The Editor's Heaven

A few days ago a group of progressive farmers were in our office paying up their subscriptions. They were discussing among themselves the merits of various newspapers. One of them remarked that he had heren a subscriber to the News practically all his life and always expected to be one. How a person could afford to do with out his home paper was more than he could see. The others voiced the same opinion and one remarked that he would not do without the Grant Coun-IN News even if it cost him $15 a year, but admitted that he would not like to pay that price. We run across hundreds of peoplle like this in our daily work. They are people who know they have a good county paper, as the county papers go, and are not stinted in their hand we run across others who are not so enthusiastic. Every once in a while a good friend pay up again. The paper is what it is worth.
