

TRYON

Mrs. J. B. Hester spent Tuesday in Spartanburg.

Mrs. A. J. Knox spent Tuesday in Spartanburg.

The Misses Patkin left for a two weeks' visit in Detroit.

Miss Edna Stackhouse spent Sunday with friends in Inman.

Mrs. Nelson Jackson came in Wednesday for a short visit to Tryon relatives.

Mrs. George Mackay of Greenville, N. C., is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. C. Belie.

Misses Fred Young and Wilbur Johnson, of Asheville, were in Tryon Wednesday.

Mrs. Dean, of Spartanburg, and her children, have taken the big Bell for the season.

Have you noticed the broad grin on Jimmy Rion's face? Well, it's a girl.

To meet the rapidly increased cost of living, the salary of the Lanier librarian has been doubled.

As the cannon fodder goes to the front, the corn fodder is harder to grow and to gather.

Nearly a score of colored men in Tryon and vicinity have recently left for military duty in the cantonments.

There is such a thing as a between grass and hay season, but the war gardeners have yet to notice a between weeds period.

Mr. Postmaster Stearns is confined to his house with a threatened attack of acute appendicitis. Miss Edith Thurston is acting as an assistant at the postoffice.

Mrs. Giles and daughter, Miss Malinda, left for Flat Rock, Wednesday, where they will spend one week, and then go on to New York for an indefinite stay.

Mr. Link has left Tryon to go into the lumber and asphalt business at Spartanburg. His family, who have been occupying the Garrigue house, will follow soon.

One had only to look up to the absolutely clear and perfectly blue sky the early part of the week, to recognize the "heavenly" weather Tryon so frequently enjoys.

Rev. John W. Langley and Miss Bessie Jackson were married last Wednesday, at the home of the parents of Miss Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. L. Jackson, near Tryon.

The executive committee of the Red Cross Chapter will meet on Friday, July 5, at three p. m., at the Peoples Bank, instead of Thursday, the usual date, which comes on the Fourth.

We beg to acknowledge the gift of some choice Japanese plums from Mr. W. B. Kruse. When it comes to growing something just a little better than most folks, Mr. Kruse is always "there."

The steady patrons of the Missildine soda fountain are wondering whether the closing down July 1st all that have used up their allotment of sugar, will make it a dry town for them. They say it will be a hard dose to swallow.

A Tryonite's subscription to the War Stamp has greatly aided to fill out the quota. He disclaims patriotic disinterestedness on the grounds that Uncle Sam promises to pay four and one-half per cent free of all obligation. Too good a thing to overlook or let get by.

A nine year old Tryon kid on being invited to call on the Union, South Carolina Camp Fire Girls and pick out a sweetheart, promptly replied, "Thank you very much, but I've got one already." You can't get up early enough even these day-light-saving days to get ahead of Tryon kids.

For selling an excessive quantity of sugar to a consumer, the Wilmington branch of C. D. Kenny Company has been allowed to contribute $100 to the local chapter of the Red Cross and close its doors for a few days in lieu of being black-listed and thus forced out of business.

State Food Administrator, Mr. Henry A. Page, has requested all merchants in North Carolina to stop buying or selling corn meal by the peck or bushel, but to buy and sell by the pound, during the continuation of the war, at least. There is no earthly reason why corn meal should be sold by the peck or bushel, but should be sold by the pound.

We are in receipt of a card from Dr. B. H. Teague from his home at Alton, S. C., stating that he will be in Saluda on July 1st and will remain there for three months. Dr. Teague has been coming to Saluda for the summer months for many years, and while there practices his chosen profession of dentistry. Saluda during the summer time without Dr. Teague would not seem natural.

There will be a school for Sunday school teachers and Christian workers held at Greens Creek church June 28, 29, and 30, 1918. Rev. G. A. Martin, of Marion; Rev. J. G. Graham, of Caroleen; Dr. M. B. White, of Shelby, and expected to be present to teach and lecture. Dr. Adams, of Charlotte will be Dean of the school. Evangelistic services at night. Everybody invited.

REV. J. M. WALKER,
Woodside Farm, Route 4,
Campobello, S. C.

Between shine and shower, take or leave the umbrella, Tuesday afternoon, many a one found shelter and waited until the sun "came out" only to be well wet down before they got home.

