

Bear Marsh Church

Bear Marsh Church has a long Christian background of serving Duplin County and surrounding area. One exam of the service this histo irch has rendered during the past two centuries was to or-ganize and help found Johnsons Baptist Church at Lanefield. The Johnson Church in turn, and some years later, helped organize the Warsaw First Baptist Church which in turn began in 1959 a mission that developed in 1959 a mission that developed into Calvary Baptist Church.

The long history of the ministry of Bear Marsh began more than 200 years ago when according to a legend, a committee was organized to draw up designs for the construction of "this Church that all peoples might come together in Christian fellowship to worship their God," It was then found neces-sary that a committee be appointed to represent the wisdom of this great and important undertaking. It was further decided necessary to appoint a emmittee to represent the st-All materials, master builder and laborers were assembled to begin the building of the Temple. One morning the committee on Wisdom noticed that the men were standing idle to one was working, and everyone was in a state of utter confusion and the committee of wisdom cried out to the Committee on st-rength and said, "Why all the commotion, why aren't the men at work?" and the committee on strength replied, "There is no-one to set them to work, we do not have a committee on beauty to instruct them in the designs of spiritual construction." Immediately the third committee was formed to the workmen might see and know the spiritual designs not only that which beautifies and adorns the house of God but also that which beautifies and adorns the utifies and adorns the lives of those who were to construct God's house.

The great honor of heading this Committee on beauty was entrusted to none other than Nobles and Jeremiah two great leaders who iplified by their very own lives a virtuous and honorable conduct, and unfeigned piety to God and an inflexible fidelity to the great trust that was bestowed upon them. The Com-mittee on beauty brought to an end all idleness and confusion among the workmen, everyone had learned well that the test of true love is to see and to

The first building was loed about one mile northwest of the present building on what was known then as the Summeriin Farm, and on the land now owned by David Lane. The first building was burned in 1790. Having determined to have church in the midst the families of the community were not long in deciding to erect another building, and in 1794 the second church was built, this one being located just s the road from the prebuildings. The second building also was destroyed by fire, this one in 1850. In 1857 the present building was rected which had a balcony in it that was used for slaves. The balcony was removed in 1900, Kit James Enoch and Ned white, and Bill Allen, red, built the present build-

Among the outstanding ministers at Bear March Church was Dr. A. C. Dixon on whose life a book was written en-titled, "A Romance of Preach-ing." This book is still highly regarded and is read in many seminaries as parellel reading by young ministerial students. Dr. Dixon conducted a revival in 1875 at Bear Marsh and as a result, one hundred members were added to the church roll.

Another outstanding work was done in the church under the pastorate of the Rev. J. M. Duncan, who served the church from 1918 to 1926. It was during this period that a baptistry was built in the church and a Sunday School Department added, Mr. Duncan retired from the ministry and made his home in Murfreesboro, N. C.

On the unfinished business calendar are measures to li-beralize social security benefits, extend the poverty pro-gram, attack rising crime rates in the country, and a new package of civil rights proposals, in addition, one of the most pressing Congressional tasks relates to the passage of the thirteen regular appropriation bills, As of last week, most of the money bills where is the the money bills were in the hearing stage in Senate and House appropriation commit-tees. Two of the money bills for fiscal 1968 had been enacted into law, two others were in Senate-House conferences, and the remaining nine bills were in committees.

The appropriations status is indicative of the complexity of the task facing Congress on Federal expenditures and taxes. It is now apparent that if Congress votes for all of the Ad-ministration 's spending requests for fiscal 1968, revenues der the current tax structure will fall short of anticipe spending by as much as $20 billion. Such a deficit would fuel the fires of inflation and other economic problems.

