

Duplin's Pro Rick Green announces the annual Polar Bear tournament to be staged at his club Saturday, Jan 7, this weekend, so get ready to start your golf season by playing in this event. The Polar Bear will get underway with breakfast at the club at 9 and tee time at 10. The two-man (member-member or member-guest) will include a format which will see the two players playing best ball on nine and alternating ball on the other nine. Such twosomes that you will do battle with should you play in this exciting event include the combo of Gerald Quinn teaming with Lloyd Parker, Jerry Smith and Elvis Bostic, Sherman Futch and Wayne Nunn, Buster Johnson and Spider Mathis, Ronnie Batts and Jack Hill, Carl Price and Fisher Carlton, and the dangerous Herman Knight and Dwight Wood. By the way, down the list we see the favorites, Mark Vinson and Joe Costin teamed in the famous Polar Bear. Entry fee will be just $20 for breakfast and a full day of enjoyable fun at the club. Rain or shine, this tournament will be played. Member, call a member or guest and plan to play. See you at the club for breakfast at 9 o'clock.

If you would really like to help someone and enjoy doing it, join the scores that have donated $30 to the American Lung Association of North Carolina and in return receive golf privileges at 37 top golf courses in the Piedmont and eastern North Carolina. Wouldn't you like to play the beautiful Bald Head course at Southport or Echo Farms, or River Bend, or Finley at Chapel Hill, or even Olde Point and still be helping someone. Call Pro Rick Green at Duplin, 296-9019, or any other local pro shop. The golf privilege card is good through 1984. For details call Pro Green!!

The very best to you from the 19th Hole in '84.

WINS BRONZE AWARD - A Duplin Wine Cellars' Magnolia 1981 vintage wine won a bronze award in eastern wine competition sponsored by "Eastern Grape Grower and Winery News Magazine."

The contest, in Rochester, N.Y. attracted 675 wines from 106 wineries. The 25 judges awarded medals to 35 percent of the entries. David Fussell, president of Duplin Wine Cellars of Rose Hill, said about 600 acres of Magnolia grapes are grown in the state. The grapes used in the award winning wine were produced by Burl Williamson of Sampson County. Fussell said the winery produced 7,000 gallons of Magnolia wine in 1981.

Along the Way

By Emily Killeto

Even though it was grown on the farm, cotton was quite different from the feather beds many agricultural families had slept on for decades. The June 13, 1940 issue of THE DUPLIN TIMES carried a story offering cotton mattresses to low-income families in America.

According to the article, applications were being accepted from low-income families for the cotton mattresses. Eligible families could not have income of more than $400 and half of that had to be derived from the farm. Applications were submitted to the Duplin Committee of the Agricultural Conservation Association.

The purpose of the project was to help use up surplus cotton and thereby help raise the price of cotton on the market. Another goal was to provide low-income families with a good cotton mattress and also teach farm families how to make good mattresses at a low cost using the products they had grown.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation was furnishing the cotton and ticking for the mattresses. But, in order to be eligible, low-income families had to participate in the making of the mattress. Equipment to make the mattresses was provided through funds from Duplin County. Only 120 mattresses were available in Duplin and applications had to be submitted by June 20. The deadline for the program was June 30.

Duplin County Social Services offers three programs for low-income families in energy-related crisis. Like times in the 1940s, many local families needed assistance to provide a warm and comfortable home. And, local citizens as well as government agencies throughout the history of our country have provided help for the less fortunate.

According to Millie Brown, director of the Duplin Social Services, Carolina Power and Light employees and company have established a fund for energy crisis in low-income families. The Social Services department has also worked to coordinate financial assistance between churches and local citizens. Two government-funded energy programs are available at the Social Services department. Applications ended in the Low Income Energy Assistance program November 31, but funds are available through the Crisis Intervention program.

A minimum amount of emergency funds for heating is available through the Duplin Department of the Services to the Aged. However, Services to the Aged Director Walter Brown said some help to the aged and handicapped for home winterization is done through the Energy and Weatherization Service of Du-Pen-a in Rose Hill.
