Extension Homemakers Meet

The Christian Chapel Extension Homemakers met recently in the home of Margaret Ard. Audrey Powell, president, opened the meeting. Vice-president Lynda W. Stroud gave a report on the medical center project. The club plans to donate and plant a piece of shrubbery or tree on the medical center lot to beautify the entire area. Speaker for the evening meeting was Joretta Durant, a Kinston attorney. She enlightened the ladies with information and pointers to guide them in the future whatever their destiny may be. The group found Miss Durant to be both informative and charming. Pictured, left to right, Margaret Ard, Audrey Powell and Joretta Durant.

Smith Files For Re-Election

needs of our children, and, in a year from now, we will have reached the highest accreditation level possible for public schools — both at the state and national level.

"In our school system we have some of the very best teachers, administrators and support staff. I look forward to continuing my work with them for our children in Lenoir County. If re-elected, I pledge to continue to serve the people of Lenoir County and to always give the education of young people top priority."

Smith is a resident of the Woodington community and has served on the Lenoir County Board of Education for 12 years and as its chairman for 10 years. He now serves as state vice-president and member of the executive committee of the N.C. School Boards Association. He also represents this association on the National Legislation committee.

"I file for re-election to the Lenoir County Board of Education based on my record of serving as a member of that board and my conviction that the next four years will be most important in the future direction of our county schools," said J. Oliver Smith on filing for re-election to the Lenoir County Board of Education.

"I am tremendously proud of the progress we have made in our programs and facilities. We have been able to reorganize our schools to meet most modern education

Lenoir Extension Production Meetings

Profit is the name of the game in farming, and one of the few ways a farmer can increase his profit is through more efficient production, says Alan A. Herper, associate agricultural extension agent of Lenoir County.

High yields and crop mix are the other ways to increase profit, but the weather controls yields while soil type and rotational considerations often determine crop mix.

This means that the farmer can best increase his net profit by controlling his cost of production.

Efficient production will be the theme for farmer meetings to be held around Lenoir County. Johnnie Jones and Alan Harper will discuss and answer questions about corn, soybeans and tobacco. Answering your questions and providing information you might need will be of primary importance.

Jones will provide the latest information on varieties, fertilization and disease control for corn and soybeans in 1984. Harper will have up-to-date information on the tobacco program and tobacco production for 1984.

The meetings will start at 7 p.m. and last no more than two hours. The following meetings are scheduled: Feb. 9 at Hugo Volunteer Fire Department, and Feb. 21 at Sandy Bottom Fire Department.

Governor Appoints Thigpen To State Board Of Nursing

Ms. Donna S. Thigpen, director of administrative affairs at James Sprunt Technical College, has been appointed to a second three-year term on the N.C. State Board of Nursing by Gov. James B. Hunt Jr.

This board is responsible for accrediting nursing programs and for licensing nurses to practice in the state. The 15-member board is composed of nine elected RNs, four elected LPNs and two "representatives of the public" who are not practicing nurses, appointed by the governor.

In addition, the board conducts site visits to health services agencies such as nursing homes and hospitals to ensure that nursing services are in accordance with the standards established by the Nursing Practice Act.
