

Child Psychologist To Visit Goldsboro

Goldsboro - Announcement is made by the Wayne County Mental Health Association that Dr. Louise B. Ames, noted child psychologist and Research Director with the Gesell Institute for Child Behavior, New Haven, Conn., will visit Goldsboro.

Mrs. William P. Kemp, Jr., President of the Wayne County Mental Health Association states a public meeting is scheduled for Wednesday morning, October 9th at 10 a.m. at the Wayne Center, downtown Goldsboro. Dr. Ames will speak on "School Readiness" and the emotional development of children at beginning school age.

"Dr. Ames visited Goldsboro two years ago," said Mrs. Kemp "and addressed a group of teachers and parents of primary children in the city. This year, we are working with the P.T.A. leaders in a six county district and inviting interested persons from Johnston, Wilson, Greene, Duplin, Sampson, and Wayne counties."

"Mrs. C. G. Erue, District P.T.A. Director has been most helpful in alerting member organizations and school principals in these six counties about this public meeting," said Mrs. Kemp. Some 500 teachers and parents are expected to attend the morning meeting in Goldsboro on October 9th.

Dr. Ames is co-author of a syndicated newspaper column, "Parents Ask" published in many of our state papers and had an article in the August Reader's Digest on the same topic entitled, "Maybe Your Child Is in the Wrong Grade." She is widely recognized as an authority in child behavior and development having been associated with the Gesell Institute since 1948 as Research Director. Prior to that time, Dr. Ames worked with the Yale Child Guidance Center.

Mrs. Kemp said, "We look forward to having Dr. Ames' return visit."

Mrs. Wray To Head New Super Dollar Store

Mrs. Geraldine Wray from Warsaw, N.C. has accepted a position as manager of the new Super Dollar Store on Front Street in downtown Warsaw. She said that the self-service "dollar" store will carry a full line of bargain-buy clothing, household goods, shoes, health and beauty aids, toys and novelties.

The new manager explained that by selling carefully selected values at bargain price only, Super Dollar Stores will be offering an entirely new and different source of family merchandise. She also said that frequent volume purchases of cancellations, closeouts and irregulars of name brand goods would mean unusually attractive buys for Warsaw bargain hunters.

Mrs. Wray said that grand opening would be in early October.

Mrs. Grady is assisted by Mrs. Mary Lou Miller, Mrs. Lillie Mae Moore and Mrs. Geraldine Humphrey.

Mr. Z. W. Frazzelli, principal of Kenansville School is proud of the new stainless steel fixtures that have been installed. These include a dish washer, sink, several work tables, a steam table and serving area. The items are paid for and were purchased with lunch room funds. ESEA funds have provided a mixer and cart, a silver dispenser. These items are also of stainless steel. Straw and napkin dispensers are made of wood.

The Kenansville Elementary School principal, teachers, pupils, lunch room manager and staff would like to have a new lunch room on the ground level which would have sunshine and ventilation.

All-Electric Schools Going Up Fast In Carolinas

RALEIGH - If a new school is in the offing for your district, the chances are better than ever these days that it will be heated electrically.

That's the word from W. P. McPherson, manager of commercial sales for Carolina Power & Light Company, which keeps close tabs on new school construction in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"All-electric schools are going up at an unprecedented rate, not only in CP&L's system, but in areas served by other power companies," McPherson said.

Already 1966 has proven to be the biggest year in history for new electrically-heated schools throughout CP&L's 30,000 square mile territory in the two Carolinas.

"We count a total of 17 new all-electric school facilities that have opened for the first time this year," said McPherson. "Of these, 14 are new schools and three are additions to older schools."

The latest - the Northern Nash High School, a new consolidated school in North Carolina's Nash County - is the 49th electrically-heated school facility to be opened in CP&L's territory since the first one in 1958.

"The value of economy of the all-electric school has been clearly demonstrated to people throughout the area," said McPherson.

Here are McPherson's figures on the all-electric school picture in CP&L's territory as of the first of September:

- In operation: 1,098 class rooms, 21 cafeterias, 4 libraries, 14 gymnasiums, 3 field houses.
- Under construction: 269 classrooms, 11 cafeterias, 2 gymnasiums, 1 library.
- Authorized for construction: 96 classrooms, 2 cafeterias, 2 gymnasiums.

"In addition to all this," McPherson said, "there are 408 all-electric mobile class rooms at various schools throughout the CP&L territory - all of which went into operation between 1962 and 1966."

The first all-electric school facility of any type in CP&L's territory was a new field house for the Clinton, N.C., high school, which was opened in 1958.

The first classroom facility was a four-room addition to the Faison school in Wadesboro, N.C., which was opened in September 1959.

All-electric school construction picked up noticeably in 1962, with Hartsville, S.C., setting the pace by opening two totally new schools, Hartsville high and Washington Street elementary.

In September 1963 the first to totally new electrically-heated school in North Carolina went into operation - the Pinkston Street school in Henderson.

The first all new, all-electric school with more than 25 classrooms was the Carroll Junior High in Raleigh, which opened its doors in September 1965 with 37 class rooms and a cafeteria and gymnasium.

"Today it has become commonplace for even the largest schools to go all-electric," McPherson said.

As examples, he cited the new plisgh senior high in Canton, N.C., 51 classrooms, cafeteria, gym and auditorium; Tuscola senior high, Lake Junaluska, N.C., same size; Person County consolidated high at Roxboro, N.C., 44 classrooms, gym and cafeteria; and the Laurinburg, N.C., high school, now being built, 50 classrooms, cafeteria and gym.

Putting his statistics another way, McPherson summed up the situation in the CP&L territory like this: 49 all-electric school facilities already in operation in more than 30 towns or counties; 17 being built in 14 locations; and 10 authorized for construction in the near future.

$75 TO BE AWARDED EACH WEEK

Starting this week each adult visiting either of the stores that sponsor this ad will be eligible to participate in this big money-awarding plan. You do NOT have to make a purchase in order to enter. Here's how the plan works:

On each visit ask our cashier for a blank cash register slip. You simply sign your name on this slip and deposit in box located near front of each store. You may also request a slip after each purchase. Tickets will be given starting this weekend. First drawing will be held at each store Saturday night, October 1st. Winners will be notified. Winning tickets must bear a date that has occurred during current week of drawing. In the event ticket drawn is other than current week of drawing, an additional $25 will be added by each store each week for the next drawing.

SOMEONE CAN WIN THIS

In order to make this plan more attractive we will give away a whopping $1000 to some lucky person. This prize will really be more than $1000. There has been deposited in the Bank of Mount Olive the sum of $1000 in an interest bearing savings account.

The tickets used in the drawings for the weekly awards will be placed in another box. Drawings will be held on the first Saturday in each month, or until someone wins.

Winner will be determined in this manner. One ticket will be drawn by a disinterested party. If your name should be drawn, you will be notified. Then you will draw one ticket. If the ticket you draw carries your name, you will be winner of $1000 plus accumulated interest. Consolation cash prize awarded if you do not draw your name.
