

FUNDS FOR AGRICULTURE PROGRAMS - The Duplin County Farm Bureau donated $200 to each of Duplin's four county high school agriculture programs. The funds were presented during the R. Flake Shaw scholarship fund-raising dinner March 17 in

Farm Bureau Women Meet

The Duplin County Farm Bureau Women's Committee held its annual R. Flake Shaw Memorial Scholarship supper on March 17th at the Duplin County Farm Bureau Building. The Women's Committee served a covered-dish supper to the board of directors and their wives, along with members and other special guests. The tables were decorated with a St. Patrick's Day motif, featuring white candles and green shamrocks. There was a total of approximately 50 persons attending.

The money made by this supper will be donated to the N.C. Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company to help sponsor the scholarship which is available for students attending a four-year college in home economics or agriculture or related subjects. The two-year Agriculture Institute at North Carolina State University qualifies. Community colleges and technical institutes are excluded. Eligibility requirements for this scholarship are based on need for financial assistance; satisfactory scholastic record; leadership potential; and character. The scholarship is in the amount of $750 per year. The applications are submitted to the Duplin County Farm Bureau. From the applications, one is selected to be submitted for consideration by the N.C. Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company.

The Women's Committee is very active each year in helping to raise the money for the 24 scholarships given each year. The supper is one of the major tasks they undertake to raise the money.

Attending were invited special guests including: Mr. and Mrs. D.J. Fussell and Ms. Dovic L. Penney, county commissioners; Jesse Peel Smith and Robert Shelton Grady, agriculture teachers; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Worthington, associate sales director for N.C. Farm Bureau; Ms. Emily Killete and Ms. Lucille Blizard, newspersons; and Lamar Ketslesleger from Joan of Arc.

Following the supper, President Jack Williams introduced the special guests and explained the function of the supper. He expressed the desire of the Farm Bureau to promote agriculture in our area among the young persons in the county. To help in this promotion, the two ag teachers attending the supper were invited to come forward. Smith, agriculture teacher for North Duplin, and Grady, ag teacher for East Duplin, were each presented $200 from the Farm Bureau to use for agricultural purposes. Plans are made to present checks to the two other ag departments in the two surrounding high schools.

Williams also presented a check to Mrs. Lorena Vestal, chairperson for the Women's Committee for the cost of the meal. Mrs. Lena Edwards, co-chairperson, also participated in accepting. The check will be used to donate to the R. Flake Shaw Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The Duplin County Farm Bureau also offers a $500 scholarship each year to students attending college in the field of agriculture and home economics. This information will be provided to the individual schools and applications on these will be accepted at the Duplin County Farm Bureau also.

SCHOLARSHIP SUPPER - The Duplin County Farm Bureau Women's Committee sponsored a fund-raising supper for the R. Flake Shaw Scholarship March 17 at the Farm Bureau building in Kenansville. The scholarship fund-raiser is an annual event. The $750 scholarship is given each year to young persons attending a four-year college in the agricultural field. The scholarship funds are donated by the North Carolina Farm Bureau Company according to the number of attending the supper. DCAC Fund Drive Reaches 1/3 Of Goal

The 1983 fund drive for the Duplin County Arts Council has been extended through the month of April, announced executive director Merle Creech Monday. "The schools have been doing a wonderful job in raising money for next year's programming," said Mrs. Creech, "and now we want to let everyone else in Duplin County know just how much we appreciate and need their support."

The goal of this year's drive is $12,000. As of March 21, approximately $4,500 has been turned in. "Many areas in the county have not turned in their monies collected," reported Mrs. Creech, "but the touch of spring weather and healthier conditions should lift spirits and increase mobility of workers." All money collected are used for programming. The position of Arts Council director is a county seat and therefore all collections are turned back to Duplin County citizens in the form of programs.

"Most of our programs go into the schools," reported Mrs. Creech. "This year has been exciting in that, for the first time, every single one of our 17 schools has had at least two programs from the Arts Council. My biggest concern towards meeting our fund drive goal of $12,000 is that we will be able to continue bringing quality arts at this frequency to the children in the county."

The schools are not the only places to see the Arts Council at work. This year the CART program has taken art into businesses. Many senior citizen centers have also had a visit from an AC artist. At the county fair, the quilt show, the school art display and the Green Grass Cloggers were sponsored by the Arts Council. In addition, many clubs and groups have turned to the DCAC for help in programming.

"Our volunteers cannot reach every person and business in the county. We would appreciate all citizens in Duplin responding to our fund-raising campaign and to send their contribution directly to the Duplin County Arts Council, P.O. Box 36, Kenansville, NC 28349." Creech concluded, "Duplin County has had a rich year in the arts this past year. Let's make it even better in 1983-1984."
