

Whaley To Perform In "MESSIAH"

The Mount Olive College concert choir, Free Will Baptist Choral society and volunteers from the community will present two performances of Handel's Messiah on Dec. 6 at 11 a.m. in Rodgers Chapel on the campus and at 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Mount Olive. There is no admission charge. Frankie Whaley, son of L. Franklin Whaley Sr. of Kenansville will sing the recitative "For Behold Darkness." Whaley is a student at MOC. The evening performance will include a chamber orchestra consisting of professional musicians from the Raleigh area, some of whom perform with the N.C. Symphony. Craig Barfield, organist at S. Timothy's Church in Raleigh, will be the organist. Carolyn Knox, professor of music at MOC, will conduct the choirs. She is a member of the American Choral Directors' Association and has done extensive work as a clinician in choral conducting and church music throughout eastern North Carolina. Prof. Knox is a graduate of East Carolina University and has studied at Westminster Choir College, Penn State and Duke University.

Along the Way

By Emily Killeto

The mass production of automobiles and their incorporation into daily American life resulted in the opening of many sales, maintenance and fuel centers and drew a close to the blacksmith trade and eventually local rural passenger and freight train services.

Motor Company, was owned and operated by R.E. Wall. The Motor Company also operated a garage selling Standard Oil products. Norwood's Garage was operated by Norwood and Milton West. Along with work as a garage, the Wests sold Oldsmobiles, GMC trucks, Chrysler and Plymouth cars.

Warsaw residents recognized the prosperous automotive trade and many sales, service and fuel centers opened in town. The April 18, 1940 issue of THE DUPLIN TIMES featured Warsaw garages, service stations, automobile dealerships and fuel distributors.

The Shell Service Station was operated by George Henry Best, and another Texaco sales center was George Hopkin's Service Station. The Amoco Service Station was owned by Charlie Burnette and operated by Alton Jackson. Cities Service Station was operated by Frank Thomas.

Within Warsaw, five oil distributing companies were located. Standard Oil Distributing was operated by Paul Britt, and Cities Service distributing was operated by Clay McCullen. The Amoco Distributing plant was operated by Charlie Burnett; Texaco Distributing was owned by E.F. Strickland and Conoco Distributing by C.L. Aldridge.

Over the past weeks, Along the Way has re-counted articles published in THE DUPLIN TIMES about the growth of Warsaw. The first of the series reviewed communication and transportation centers and department stores. The second of the Along the Way series reviewing 1940 businesses in the town of Warsaw featured grocers furniture, appliance and hardware stores. The third of the series reviewed agricultural oriented businesses in Warsaw during 1940. Last week, the fourth in the series featured service facilities such as barber and dry cleaning and shoe shops.

A variety of sales and service centers, stations, and garages were open in the town of Warsaw and each specialized in name brand products — Texaco, Amoco, Gulf, Atlantic, Sinclair, Conoco, Pure, Shell, Chevrolet, GMC, Oldsmobile, Chrysler, Plymouth, Ford, Buick and Pontiac. Strickland Sales and Service was the distributor of Texaco fuel and dealer for Buick and Pontiac automobiles. The Owner and operator was E.F. Strickland. The Pure Oil Station was operated by Allen Draughon and Wilson's Esso was a station run by Bill S. Wilson. A Welding Equipment and Supply Company was in operation by Sterling Mariner dealing in the wholesale distribution of welding equipment. Currie Motors was the Ford dealership. The dealership also maintained a garage and service station.

The series will conclude next week with a look at the 1940 drug stores and dime store in Warsaw.

Stanford Homemakers Extension Club

Our meeting was called to order by our president, Mrs. Angie Smith. We sang a hymn and Mrs. A.R. Southland said a prayer.

Our annual Christmas party was planned for Dec. 21. Every Christmas, as a good-will offering, each member would give a senior citizen of their choice a gift. This year we will give a senior citizen a gift and also invite them to our party. We hope this will help brighten their holidays.

One member, Mrs. Edith Fennell, has not been able to meet with us because of illness; a love offering of a fruitbasket will be taken to her.

Mrs. Bertha Smith was hostess for the afternoon. The snacks were a nice climax to an enjoyable day.

On behalf of Stanford Homemakers Extension Club, I wish you all a happy holiday season and may God be with you.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED - Mrs. Mary Lillie Moore announces the engagement and forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Lillie Doris, to Thomas Best of Warsaw. A December 31st wedding is planned at Kenansville First Baptist Church. No invitations will be mailed to local friends and relatives. Everyone is cordially invited.

Gift Idea

An Answer To Tired Feet

If busy Christmas shoppers were polled as to their preference for a gift for themselves, it's likely that many would answer: "something to soothe my tired feet!"

There is an ingenious appliance on the market that can fill the bill. Not only is it a boon after a long day of shopping, but also it can be ideal for active athletes, hikers and campers—even those who've spent an evening on the dance floor.

This item is called the Foot Saver™ Plus. It's from the Dazey people, who have devised many items for home and family.

The handy vibrating bath unites wet heat, massage and aeration to maximize comfort and relief. It stimulates tired muscles and the full depth tub brings wet heat to aching feet, hands, wrists and elbows.

It's a great way to unwind, relax and feel great.