We received a communication from a party, this week, stating that he had been coming to Tryon for many years to get away from the hard cement walks of the city, only to find that we had the same kind here, and says that he has made his last trip here on that account. Oh, goodness, goodness, Agnes, can we stand such a calamity as this? Will it be possible for Tryon to stand the shock? In all seriousness, we believe that Tryon will be much better off without the company of any such person; one that is so narrow-minded and little as this had better arrange to spend their vacations at Mushy-Mush Podunk or Possum Trot, where they can find all the red soil and mother earth that they desire to tread on.

Are there any sugar "slackers" in this region? A woman on being told that she could have 25 pounds for canning, provided she would promise not to use it at the table said that she wouldn't dare to agree to that. Another got her 25 pounds by telling how she and a neighbor were going into competition over the numbers of cans they would put up. Later when the neighbor was asked about results denied going into any such arrangement, and that the sugar buyer was doing any canning whatsoever. It is risky business. Uncle Sam is very severe with hoarders, and those who pinch and save are very likely to report those they find putting by sugar instead of putting up fruit.

County Food Administrator Bacon is now having his troubles. Since the late sugar ruling has gone into effect he is daily besieged by those wanting more sugar than the ruling allows. The most frequent excuse, and the one which by the way is worn threadbare, is that the children require more than three pounds of sugar per month. Mr. Bacon was heard to tell one person who came to him with that excuse Wednesday, that was quite likely, and that the older people would doubtless have to deny themselves in order to give the children more. True patriotism is now undergoing the "acid test." If you are a true-blue, genuine American you will make no complaint, but go ahead and cheerfully comply with the sugar and all other rulings of the food administration and thank the stars that you are in the United States where you can get three pounds per month of sugar, instead of in England or France where they are allowed but one-half pound per week. Take your medicine and don't whine about it. You are no better than millions of those who bow in submission to the dictates of Mr. Hoover and say "Go ahead, Mr. Hoover, we are with you." The time is at hand when the true patriot can be easily picked out from the make-believe. There are those who have whooped and hurrahed, but now that the REAL TEST is here, are showing themselves in their true light. Don't say that you CAN'T get along with less sugar than the ruling allows, (for you will have to anyway) but say I WILL, and thus help to lighten the load of those who are doing all in their power to see that all get some, and that a few do not get more than they are entitled to.

TRYON WALKABOUTS AND TALKABOUTS.

A big gun boat launched at Charleston this week is to be christened The Asheville; with grape juice, not champagne, of course, as becomes a dry community. Congratulations to our neighbor. Tryon will wait for a dreadnaught as its namesake.

There are smart kids in Tryon. One of 'em has a patient mother who sometimes loses her patience trying to get him into something besides mischief. "You're good for nothing," she finally told him. "I don't want to be good for nothing," said the little ten-year-old right off the bat. "If you are good for a nickel I'll be good for the rest of the week."

It seems that like my very, very great-great grandfather and namesake, Adam, I occasionally make a mistake. He did when it came to choice fruit. All of his children make mistakes. Otherwise, as somebody asks, why tip lead pencils with rubber? I should hate to pretend I never made any, for folks would take me for a Hun and then for a spy. Well, a correspondent writes that I was wrong in saying that the Inquisition burned Galileo for declaring that the sun stands still and the earth moves. I was wrong all right. It didn't put him to death, but twice it nearly scared him to death by threatening to, and he crawled; which is a pretty word for "creafish-ed," or went back on himself. He died what is called a "natural death," though all deaths are natural, aren't they, whether by cut, or smash, or fire, or water, or fire-water, or disease? Lord Bacon said it is as natural to die as to be born. Natural death generally means to die in one's bed as Galileo did in spite of the Inquisition. His last words were "the world does move," as it still does, and will, in spite of Kaiser and Huns. It's built that way.

A Tryon kid who saw what he called the eclipse of the sun, the other afternoon and learned that the dark spot was the moon, caught sight of the new moon soon after. "O, that ellipse nearly rubbed the moon out, didn't it?" said he.

The Boy Scouts have been given another national flag to take the place of the one that went up in smoke at the fire down town about a month ago. So once more they can see by the dawn's early light what so proudly they saw at the twilight's last gleaming, when the big fire's red glare, flames bursting in air gave proof in the night that their flag wasn't there; for it was already a little handful of ashes, not to be told from what was left of cambrics, calicos, muslins, sheetings, etc.; in the stock of consumed merchandise. So their Star Spangled Banner still above them shall wave o'er the Boys that are free and the Scouts that are brave.
