SON of A gun

Thanksgiving 1983. Is this the one that will bring you back some of the meaning of Thanksgiving, or is it just a holiday? A day off from work? Any name would do just so it is a holiday? ... It is not a day set aside just to watch football games and drink beer. It is a day to give thanks for what you have — to stop and look around and think about what you have and appreciate it. ... I have so much to be thankful for. ... my family, Donna, Jimmy, Gwen and her family, my Mom, my Dad, Donna's Mom, and I could go on down the line with sister, uncles, aunts, cousins, friends and so on. ... All people. All individuals, non-replaceable. ... I am especially thankful I was able to rediscover my parents. ... to see them as people, not just as Mom and Dad. ... To see their individual characters. Sometimes we are so involved in ourselves and what we are doing, or trying to do, that we don't really ever discover our parents. They are just Mom and Dad. We love them. They brought us into the world, took care of us until we struck out on our own. We never really thought about their lives or of them as we would a neighbor. ... I did, as most youngsters do, grew up and moved away to make my fortune. After many years I decided I was not one of those that would strike it rich. I had seen the world, had many experiences, but was tired of working just for the job. ... So, I returned to my hometown. As I was no longer chasing the dollar, I made some amazing discoveries. ... I discovered the people inside my Mom and Dad, my Uncle Bill, my Uncle Carl. It was and has been a very pleasant discovery. I had some bad times with myself and the bottle, but I was even able to discover how foolish that was about 10 years ago, with Donna's help. I have many, many things to be thankful for this Thanksgiving. Quite frankly, I am thankful for every day. I hope your Thanksgiving will be just as wonderful. I will spend mine with my family eating Donna's cooking. ...

reunion dinner, a white back, I saw this fellow from Warsaw and overheard him say, "When I got out of church I saw several people getting into a car and I decided there was a dinner someplace. ... So I got in my car and followed. ... And here I am. ... Son-of-a-Gun. ..."
