wonderful job she has done in the past year remodeling. It is real pretty from the floor up, has plenty of cabinets for everything, double sink, and other conveniences. It has to be seen for one to appreciate the transformation. She received advice for the job from the County Agent.

Quilting Party For Cuban Refugee Family

The members of Brookwood Baptist Church of the New River Baptist Association have done more than express words of sympathy for Cuban Refugees. After the various organizations had collected clothing, medical supplies, toilet-face and Willard in production, flavor, vigor of vine, and attractiveness, and is superior to Dearing in production and attractiveness of fruit.

Magnolia is a large attractive white grape with smooth skin. The grapes are of medium size and produced in medium large loose clusters. The fruit matures about one week later than Scuppernon and the flavor is good. The plants are vigorous and very productive. Magnolia is superior to Wallace and Willard in fruit size, appearance, flavor, sugar content, vigor and production, and is superior to Dearing in all of these qualities except vigor and sugar content.

Neither the Crops Research Division USDA, nor the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station has plants for sale. Plant increase is under the supervision of the N. C. Foundation Seed Producers for release to nurserymen for resale to the public in 1963. Inquiries concerning the availability of plants should be addressed to R. W. McMillen, N. C. State College Producers, N. C. State College Raleigh, N. C.

As the Pilgrims struggled ashore at Plymouth Rock, they left footprints of freedom. One good way to defend that freedom is with the regular purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds.

Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner
N. C. State College

Five new varieties of Muscadine grapes have been developed as a result of cooperative breeding work between the Crops Research Division of the USDA and the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station.

All of the varieties are perfect-flowered and may be planted alone, or used as pollenizers for such imperfect-flowered varieties as Scuppernon, James Thomas Hunt and others.

Albemarle is a large fruited, smooth blue-black variety of high dessert quality. It ripens about mid-season or along with Burgaw. The vine is vigorous, productive and resistant to leaf spot diseases. Albemarle is rated as being superior to Burgaw, Duplin and Tacheel in fruit size, sugar content and flavor.

Pamlico is a large fruited, light green variety of good flavor and attractive appearance. The fruit ripens about a week earlier than Dearing. The vine is vigorous, productive and has good foliage. Pamlico is superior to Willard and Wallace in flavor, fruit size, soluble solids, vigor and disease resistance, and is superior to Dearing in fruit size, appearance and flavor.

Chowan is light brown to bronze in color. The berries are large, borne in loose clusters and have a very pleasing aromatic sub-acid flavor. The fruit is somewhat similar to Scuppernon but a little larger in size and sweeter. The soluble solids content will average about 19 per cent which is 3 per cent higher than Scuppernon. Chowan ripens about a week earlier than Scuppernon. The vine is vigorous, productive and has good foliage. This variety is superior to Wallace and Willard in flavor, appearance, production and disease resistance.

Roanoke is a very attractive white grape with a tinge of golden yellow. The grapes are of medium size and ripen about a week earlier than Scuppernon. The vine is vigorous and productive. Roanoke is superior to Wal-
