

Says Teethina Saved Her Baby From the Grave

"I actually believe Teethina saved my baby from the grave, for she was the sickest little thing you ever saw for six weeks," writes Mrs. B. W. Wamble, Route 4, Elba, Ala. "She had the best treatment we could give her, but seemed to get worse instead of better. When we stopped everything else and gave her Teethina she got better right away, and now she is a laughing, playful little darling and eats anything."

If Mrs. Wamble had given her little one Teethina at the first sign of trouble she would have been saved many anxious hours.

Teethina is sold by leading druggists or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a full size package and a free copy of Moffett's Illustrated Baby Book.—(Advertisement.)

Wood Choppers Are Gone.

WOMANLY WEAKNESS

Birmingham Lady Took Cardui for Relief of Change of Life Troubles and Says It Helped Her "So Much."

Birmingham, Ala.—"I first took Cardui for that tired, worn-out feeling that comes from being dreadfully run-down," says Mrs. Catherine E. Smith, of 2106 Stout Street. "Twenty-five years ago I was suffering from womanly weakness. . . . I read of Cardui in an almanac, and thought I would try it. I got a bottle and it helped me from the first. After that, during the whole of my married life, I took Cardui when I needed it."

"About four years ago, change of life came on me. . . . I grew weaker and weaker, and was confined to my bed where I laid on my back for days. I was told that only a severe operation could do me any good, and this depressed me very much for I dreaded such an ordeal."

"I remembered how Cardui had helped me for female trouble in the past and I had read of how it had helped other women during the change of life, so one night I told my husband to go to the drug store and get me a bottle. I began taking it at once. From the first dose I could feel myself getting stronger. . . . I continued to take Cardui until I was entirely through this very trying period of a woman's life. . . . Cardui is a wonderful medicine for women. It helped me so much that I gladly recommend it to other women suffering as I did." At druggists.

WHAT FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL CAN DO TO MAKE ROOM PRETTY

Room Belonging to Two Virginia Farm Girls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Club girls are making farm homes more attractive through participating in "Our Own Room" clubs under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges. The girls are advised by the club leader as to what sort of improvements it would be wise to undertake, and then told how to go about making them. In the room shown in the picture, belonging to two sisters in Albemarle county, Va., the walls were first cleaned and tinted. Then the floor was carefully gone over. Nail holes and cracks were filled with putty, and then the floor was varnished and oiled. The fifteen-year-old girl who did the room over painted the woodwork ivory white, and also painted her little rocker, for which she made a cretonne seat and pad to match the window draperies.

orange to harmonize with the walls and drapery. She also hemstitched her sheets and pillow cases as part of club work and made the coverlet and bolster slip herself. These are made of unbleached muslin, the edges buttonholed in black, with a butterfly design applied in brown and orange. This butterfly design is repeated in the lace curtains at her window.

Example for Others.

The usual result of having one room in a house done over in this way by an ambitious girl is to stimulate the family to see what can be done to improve the rest of the house, particularly the living room and dining room.

The lower picture shows the home demonstration agent arriving to help plan the club member's changes, and the upper one shows the exterior of this farm home.

MAKING CRISP POTATO CHIPS

With Increased Commercial Manufacture Has Arisen Many Problems—Bulletin Explains.

With the increase in the commercial manufacture of potato chips has arisen many problems, including the question of what varieties of potatoes are best adapted to this method of preparation. The comparative value of several varieties of potatoes was recently determined, therefore, by the bureau of plant industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, and a report of the findings printed as Department Bulletin 1055, Methods of Manufacturing Potato Chips, is now ready for distribution.

The report shows that potatoes must be of proper maturity and starch content to make good crisp chips. It describes the kind of fat best suited to frying, the equipment, recipe, time and degree of temperature for cooking. It also shows the percentage of chips obtained from different varieties and their comparative value for market purposes.

The information given in the bulletin can be used in making chips at home as well as commercially. The value of different varieties of potatoes for other methods of preparation is discussed. For example, a table showing the percentage of loss in peeling can be applied to the selection of potatoes for making mashed potatoes as well as chips.

Copies of the bulletin may be had upon application to the department at Washington.

BEEF CANNED BY HOUSEWIVES

Meat of 150 Animals in Texas County Made into Stews, Roasts, Soup Stock, Etc.