To date, Congress has shown little enthusiasm for the President's earlier request for a six percent tax surcharge, and has instead been studying the appropriations bills to see what can be curtaile in the way of domestic and foreign aid pro-

increase in taxes on the ground

The truth is that there are marginal programs that should be phased out in preference to enacting new tax burdens for taxpayers who are often not convinced that the Federal Government must underwrite virtually all the endeavors that its citizens undertake to accomplish, A reduction of Federal spending will take courageous action by Congress and the President but it is the wiser course of action for a Government and a people dedicated to the principles of liberty. Economic freedom, including freedom from unnecessary taxes, is the basis of al' our liberties, For this reason, I do not propose to vote for any increase in income taxes until the Federal Government takes some needed steps to reduce expenditures for non-essential purposes, and makes it clear that a tax increase is absolutely necessary to our national defense.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I got some figgers here on my table that has 'o' me shook up I ain't much to read wind Divy Dean used to call "statics" when he was talking about baseball on television. But these statics here was mighty disturbing.

A feller named Stanton Evans, that was editor of the Indianapolis Star, has wrote a book about what causes crime in this country. I always figgered newspaper editors was pritty smart folks, and I ain't got no reason to think this feller Evans ain't got his figgers official.

The gist of this piece I clipand that welfare creates more crime than it cures.

He reported the Guvernment was spending $9.58 billion on tor, I know you got a lot of miswelfare in 1939, $35 billion in 1958, and $71 billion in 1964. And the crime figgers, he said, showed crime kept climbing right along with ever increase in welfare. Fer instant, he reported, when they had that riot in Los Angeles in 1965, they checked and found 37 per cent of the juveniles arrested had been on welfare all their lives.

Farthermore, said this editor feller, based on population, these fancy Federal housing developments had the highest crime rate of any type of community in the world. These was the areas where the Guvernment was charging low rents and most of the folks was on some sort of welfare or Guvernment handout program.

He put the stopper in the jug by giving figgers that showed crime in this country never got ped from the papers is that pov- in high gear from poverty but erty ain't the cause of crime started going sky high when we went on this all-out welfare and hand-out binge that covered He says crime in the United thousands of folks engaged in

In a southern city a few years ago a young lady in a courtroom came to the witness stand to testify in her own behalf in a breach of promise suit. "That man," she said, as she pointed to her former flancee, "made love to me, promised to marry me, and then ran off and married another woman. He broke my heart and I want $10,000." She got it. The next case was a damage suit brought by a woman who had been run over by an automobile and had three ribs broken. She was awarded $275, What a sense of values!

A lot of husbands must have read reports of this case in the newspapers. They operate on the philosophy that it is cheaper to break a wife's ribs than it is to break her heart. Some break both ribs and heart. At least, according to our story, hearts are worth more than This would be true in every case that I know except one the first man Adam's rib. God took one of his ribs and made Eve. Therefore, man's first in a broken rib. It hasn't been the last time either. The broken rib, in Adam's case, however, brought great joy to him. It forbids cruel and unusual punishment. Well, the punishment meted out by Municipal Judge John B. Lawrence of San Bernardino, Calif., to a couple of teen-age girls who pleaded guilty to shoplifting as certainly unusual. Some might even say it was downright cruel...What Judge Lawrence did was to order the two girls, both overweight, to whack off 10 and 15 pounds respectively was not long before Adam had a broken heart to go along with his broken rib. That smarted a The world's first family had sinned. Why was this the case? Each member of that family, both Adam and Eve, lost their sense of values. The fruit of the tree took on a value higher than it should have Material things were suddenly valuable

I guess it was at this point that history began repeating itself. From that day until the present moment men have got-ten their wires crossed. Men keep making the same mistake that Adammade, When the world kicks in our ribs we while, but then, rather that rising above the world's standard by believing in a practicing noble deeds, we give in. We adopt the world's level of groveling existence. By doing this we ex-change broken ribs for a broken heart.

What are the valuable things in life for you? Be honest with yourself! In ten years how va-luable will this thing be that is now of infinite worth to you. How about twenty years? When you come to the end of the road and look backward how much comfort, strength, and ope will you derive from those things to which you give your undivided attention now? What I am saying is that you are betting your life, and also your eternal life, on what you treasure the most. It is best that you give your life to something that will last. Your sense of values involves more than the immediate present. It involves forever. In making these points I am not trying to rib you. I seek a heart to heart talk with you about your heart. How well is your heart? "As a manthinketh in his heart, so is he." (Provarbs).
