Addition To Medical Association Staff

A specialist in medical and surgical treatment of foot disorders has joined physicians at Duplin Medical Association, Inc.

Dr. Joyce Farmer, a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of St. Joseph's University with special study in podiatric medicine, has begun seeing patients at the Warsaw, Rose Hill, Beulaville and Pink Hill offices of Duplin Medical Association.

Dr. Joyce Farmer

"Many people have foot disorders, often ones that can be relieved through one or two visits," Dr. Farmer, podiatric specialist, said. "It's as satisfying for me as for the patient to have them walking without the previous pain or discomfort. It is also essential for diabetic patients to obtain professional foot care." Disorders of the feet should be treated by a combination of the physician, the surgeon and the specialist in podiatry. Problems with the feet are the result of injury, misuse, abuse and poor care. According to statistics an estimated 50 percent of the elderly have significant problems with their feet that go unrecognized and not treated.

"Prevention of foot problems, or at least early attention to those that may arise, are the keys to avoiding more drastic measures, especially for the diabetic patient," Dr. Farmer said.

Dr. Farmer is an undergraduate of Sexton Hill College and has recently completed a residency in podiatric medicine and surgery at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital in Wilkes Barre, Pennsylvania. She is married to a member of the U.S. Army stationed in North Carolina. The Farmers have resided in the state since September of 1983.

As a podiatric specialist, Dr. Farmer will be treating foot disorders of the nails, fungus infection of the nails and skin, corns, calluses, bunions, ulcers, gout, rheumatoid arthritis, injuries to the feet and osteoarthritis.