In Tarrant county, Texas, says a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture, about 150 beef animals were canned by housewives during the year. The beef has been made up into stews, roasts, steaks, soup stock, and chill. Most of the people attending demonstrations by extension agents have given demonstrations to their neighbors and friends, and have thus spread the work.

SPANISH BEEFSTEAK IS GOOD

Disadvantage of Driving Out Juices by Pounding Overcome by Addition of Flour.

Pounding meat before cooking is an old-fashioned method of making it tender. While it has the advantage of breaking down the tough tissues, it has the disadvantage of driving out the juices and with them the flavor. A way of avoiding this loss is by pounding flour into the meat, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The flour catches and retains the juices. The department suggests the following method of making Spanish beefsteak:

Cover two pounds of round steak, cut about one inch thick, with enough flour on each side to absorb the juices. Pound the steak until it is quite thin. Season with salt and cayenne pepper, cover with a layer of sliced bacon or salt pork, roll it up and tie with string. Place in a baking dish of earthenware or glass, with a tight-fitting lid. One cupful of milk and half cupful of water are added, and the steak is baked for two hours. It should be basted occasionally. The oven should be medium hot, and more liquid should be added if the original amount cooks away.

All Around the House

Put a pinch of soda into the water when arranging flowers. They will stay fresh much longer.

Paint in woolen clothing, no matter how hard and dry, can be taken out with equal parts of turpentine and ammonia.

Dip a knitting needle into the milk which you may suspect of having been watered. If there are no particles of milk adhering to it when you take it out you may be certain that the milk is watered.

When preparing mashed turnips, try mashing two or three medium-sized potatoes with them, and add a heaping teaspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. This rule applies to turnips enough to serve six persons.

KNITTED SUITS AND FROCKS; SCARFS AND SHORT COATS

THOSE smart, loosely-knitted sports suits and dresses that were a joy to both wearers and beholders, during the summer, served to pave the way to success for their followers this fall. The new models have arrived in considerable numbers and an endless variety and no one welcomes them more fervently than the college girl. They are closely knitted and cozy, with affections from fox neckpieces to something else in fur scarfs the doom of Mr. Fox appears to be sealed. He will not be among those present much longer in the animal kingdom. But furriers assure us that all that glitters is not gold and all that looks like fox may be something else. Many little beauties contribute pelts that imitate, more or less closely, the long, soft, wood shades, brown, beige, navy and tan leading in colors.

In the suits, coats are usually hip length and open at the front, fastening with buttons, but there are occasional side openings. The introduction of brushed wool in collars and trimmings makes opportunity for attractive color contrasts. Navy and beige, navy and red, blue and gray, brown and orange, tan and brown are combinations that are repeated in the display. Bandings of brushed wool appear on both coats and skirts, as silky and immensely becoming fur of the fox, and among them are the plentiful hares.

The familiar neckpiece pictured may be safely pronounced the most popular thing in furs. Its vogue extends through summer and winter and it provides the finishing touch for suits, street dresses, afternoon and dinner costumes. Fur lends a touch of luxury and richness dear to the heart of women and it harmonizes with everything. "Platinum fox" is the name given to light colors, dyed to match the suits or shown in the illustration, where a very light gray wool trims a suit in a darker shade.

A distinctly smart note appears in suits in which the coats have an attached throw-scarf instead of a collar. A navy blue suit, with the coat showing a faint pattern in red, is completed with a scarf of plain navy.

It goes without saying that the new crop of sweaters is the largest ever and offers anything that is likely to be called for—including some novelties. The sleeveless sweater of late summer with plain back and patterned front reappears with sleeves that are plain like the back. It is closely knitted.

Unless gentle woman transfers her dresses to be worn with them, and these scarfs are shown in gray, taupe, tan, sand, beige and colors of the same character. The "dyed-to-match" idea is quite sure to persist, but is only attractive in quiet or neutral colors.

Short coats have again come into style. The new models now being shown are made in box-coat and blouse-effects, with standing or choker collars and a single fastening at the waistline. This fastening generally takes the form of a metallic buckle or clasp of gaiter, in brilliant colors.

Suicides.

About 16,000 Americans committed suicide last year, according to insurance statisticians. It compares with around 10,500 murders.

The suicide rate was 15 out of every 1,000 population. Figuring it on the basis of lifetimes, suicide apparently ends about 1 life out of every 150. It is a futile attempt to escape from the unescapable, for we take our troubles with us when we pass over.
