How often we have heard the statement, "When the business-men of Tryon finally decide to 'get-together' this community will begin to flourish?" Resort towns, both summer and winter, in all sections of the United States have learned or are learning, and profiting by the value of sticking together, and working toward one common interest,—the upbuilding of the community.

No better reputation could be given any community than that its citizens always work together for the benefit of the community in which they live. No community can prosper as it should when its people are disposed to stand apart when called upon to decide a question affecting the general welfare. Harmony is the greatest factor in upbuilding.

One of the elements contributing largely to the amazing growth of Florida resort towns has been the disposition of the business men and civic organizations toward "sticking together" and working hard to put over every worth-while proposition.

Tryon is fortunate in the location allotted to it. It is fortunate in the climate vouchsafed it. It has men of ability and energy to build it up. But if there is not the ability to work together in the utmost harmony and with the utmost solidarity of purpose, all of the other things will be of no avail in creating here such a city as we all hope to see here in the next decade.

SOIL EROSION CONTROL

English Ivy (Hedera helix) is fine because it roots all along the length of its stem, making the best binder in the world. It is ornamental and not weedy. Easily obtainable through nurserymen and common in Tryon gardens. We could supply some.

Virginia creeper (Ampelopsis pinesisfolia) is to be recommended for all the reasons that English Ivy is, and it is even more plentiful. It grows wild in the woods around Tryon, is common in gardens, and obtainable in large quantity from nurserymen. We could supply some also.

Terracing, staking, covering with brush might all be tried also, and in connection with reclamation by planting. Obviously no annual plants, such as the ordinary cereal and legume crops and other cover crops will be of any effect, unless the first year while seedlings of permanent soilbinders are growing. Clover, Japan clover (Lespedeza might all be used at first, perhaps, but the idea is probably not to be recommended. No propagation from seeds should be attempted. The thing to do is to get your permanent binder plants right in. I have listed them in ascending order of importance. Vines will be the best, I should say.

The little plant which you sent me is loosesife (Lysimachia quadrifolia) which is one of the two representatives of the primrose family which we have around Tryon. It is common in June throughout the piedmont, but as I had no specimen of it for my Tryon herbarium, I was glad to get it. Donald C. Peattie Assistant Plant Instructor.

BIRD MOUNTAIN FARM

stance, he has five pastures, in which he has sowed Dallas grass, red top clover, carpet grass, white clover, Lespodisa and other varieties of grasses, from which splendid pasturage results have been secured. His herd of ten or twelve Hereford have pastured here from early spring throughout the summer without being fed, except at milking time. He also has some ten or twelve sheep and a large number of hogs of the Hampshire variety. There are several acres in a splendid vineyard on his farm from which a large yield of Niagara and Delaware grapes was harvested this season. He also has some 30 acres in alfalfa, from which was realized in the total cuttings this year almost a ton to the acre. There are 30 acres here in cotton, and the boll weevil has not been able to do any damage in this high altitude. The stalk and fruitage of the cotton will compare favorably with any field in Spartanburg county.

Mr. Gentry has about 100 old bearing peach trees and about 800 apple trees bearing. In addition he set out last spring 3500 young Elberta peaches, and will plant about 400 more apple trees this fall.

Soil Improving.

Mr. Gentry is a great believer in soil improving, and is practicing his belief. He has here about forty acres in peas, which will be turned under to further enrich the soil, and when the pea vines are planted, vetch and rye and other winter cover crops will flourish about them.

Manager Becknell of the farm, who has been here for the past three years, says that every year 30 or 40 bushels of peas are sowed, and turned under.

Specialize on Fruit Production.
Mr. Gentry and his manager during the coming farm year will specialize heavily on fruits and then in order will come the general farming and cultivation of grain and forage crops.

Bird mountain farm is a busy place every day in the year, and there is a refreshing diversity to Bird Mountain. The old beaten path of everything, in cotton except a roasting ear patch or two in the bottoms, is missing from this picture of progressive, modern tilling and building up the soil.—Spartanburg Herald.
