"Long May It Wave."

By saving food save human life.

—W. S. S.—

Do you want to save the life of the children of Europe? Then save food.

—W. S. S.—

If you haven't bought your allotment of War Savings Stamps, why not?

—W. S. S.—

Between a food profiteer and a Bolsheviki there's not much room left for choice.

—W. S. S.—

Don't you want our boys brought home? If you do buy War Savings Stamps to help do it.

—W. S. S.—

President Wilson is in Europe, but Teddy and Congress are still with us, so there's no reason for a dull moment.

—W. S. S.—

Bill Hohenzollern says he did not start the war. We suppose some German will rise up and claim there has been no war.

—W. S. S.—

A crowd of Luxemburgers tore down some stores because the shopkeepers had overcharged the Americans. Better import a few thousand of them to the United States.

—W. S. S.—

Did Bill take the late King of Greece with him? Seems to us that Bill agreed to restore the throne of Greece to his brother-in-law. But lost thrones are common in Europe just now.

—W. S. S.—

State Food Administrator Page says the food profiteers will not be allowed to escape punishment by Red Cross donations in the future. Then why not make a donation of them to the penitentiary.

—W. S. S.—

It is predicted that eggs will be selling for one dollar per dozen by February first. Well, we don't care.
 Ham has been too high for our pocket book for many months, and what are eggs without ham?

—W. S. S.—

It would not be to North Carolina's credit to fall down on buying her share of War Savings Stamps.
 We have done so extraordinarily well on everything else, let's not leave undone this one thing.

—W. S. S.—

Democratic newspapers keep hammering at the unfitness of Postmaster General Burleson for the position.
 There are many men in the United States who could do worse, but we are from Missouri.

—W. S. S.—

Monday's dispatches tell us that our boys have crossed the Rhine and are on German soil. That was their intention when they left the United States, and they would have been a sadly disappointed crowd unless they had. Hope they reach Berlin before ordered home.

—W. S. S.—

Both Republican and Democrat U. S. Senators are heaving bricks at the President's head, because he didn't appoint one on the peace commission. As much scrapping as they have done in the United States Senate for the past year we presume the President hardly thought that a good place to look for peace conferees.

—W. S. S.—

No American should delude himself into thinking that we have nothing to fear from Bolshevism in the United States. Demonstrations in New York and San Francisco show what they would do if they only dared. One of the best ways to keep that element down is to furnish our people with plenty of food and at reasonable prices.

TRYON-GRADED SCHOOLS.

At a meeting of the Tryon Graded School Commissioners, Saturday afternoon, Mr. Marriott's resignation of membership on account of poor health was laid on the table. Full pay was voted to the teachers for the five weeks when school was closed by the public health authorities on account of the influenza; provided the teachers would prolong the regular term two weeks. A holiday vacation of one week was ordered.
 The chairman of the commission, Mr. Gash, was empowered to get out warrants for the arrest of — Ward, — Owens and Ray Jackson, for simple trespass. They are accused of entering the school premises Sunday afternoon, the 23rd, upsetting a row of desks, scattering books and papers over the rooms, writing on the walls and piling up pails and refuse in the hallway. The school building has suffered from several damages and depredations like this, and the commissioners decided that it was high time to treat it as a serious offense against the law and taxpayers.

—W. S. S.—

THE LANIER CLUB.

The Lanier Club which has been almost merged with the Red Cross during the war, now that the war is over, came forth bright and ready for a useful winter.

Mrs. Stone in a graceful and witty address made her entry as president.
 Dr. Daniels with that wonderful way he has of sharing and making interesting his intimate knowledge of Greek literature read from the dialogue of Crito with Socrates the night before the philosopher drank the poison, introducing his reading by comparing the Greek attitude of mind with that of the Germans; in both the man being but a pawn of the state.

Mrs. Corwin rendered several of Whitcomb Riley's poems in a very acceptable manner and Miss Jackson sang two songs both of which gave pleasure.

There was a good attendance and several strangers became Tryonites in consequence of their becoming acquainted with members of the Club.

JEVER.

Jever get all achy An sore, an'
 Have your chest hurt,
 An' just feel it
 In all your bones—Except your wish Bone, that you Were goin' to Have the "Flu" an'
 Pneumonia an' ever' thing
 Just after you Had read about
 "The great prescription"
 Which used to be Called "Old Crow," Or something like that An' you know there Was a little Left over when The bone dry law
 Went into effect—An' you know just Where you had it,
 An' think you Can go an' put Your hand right
 On it?
 An' all the Way home,
 You get achier
 An' achier all over, Till you are in 'Nawful misery by
 The time you get
 In, an' the wife
 Hears your groans An' asks "what's The matter?"
 An' you tell her An' she wants
 You to get right
 In bed
 An' drink a hot lemonade an'
 Send for the doctor
 But you insist On fixin' the Furnace first
 An' go down stairs
 An' hunt, an' hunt
 An' hunt—
 An' you can't find Even a cork!
 Then you go Upstairs, an' the wife Says: "Look pale,"
 An' you say you Feel pale,
 An' then she Asks why you Didn't fix the furnace An' you grunt,
 An' she asks
 "Have you lost something?"
 An' you groan
 An' she kinda Smiles, an' brings That old
 Brown Betsy out
 An' you smell
 Ol' Doctor Crow's Prescription, an'
 You know its all Right, but a little Too much for one
 An' not enough For two—an'
 You split the Difference by gulping Once an' chokin' twice—An' then you Roll over an'
 Sleep like a child—
 An' dream of Doctor Crow
 An' pink elephants, Then you get up in The mornin' as good As new,
 An' go to work—
 An' say you Aint afraid of the "Flu" Nor nothin',
 You know what I mean—Jever?
