Omnivator Newest Flying Machine

It is the latest thing in aeronautics. It is called the Omnivator and is of the ornithopter class. It reproduces the movement of the bird's wings by a smooth-running rotation instead of by a reciprocating action as is the case with the other class of invention. The inventor, E. P. Johnson of Chicago, says his machine will ascend and descend vertically, go backwards and forwards and stand still in the air without reversing the engine. The machine will be ready for its preliminary tests in a short time. It will be built at the $250,000 cost offered by the British government for a practically rising machine.

FOUND IN RUM SEARCH

Concealed beneath a mass of rubbish under the deck of the Italian steamer Aster, customs officials of Baltimore, Md., in search of smuggled rum, found several ancient and rare paintings. The captain and crew disclaim all knowledge of them and so far no one has claimed them. Rarest of all is the one above, by an unknown artist, but experts say it is 300 years old. The Italian embassy has started an investigation, and may lay claim to all the paintings in the name of the Italian government.

Her highness, Nawab Sultan Jahan, begum or princess of Bhopal, declares that her subjects are greatly improved both morally and materially because of the dry regime. The begum, shown above, is descended from a long line of female rulers.

One Issue Dodged by Mr. Bryan

This photograph shows William Jennings Bryan at the annual baby show in Los Angeles. Mr. Bryan refused to pick the winner and admitted his inability to kiss all of the 150 contestants who so sweetly smiled at him as they passed in review. However, he did consent to pose for a picture with twins at the head of the parade.

Fortissimo.

"Phwat's that noise, Mrs. Mulcahy?"
"It's me daughter Maggie runnin' up and down th' scales."
"Begorra, she must weigh a ton."

Spelled Differently.

Wife—This pudding is a sample of the new cook's work. What do you think of it?
Husband—I call it mediocre.
*Wife—No, dear; it's tapioca.—London Tit-Bits.
