Duplin County School Day

L.S. Guy, superintendent of Duplin County schools, has set aside April 21 as Duplin County School Day. "Citizens, business people and industrial personnel are invited to visit the schools and see first-hand how the schools function on a day-to-day basis," said Guy.

Dr. Austin Carter, coordinator of the schools, stated that in Duplin "we are proud of the history of support for education of Duplin County. The people of the county care for their children and seek to provide for their educational needs." Carter went on to point out "Duplin County School Day has been designated to permit parents, business and industrial leaders and interested citizens the opportunity to visit their schools while in session."

"The Board of Education recognizes the importance of community involvement in the development of a strong educational system," Carter said. "Our schools are fortunate to have people who care," he added.

All schools will be competing for prizes which will be awarded based on attendance of parents, business and industrial leaders as well as citizens.

The judging will be divided in three categories: elementary, junior high and senior high schools.

The public is invited to visit their local schools for a first-hand view of public education today in Duplin County.

Rabies Facts

Rabies is a preventable disease that can attack man, dog, cat, fox, racoon, skunk, bat or other warm-blooded animals (except rodents). It is caused by virus present in the saliva of a rabid animal.

The rabies virus reaches the brain by way of the nerves and once rabies develops, it is always fatal to both man and animals. However, if started soon enough, antirabies treatment in the human will prevent the disease from developing in most cases.

Rabid animals show different symptoms. In the dog or cat, one of the first symptoms is a changed personality and disposition. If your animal is sick, seek the advice of your veterinarian and follow his recommendations.

Wildlife Rabies

Rabies in dogs and cats has not increased in North Carolina, but there has been an increase in the wildlife population south of us in recent years. Beware of any wild animal seen in the daytime and which seems friendly. These animals are sick and may have rabies. Normally, the fox, racoon and skunk forage from sundown until dawn and avoid people. When they become ill from rabies they have a complete change in personality, roam great distances at any time, and lose all fear of man. They will invade farm yards and buildings, chase chickens and even enter homes and cars if the door is open. They will attack and bite any animal or person who gets in their way. Rabies can be introduced into our wildlife population at any time. Care should be used in handling foxes, racoons, skunks and other wildlife which appear to be sick or dead.

Bat rabies is present in the majority of states and may play a role in the spread among other wildlife. Caution should be used in handling bats. It is best to leave them alone. Bats do not normally perch on porches or hide in shrubbery in the day time. One should never try to administer to what appears to be a wounded or crippled bat. It would not be there if it were healthy. Children should be warned of this danger.

In 1981, there were 19 cases of rabies in bats found in North Carolina. Also, in 1981, there were more cases of rabies found in cats than dogs in South Carolina. Some of these were along the S.C./N.C. border.

Recently pet skunks purchased from pet dealers in various states have been found rabid and were trapped from the wild. Wild animals do not generally make satisfactory pets. It is not recommended that wild animals be kept as household pets. Any captured wild animal may have been exposed to rabies and may develop the disease as long as six months after capture. No rabies vaccines are available to immunize wild animals.

Control Measures

Should you suspect abnormal behavior among wildlife or come in contact with a suspicious animal, report the incident in detail to your county dog warden. Outbreaks among wildlife can be controlled if reported early by limited trapping programs supervised by county authorities.

What to do if Bitten

In every case of animal bite or scratch, see your physician at once. As a first-aid precaution, wash all animal bites immediately and thoroughly for 15-20 minutes with a warm soap solution. Notify your dog warden and local health department. Biting animals should be captured if possible. If capture is not possible safely, the animal should be killed and held for the dog warden.

The JIM HUNT Record

Subject: Taxes and the N.C. Campaign Fund (Hunt PAC)

Jim Hunt Did: Jim Hunt's N. C. Campaign Fund<sup>1</sup> to defeat Jesse Helms was set up by his friend Richardson Preyer,<sup>2</sup> with Hunt's patronage and your tax dollar.<sup>3</sup>

The $66,000 Man!

Jim Hunt

Did Jim Hunt's PAC Use Your Tax Dollars To Set Up The NCCF?

- First, Jim Hunt's Political Action Committee Chairman, Richardson Preyer was paid a state salary of $66,000 for teaching a few hours a week at the University of North Carolina.<sup>3</sup>
- Then Preyer got fifteen of Hunt's political cronies, four of them on the state payroll, to lend Hunt's PAC $40,000.<sup>4</sup>
- While a state employee (earning $66,000 a year),<sup>3</sup> Preyer and the Hunt PAC held press conferences attacking Hunt's opponent.<sup>3,5</sup>
- Hunt and Preyer then traveled to New York,<sup>6</sup> Atlanta,<sup>7</sup> and Washington<sup>8</sup> to raise over $165,000<sup>9</sup> for the Hunt PAC.
- The Hunt PAC bought newspaper ads attacking Hunt's opponent<sup>10,11,12</sup> that even the liberal media said were false and misleading.<sup>13,14</sup>
- The Hunt PAC got thousands of dollars from Sol Linowitz (who negotiated the Panama Canal giveaway),<sup>15</sup> Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other liberal millionaires and union bosses.<sup>7,16</sup>
- The Hunt PAC is mailing over a million fundraising letters, attacking Hunt's opponent, to raise millions from the liberal activists outside North Carolina.<sup>17,18</sup>

So, the taxpayers shelled out $66,000 — and Jim Hunt got his Political Action Committee.
