

ARENDELL PARROT ACADEMY FALL FAIR - Would you like to own a brand new Datsun Sentra? A ten-speed bike? A gas grill? A casual outfit from Josh Allen's? A new T.V.? Banner House luggage from Brody's? Are antiques, crafts, needlework, ceramics and novel Christmas gifts your thing? Are you looking for bargains in children's toys? Does the thought of fresh-baked food, home-frozen and canned goods and local produce make your mouth water? Does the sight of lush green plants and exotic flowers cause your green thumb to itch? Do you like Nantucket shirts at bargain prices? Do you enjoy King's barbecue and a carnival that features a very special guest? Would you like to take your children through the House of the Christmas Mouse to do their Christmas shopping? Would you like to have a fun day with your family and finish your Christmas shopping? If you answered "yes" to any one of these questions, then follow the Reeces Pieces to the Arendell Parrot Academy Fall Fair on Saturday, Oct. 30th. On that day from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., APA's gym will be brimming with unique bargains in clothing, plants, food, crafts, ceramics, needlework, toys and handcrafted Christmas treasures. Two new booths will be added this year. A sample of the Father's Booth includes an oriental dinner and an all-day fishing trip. The other booth — The House of the Christmas Mouse — was created especially for children. They can purchase inexpensive gifts for family and friends. Also, Kathie Housed Bogue, a nationally-known silhouette artist, will be creating silhouettes. Outside, an "extra-terrific" carnival will take place. The out-of-this-world guest will be right at home with the Moonwalk and Swing Jets. Video games will abound. Special treats for kids, young and old, will be various attractions ranging from karate by "Doc" Stroud to an airplane show by New River Model Aviators. Student booths will include a ring toss, fishing pond and the seasonal Haunted House. From 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., King's will cater a barbecue lunch. Other carnival culinary delights will be hot dogs, cotton candy, popcorn and soft drinks. At Arendell Parrot Academy located on the Airport Road in Kingston, everybody gets into the act to make this day a fun-filled tradition. ### Army Wants Choosey People

The Army is offering young people a lot of choices these days.

According to Sergeant William Fitzgerald, Army recruiter in Clinton, there is a program which enables high school seniors to join the Army now and report for duty after their graduation. In the Army they will get their choice of either the skill training they want to learn or the first place they would like to be stationed.

"We call it the Delayed Entry Program (DEP), and it is perfect for high school seniors. It gives them time to get their high school diploma the foundation for almost every opportunity in life. Colleges certainly require it, as do most jobs worth having. The Army wants enlistees to finish high school, too. That's why we give you the time to do it," said Fitzgerald.

Under DEP, you get a guarantee of your choice of training, and there is a lot to choose from. The Army has more than 300 skill areas in fields as diverse as automobile and aircraft mechanics, surveying and foreign language interpreting. After two or three years in the Army, many of the skills can be used in civilian life.

"Or, if you prefer, you can have your choice of the first place you'd like to be stationed. That is attractive to high school seniors. A lot of young people have chosen to see Europe while serving at one of our posts in West Germany. Others prefer to stay closer to home, and that can be worked out, too."

"College is also very much in the picture," says Fitzgerald. "Through the Army College Fund, qualified soldiers can accumulate up to $15,200 for college in a short two-year enlistment, or up to $20,100 for three years. The Army wants and needs high quality individuals. That's why we urge you to get your diploma. Complete your senior year knowing that you've planned for your future."
